ALL THAT YOU CAN'T LEAVE BEHIND.....

High School is like a pair of shoes. Brand new, we step cautiously into sophomore year feeling stiff and tight, but we stretch out a bit as juniors and endure the scuffs necessary to plant our feet on firmer turf. By the time we are seniors we worry more about comfort than appearance. Our tracks cover every inch of the building, from the gym to the stage, from the classrooms to the locker rooms, from the cafeteria to the court yard...at times we feel worn out, but we patch, we reinforce, and we tie up loose ends. We take off our shoes only to sample colleges, universities, or trades, considering what might be the best fit for next year's path. Then it's right back on with our Sketchers and high tops, sandals and spikes, Nikes and steel-toed boots. We wouldn't think of completing the journey in anything else. Each of us leaves his or her unique print in the halls of Greater Latrobe Senior High School, and we will be remembered for the marks we have made.

Ten years from now no one will care whether we were considered jocks or nerds, teachers' pets or preps, goths or Barbies. More importantly, we have worn the shoes in which we have been most comfortable, and we have reached the end of the road together. We can't nor should we deny who we are; we can only use this understanding to decide who we will become. High school is forever part of each one of us. It's all that we can't leave behind.

"Some people come into our lives and quickly go. Some stay for awhile and leave footprints on our hearts.

And we are never, ever the same."

2003

Juniors Tim Leonard, Sarah Kozusko, Emma Ravis, and T.J. Mock waded in the ocean. Their summers were filled with "splashin'" good times.

Senior Katie Kimmel lands from her flight. She, along with most seniors, kept her feet on the ground and her head in the clouds.

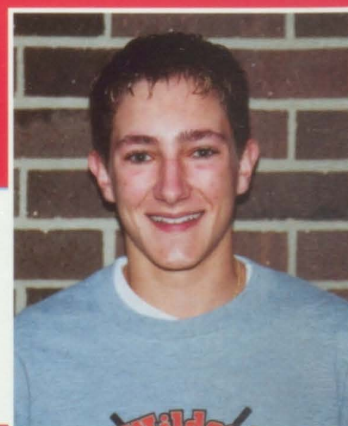

"I went on lots of vacations to various beaches." Junior Natalie Zitterbart.

"I went to the beach and learned how to surf." Sophomore Katie Kennedy.

"I kyacked and took many pictures." Junior Geoff Burtner.

I went to the Dave Mathews Band concert and it was amazing." Junior Jeremy Wano.

Senior Rachel Smith and Juniors Faith Blaker and Sharon Smith protect the beach. They spent their summer climbing to new heights.

Juniors Lauren Brant, Jenell Wano, and Megan Boerio pose for a picture. These stylish ladies enjoyed their close friendship during the summer.

Fun in the Sun

By: Alanna Zuchelli

The first class started, and the first day-dream took place, everyone reflected on their summer. Everyone tried to get in their last visits to the mall and their last few days to hang out with friends until two o'clock in the morning.

What did these students do? Some decided to simply relax for three months. Sophomore Margaret Florendo said, "I woke up, ate breakfast, watched T.V., laid around, ate some more and went to bed. I did that all summer."

Junior, Taylor Shekell went overseas to enjoy her time off from school. "I lived with a family in Paris for a month and took classes in the morning. In the afternoon, I was able to see all the sites."

Many students found out that summer isn't just for enjoyment. Work became an everyday task to numerous students. While many students held jobs and lived for pay day, junior Amanda Hewitt took work to another level. "I went to West Virginia and helped to build a house for a needy family. I had a blast digging about a million holes!"

For senior Ryan Service, summer was about playing sports. He also had the opportunity to meet many new people during his junior Olympic season. "I went to Louisville, Kentucky and played in a National tournament for volleyball," he said.

Whether it was doing what they enjoyed or trying new activities, the students at Greater Latrobe made their summer interesting. By the end of that first day of school, everyone was thinking only one hundred and seventy nine days left.

