FOREWORD

ALTHOUGH the date of the Boer War slips from our memory entirely, or the formula for sulphuric acid escapes us, something about our four years in Latrobe High School will always remain with us.

WHO CAN forget the thrill of being part of the cheering throng at the football games—the enthusiasm with which senior rings were received—the satisfaction derived from hard-earned 95'sthe nervousness that prevailed during the forensic season-the mirth that reigned at the Sadie Hawkins Dance—the disappointment of losing the County Basketball Championship—the expectation as report time approachedthe waning gaiety at the After Prom Party, as 6 a.m. drew near —the sadness of commencement and baccalaureate services which declared that the end had come.

IN THE following pages, we have striven to bring you a resume of these blissful days. May you find many happy moments in the years to come by browsing through this book.

WHIRRING motors, sawdust and flying sparks are symbolic of the various divisions of the high school shops. Here, in the large, fully stocked rooms, boys are prepared for jobs in industry. For outstanding projects, shop students are awarded prizes from several crganizations.

Designed to prepare students for positions in the ever-growing industrial nation, a fouryear Vocational Training Course is offered at Latrobe High School.

Boys enrolled in this course of study are given a general introduction to each of the four major departments of the shop: wood working, machine, electrical and drafting. For two terms, each boy specializes in one particular department. Here the instructors feel he gains valuable experience and knowledge, so important to his future employment.

Beginners in the wood shop make bread boards, letter boxes and knick-knack shelves, and later, desks, tables and cabinets.

Graduates of the machine shop have the opportunity to become skilled in the intricate operation of the lathes, grinders, and other precision tools found in this division of school. They are qualified to advance as machinists in industry.

An understanding and knowledge of the operation of electrical apparatus, including motors and appliances, is the principal objective of the electrical shop aspirants. Drafting class prepares students to plan and manage the production of industrial machines and prod-

Class Members Find Lasting Thrills In First Prom, Class Play, Athletics

Junior Class members may look with pleasure at their accomplishments of the past year as they leave their positions to become seniors.

Leading the Class of '58 was Thomas Mailey in the role of president with Peter Gaudino serving as vice president. Elaine Schirf acted as secretary and Joan Baker served as treasurer. The class chose Thomas Wahlrobe to represent it at Student Council meetings.

Many eleventh graders were outstanding in the field of athletics. Juniors also had many participants as musicians in the orchestra, chorus and band. Members were sent to County Band and Orchestra as well as District and County Chorus.

The juniors copped lead roles in the All-Class Play "Love Is Eternal" and many assemblies throughout the year. "Curtain Going Up," the Junior Class Play, provided evidence of dramatic talent. Guiding the class affairs was Mr. Harold Bitner, adviser.

graders are also active in the artistic department. Many posters which hang throughout the halls of Latrobe High are made by artistically minded sophomores.

Journalism I and Broadcasting I includes sophomores who are future writers and broadcasters. These and many more achievements behind them, the sophomores look forward to next year with great expectations.

Thoughts of Higher Learning Enter Minds of Eager Freshmen Students

Upon the close of their first year of high school life the class of 1960 realized a fulfillment of their hopes of absorbing higher education, developing leaders, training future actors and actresses and providing their school with athletic ability.

Soon after the beginning of the school year the frosh elected the following students to office. Joseph Zink was elected to the presidency. Filling the capacity of vice-president was Edith Graham, while Jane Buchanan recorded the minutes as secretary. Taking care of the financial matters was Thomas Ryder and Carl Frederick took the class problems to Student Council meetings. Mr. Harry Graham acted as faculty adviser and lent a helping hand to the underclassmen throughout the year.

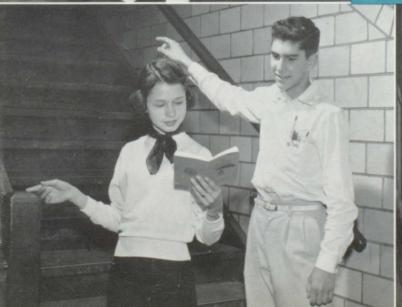

Theater-minded frosh received a chance to display their talents in the All Class production "Love Is Eternal." Showing acting ability in the play were Carl Frederick and Diane Shearer. Freshmen also served on many commit-

In the field of sports the ninth graders showed great initiative and potentiality. In football they attained a record of three wins, one loss and one tie. While on the hardwood court they won acclaim with an impressive record. Freshmen boys displayed their skill and strength on the wrestling mats also.