"It's a beautiful day, don't let it get away."

Sophomores Margeaux Monsour, Dan Bomboulie, and Allison Sanders enjoy a snack. They stayed cool in the "shades."

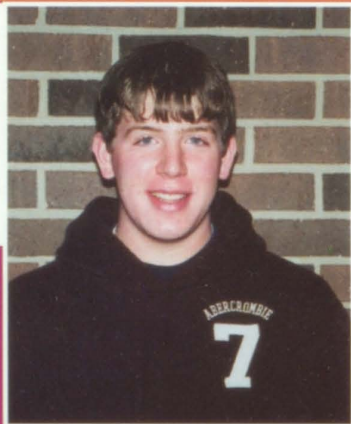

These champs eat their Wheaties. These softball athletes show their pride in their team victory.

"Barnes and Noble is the place to be!" Sophomore Chris Burick

"Wing night at Dino's is a great place to hang out with friends." Junior Dan Schimizzi

"I like hanging out with my friends and doing random things." Senior Kristy Frayvolt

"I like to go to the mall and the movies because there is really nothing else around here." Junior Aubrey Mancuso

Seniors Nichole Ross and Alicia Walsh engage in harmless criminal behavior on their weekends. They got their jollies decorating people's cars.

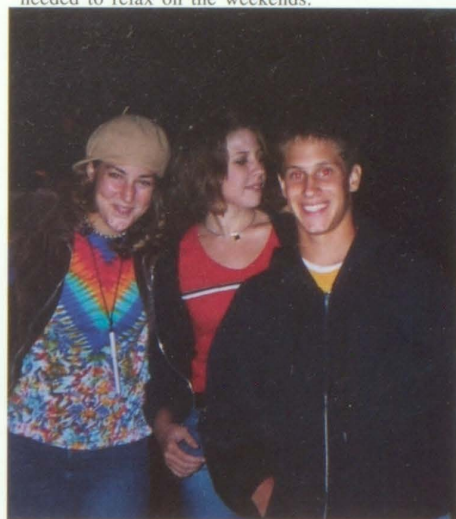

These senior girls "just wanna have fun!" Spending time with friends was the best way to hang out during the weekends.

These senior girls smile by Saurkraut Saul. Some students spent the weekend in the city at the ballpark.

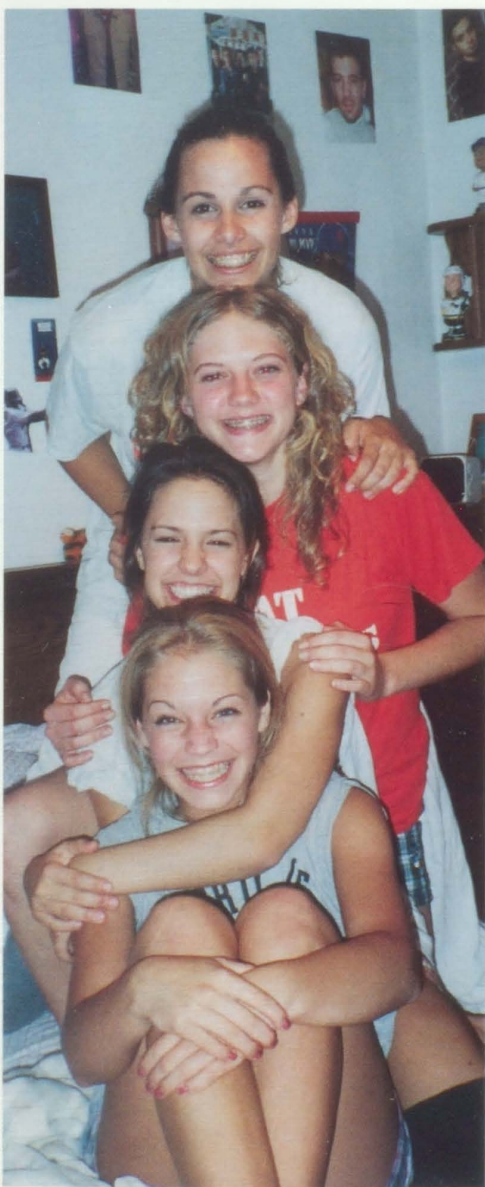

Sophomores Margeaux Monsour, Aubrey Diethorn, and Jeff Luttner chill at a friend's house. Sometimes friends just needed to relax on the weekends.

Weekend Dilemmas

By: Megan Sassos

"There is nothing to do! I wish there was something more exciting to do on the weekends!" Sound familiar? Weekends were a time to relax and that was usually what junior Jeff Ward did. "I love to do nothing, it is my favorite pastime," he said. Most weekends turned out to be the same old thing. "I like to go to the movies and hang out with people. My favorite spot is Barnes and Noble," said junior Andy Grobe. Senior Megan Sias and junior Kevin Lewis both said that the mall, sporting events, and things they did regularly on the weekends.

"Everybody's workin' for the weekend"
Loverboy

The mall and movies seemed to be the main places that people our age enjoyed going. Yes, at times it did get boring, but as long as you had your friends by your side, it wasn't so bad. Junior

Emma Ravis said, "Just as long as I'm with my friends, I have fun. We always find a place to go." Sometimes finding something to do was half the fun. We were just happy we didn't have to go to school and were able to relax while we had the chance.

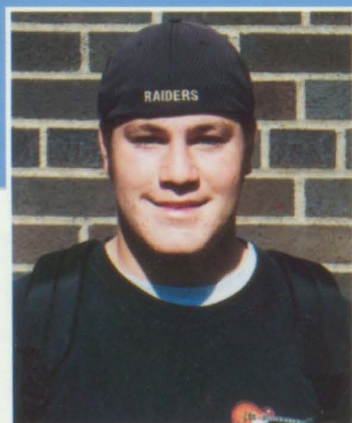

Juniors Kayla Dorko, Ashley Argenta, Sarah Kozusko, and Emma Ravis build up their weekends with slumber parties. Weekends were fun when your friends were by your side.

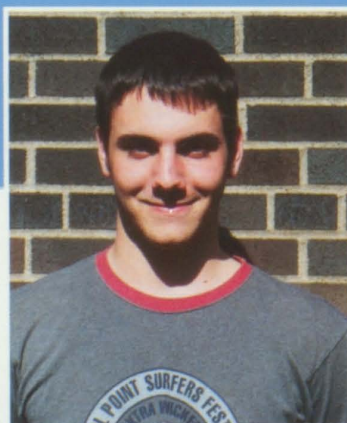

This hearty crew delights in a delicious breakfast in the early morning. Eat N'Park was a very popular weekend hang-out for high school students.

Seniors Neil Churman and Chaz Berret are a terrific match. The two have remained best friends since third grade.

Angela Giannilli and Melissa Fritz strike a pose for the camera. These sophomore sweeties took any dull moment and made it brighter.

"Once in a lifetime, friends only come by once in a lifetime." Junior Brian Rushnock

"Friends are like family but better because they can't ground you and they are always there for you." Junior Josh

"My friends mean the world to me, I don't know what I'd do without them." Sophomore Sherrie Dunlap