Girls of the class also participated in sport activities. Homeroom basketball, volleyball and tennis instructions were opened to the girls and they took advantage of all opportunities given to them.

Latrobean, High Post Cop Top Awards in Contests

Students traveling in the area of the journalism room on alternate Fridays are sure to detect the odor of printer's ink permeating the air, telling everyone that it is time for another issue of The High Post, published by the Journalism II class.

Inside the room, students are busy distributing papers, balancing the books, preparing issues for the advertisers, sending exchange papers, or simply enjoying the results of their efforts of the past two weeks. These students are juniors and seniors who completed one year of a journalism course directed by Mr. William R. Couchenour. After completing this course they become members of the journalism staff which includes news, feature and sports departments, besides the business and advertising staffs.

The Latrobean and The High Post themselves are submitted to a critical service offered by this organization. In the Columbia Scholastic Press and the National Scholastic Press Association critical services, the publications are also represented. The Latrobean usually receives the Medalist Award, the C.S.P.A. Contest and All-American Award in the N.S. P.A. service. These are top awards and compared to the first-place and All-American Awards given to the High Post.

Journalism I class prepares students for this second year work. For nine months pupils study the proper method of writing stories, headlines, making layouts and reading copy.

provides a necessary part of school life.

Football games, holiday parades, the annual Spring Concert and assemblies during the year claimed the attendance of the band. Under the direction of Mr. Ronald Shurie, many hours of practice were spent on intricate drills and skits during football season. The band members also take part in County and District Festivals.

Under the baton of Mr. Ernest Teichert, the high school orchestra performed for every assembly, dramatic presentations and many other activities. The high spot of the year was the instrumental concert held early in the spring. The orchestra consisted of representatives from all four classes.

Each year selected students from this organization are sent to County or District Orchestra with sixteen students representing the school.

Boys', Girls' Choruses Master Harmony Under Capable Guidance of Director

Vocal music in 1956 and 1957 proved its importance as a part of the curriculum in and around the halls of Latrobe High School.

Mr. Ronald Shurie, musical director, led the vocal groups in their activities throughout the year.

Composed of ninety pupils, Girls' Chorus I's chief function was preparing girls for membership in Girls' Chorus II. Accompanists for the group were Jane Buchanan, Connie Campbell and Marcia Guzik. Freshman boys, numbering forty-five, made up Boys' Chorus I. Leon Klingensmith, Ronald Kelly and Carol Immel acted as accompanists.

Qualifying members will, in 1957-1958, go into Boys' Chorus II. Eighth graders are encouraged to join a choral group upon entrance into high school. Aside from preparing students for musical participation in later years, they provide wholesome relaxation.

Performances of Choral Groups Supply Entertainment for Public

Ninety-one sophomore, junior and senior girls belonged to Girls' Chorus II. Carole Martin was accompanist. Lynn Gordon accompanied forty-four upperclassmen boys in their activities as members of Boys' Chorus II.

The bi-weekly practices were held with more than one goal in mind. On April 10, Girls' Chorus II traveled to Aspinwall High School, while the school band from Aspinwall entertained students in an assembly on April 30. Boys' Chorus II put on an assembly on March 6.

During the Christmas season, Girls' Chorus II pursued two activities. They sang for the dedication of the town Christmas lights. Also, continuing the annual event, the group sang in the high school halls providing entertainment for the homeroom students.

On January 10,11 and 12, District Chorus was held at Turtle Creek High School. Carole Martin, John Vincze and Joseph DelSordo participated.

Leading the group in its service activities was senior, Bill French, elected to the post of president. Acting in the capacity of vice-president, secretary, and treasurer were Su Pohland, Mary Lou Bulebush and Charlotte Myers, respectively. They were under the general direction of Mr. James R. Beatty, adviser. The council is composed of student members of all four classes acting as representatives of home rooms, clubs, and other service groups.

Services rendered by this organization were selling confectionaries during sports events, operating the check room at social functions, ushering at Eighth Grade and Freshmen Days and conducting the devotions in assembly. The Council also sponsored a total of four dances at times in the school year and provided the special assemblies.

Letters were awarded to those members achieving a total of eighteen points or credits on Awards Day.