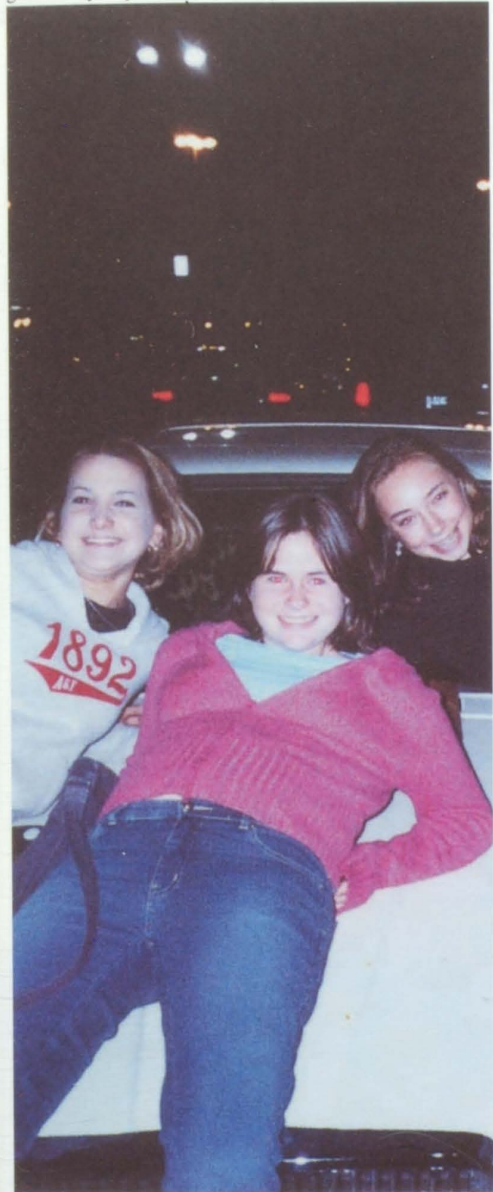

"Friendship is what high school is all about." Senior Perry Longacre

Sophomores Meghan Gyory and Mikaela Sarnese's friendship is one step above the rest. These girls were always able to make each other smile.

Seniors Chrissie Quicquaro, Jamie Renz, and Amy Knupp pile up on the hood of their friend's car. These girls really kept their friendship in the fast lane.

FRIENDS

By: Lauren Coder

"A friend is someone who walks in when the rest of the world walks out." To some, friends were there to inspire them and to give them confidence and reassurance.

"If it weren't for my friends, I wouldn't come to school," stated junior Lindsay Klien. Just imagine what it would be like without your friends. Would you have made it through all of those years? Senior Stacey Hood said, "I don't think that I could survive without my friends because they're always there to help me if I have a bad day."

Friendships consisted of so much. A friend was someone you could confide in and trust. "Having respect for privacy and secrets is important in a friendship," said junior, Ryan Ciocco. Others, like sophomore Anthony Lupchinsky, felt "honesty and flexibility were the most important qualities of being a good friend."

The point is, friends were your partners in "crime". Friends helped you complete impossible homework assignments, listened to you obsess over your crush, saved your seat at lunch, and were there to talk to when you needed them. High school was not just about learning, it was about forming lifelong relationships. The friendships we built were what gave us happy memories to look back at this important part of our lives.

"We all need somebody to lean on."
Bill Withers

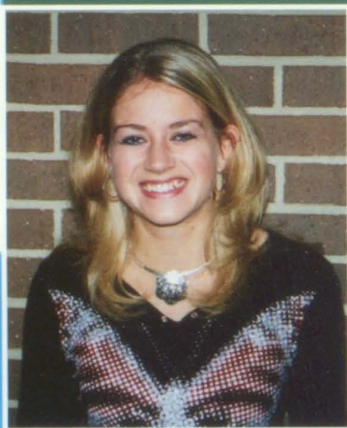

Friends Ashley Fajt and Lauren Coder give each other a great big hug. These juniors celebrated their friendship with a trip to Myrtle Beach.

Ryan Kuntz and Christine Killimayer stop their dancing for a snapshot. These two seniors have been friends since junior high.

"I think that relationships become better with time." Sophomore Jill Poponick

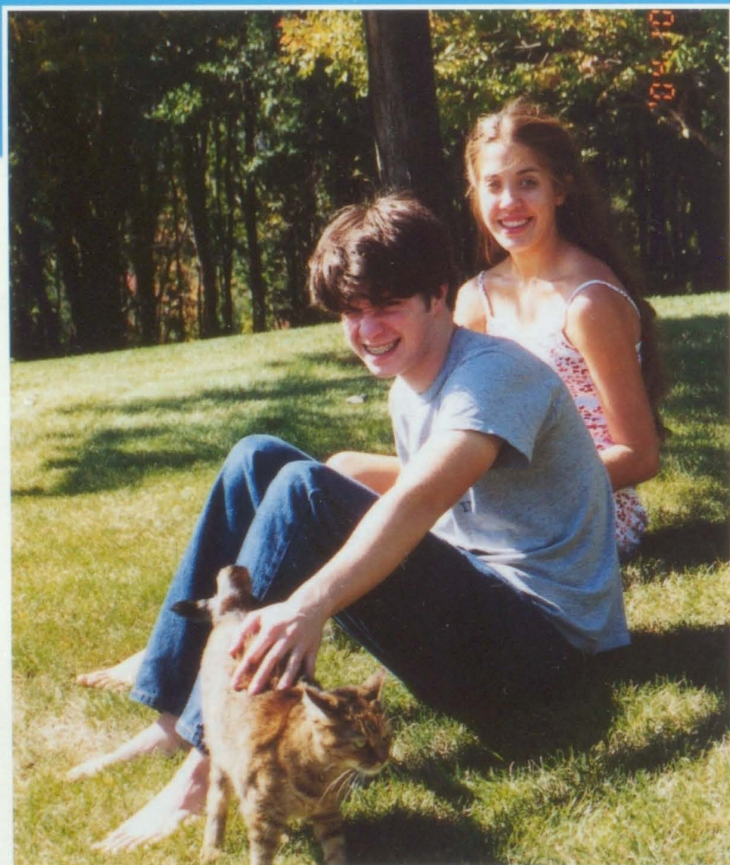

"Who needs a relationship when you have friends!" Sophomore Jamie Brighenti

"Heed my words. In a relationship it is of paramount importance not to cheat on each other." Senior Chaz Berret

"Relationships are great because you have a best friend to always talk to and help make bad days better." Junior Katie Bossart Sophomores Amy Gardner and Dave Niedoba make a purr...fect couple. These two brightened each other's days.

Senior Chris Gyory and Junior Alanna Zuchelli have a relationship that looks as good as they do. These two went beyond being picture perfect.

Seniors Amanda Evans and Scott Huffman's relationship is a picnic. These two lovebirds have dated since eighth grade.

Juniors Stephanie Maloberti and Ryan Edwards keep their relationship afloat. Their side by side smiles really made a splash.

COUPLES

By Julie Diorio

Is teenage love real? Can that happen in high school? In Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet, two young teens fall in love even against society's beliefs. Love in Latrobe may not have been like that of Verona, but perhaps you can relate to the way Romeo and Juliet felt.

Maybe you have found yourself looking at the couples in Latrobe High School and wondering if high school love could be real. Have you ever wondered which couples would have everlasting love? Junior Jen Loughner absolutely agreed, "true love" was definitely possible in high school. My parents were together in ninth grade, and they have been together for twenty-six years."