JUNIOR CLASSICAL LEAGUE

Projects, Trips, Programs Aid Teaching Old World Customs

"We the members of the Junior Classical League covenant to hand down the torch of classical civilization in the modern world. We believe that acquaintance with the civilization of Greece and Rome will help us understand and appraise this world of today which is indebted to the ancient civilization in its government, language, literature and arts."

Under this creed, 188 students planned and carried out activities of the Junior Classical League. At the beginning of the year, members elected officers to lead them in their activities. In accordance with the old Roman custom, two consuls or presidents were selected, Leo Quinn and Carol Kaltenbaugh. Other officers include Jerry Limber and Frances Planinsek, pro-consuls or vice-presidents; Ruth Ann Jones, scriba or secretary; Ray Blair, quaestor or treasurer, and James Underwood, Student Council representative.

A formal initiation ceremony in October began the business of the group. The first issue of the Torch was published under coeditors Sandra Harr and Kathryn Rodkey. Displaying Latin magazines and also the National Latin newspaper, Torch U. S., was exchange editor John Blank.

Featured during December was the singing of Christmas carols, making Latin cards and Amicitia or Friendship Week. Through the pen pal correspondence with Italy, students received letters written in English, pictorial post cards and learned of Italian home and school life.

Members attended the State Convention held this year at Newville. The National Convention is scheduled for the University of Colorado in Colorado. Two bus trips were taken this year to Pittsburgh. Heinz Company, KDKA-TV, the Aviary and Phipps Conservatory were places of interest to the group.

Several students were initiated to the Latin National Honor Society. To be eligible for membership, a certain average must be maintained and a high grade achieved on a special test for this purpose.

From February 18 to March 2, was the Latin Festival for Pittsburgh and vicinity. Projects, the Latin Banquet, radio programs, special telecasts on WQED-TV and participation in the Scholastic Examinations at Allegheny High School highlighted the festival.

Through activities, projects and trips, Latin students gained a better understanding of the language with the help of Miss Adeline Reeping, adviser.

Composed of twelve members, the organization performed many services throughout the year. After a fire drill begins, the members of the patrol inspect the building. A close check to assure that windows and doors are closed and the lights turned off is made.

Additional duties of the volunteers are to remove all unauthorized persons from the building, to fight fires and to act as messengers during an emergency. Acting under the supervision of Mr. Robert Cook, the group is completing its ninth year of service to the school.

LIBRARIANS—Serving as student librarians for the past year were 15 girls from the Sophomore, Junior and Senior Classes.

At the beginning of the 1956 term, the student librarians elected officers. Filling the positions of president and vice president were Betty Parker and Patricia Albaugn, respectively. Jean Bailey recorded the minutes, while Regina Kuhn acted as treasurer. Madeline Demangone carried out the duties of Student Council representative.

SAFETY PATROL—Stationed at busy intersections, the 17 voluntary members of the Safety Patrol protected the life and property of both pedestrians and motorists.

No matter what the weather, these boys appeared at their posts four times a day, performing their assumed duties. Under the direction of Mr. Fred Halsall and Mr. Lloyd B. Johnson, members of the patrol did a commendable job in acquiring an excellent safety record at Latrobe High School. Also included in their activities were participation in several assemblies and engaging guest speakers for special safety programs.

Three straight defeats in away contests were administered by Penn High, Wilkinsburg and Altoona. The Indians of Penn won 30-0, and the Tigers 33-20. The Mountain Lion contest was hard fought with Latrobe losing 26-13.

n - Le good of but why tel youthat? C There Book duamo Motores about theling Atoms are "old hat" these days! Today, scientists actually are more concerned with what goes on inside the atomic nucleus than with the atom itself. Fortunately, more and more nuclear research is directed at putting this newly tapped energy source to work in socially useful forms. The study for ways and means of handling atomic power is a typical example of the need for industry to keep pace with today's growing technology. We have another example close to home, in the field of tool steels. For almost 50 years, Vanadium-Alloys Steel Company has been in the forefront of the search for new and better tool steels. In our fine Metallurgical Laboratory, one of the industry's most advanced, full-time researchers are hard at work perfecting and testing tomorrow's tool steels today. Even as yesterday's research is reflected in today's sales, so does our American industry grow and prosper in the healthy environment of competition. And it is just this competition under our free enterprise system that has made our lives so wonderfully rich and bounteous.