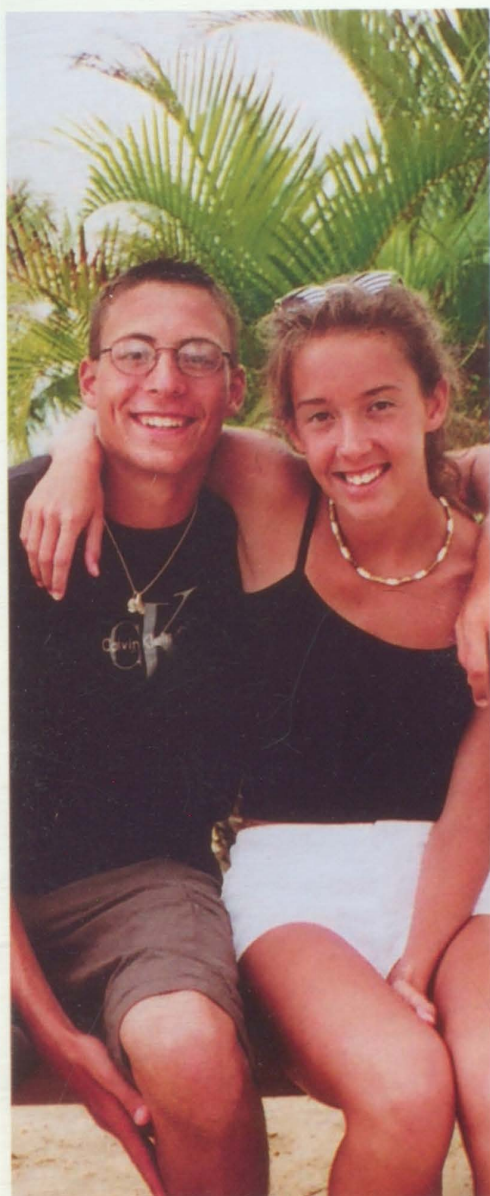

Making a commitment in high

Sophomores Christine Gettemy and Joel Palko were truly an exception. "We were so close and we were best friends at the same time as being a couple," commented Christine.

Finding a lasting relationship in high school was not always so easy according to senior Amy West. "I think that love in high school is usually just puppy love. Later, it might develop into true love."

Whether or not any of them will ever take that walk down the aisle, at Greater Latrobe, a young Romeo has

"What's love got to do with it?"
Tina Turner

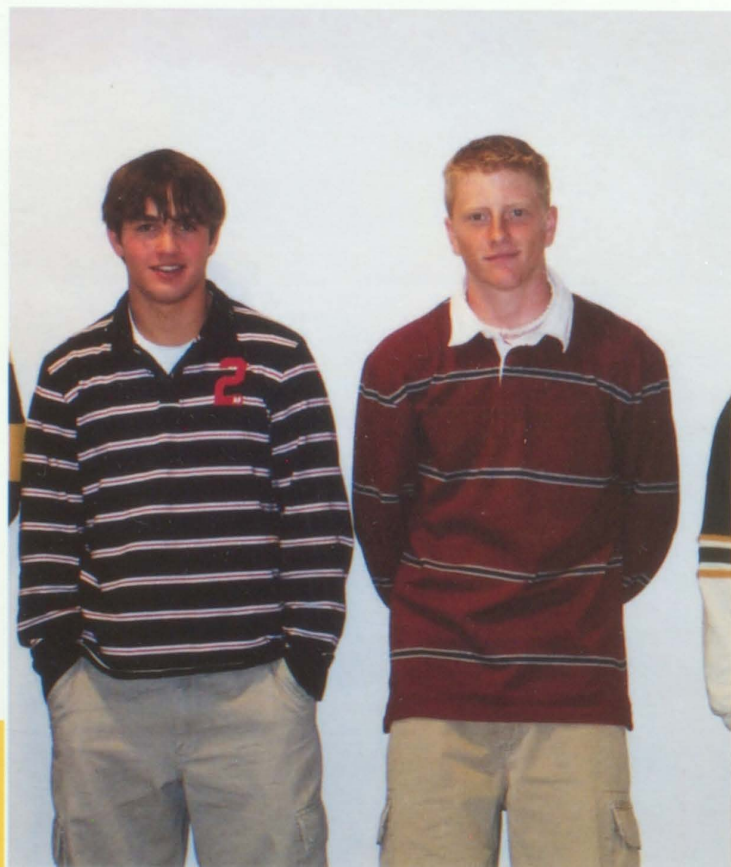

Juniors Seth Shrecongost and Jill Painter have a fun-loving relationship. Good friends sometimes made the best couples.

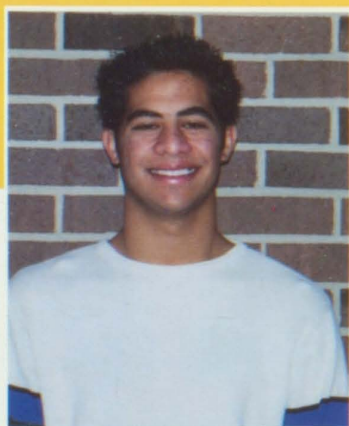

Senior Mike Skwara and Junior Tanya Mase hold on to more than their relationship. These two knew what they had and they intended to not let it go.

Move over Ralph Lauren, Greater Latrobe is coming through. Juniors Pat Bair and Ryan Flynn modeled polo shirts, a popular trend for male students.

Like the students of Greater Latrobe, shoes came in many different styles. Maybe shoe styles were reflections of student's personalities.

"I like my clothes. That's why I always wear them."
Junior Tim Armanious

"I personally think that you should wear whatever you're comfortable in, not whatever just looks good." Senior Meghan King

"One of my favorite trends for this year was fringe belts because they're cute." Sophomore Ashley Chedrick

"I don't really pay attention to trends, I just wear what's comfortable for me." Senior Kyle Schuyler

These stylish girls sport a "blast from the past." Peasant shirts were a big hit among the female students.

Senior Justin Congelio strikes a dashing pose. He has worn the same trend everyday of his high school career.

TRENDS

By: Samantha Hauger

You may have heard someone say that if you keep the clothes in your closet long enough, they'll come back in style. That saying had never been more accurate than this year. Long, flowing skirts, peasant shirts, and tons of suede and fringe were seen in the halls of GLHS. The "hippie" style of clothing was very popular. Junior Ashley Flack commented, "The trends today reminded me of my mother's style, but I still kind of liked them!" Another trend for the ladies this year was the ever popular scrunched hair. Tons of girls used mousses or sprays to give their hair an extra bounce.

"I'm in with the in crowd."
Dobie Gray

Many girls found that scrunching their hair was a real time saver. "Scrunching my hair gave me twenty more minutes to sleep," exclaimed junior Ashely Cooper.

Another must-have style for this year was flip-flop sandals. Flip-flops were seen in all styles and colors, from sporty to stylish. Senior Stefanie Robb added, "I would have loved to wear flip-flops, but I was too short even with platforms." However, flip-flops were not just a big hit with girls; guys were also seen wearing comfortable sandals, especially during the hot summer months. Birkenstocks were also as popular as ever this year with guys and girls alike. With the ever-changing styles, who knows what will be next!

It's cool to have excess baggage at Greater Latrobe. These purses were definitely a trend you wanted to be caught carrying around.

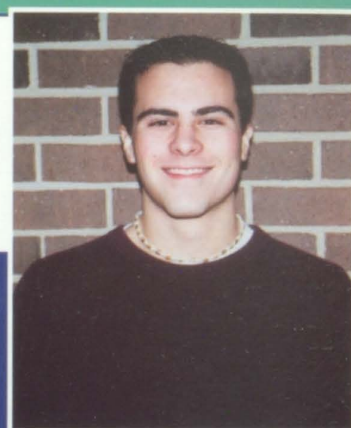

Scrunch it up! Scrunching hair was not only fashionable, but took a short amount of time.

"Having a job after school can be stressful, but it has its rewards."
Senior Stacey Dominick

"High school students should not have jobs because they should be concentrating on school. Education will take them further than money in their futures."
Junior Katie Liu

"Children are the future of the world so this summer I decided to be a counselor and mold the future of the world."
Senior Ian Sayre

"Jobs are ways to express yourself. You should pick a job you enjoy."
Junior Mark Arbore

Juniors Maria Sylvania and Jeremy Wano take a break from the heat of a long day. Lasting friendships were made this summer by the students working at Idewild Park.

King of the grill, senior Jonse Diethorn takes cooking to a new level. Jobs gave students new responsibilities, along with some extra cash.

Seniors Sean Karr and Meghan King and junior Pete Elers take a break from blowing the whistle to smile for the camera. Lifeguarding was a popular summer job, and you could soak up some sun, too!

Senior Katie Campbell shows us that she's no chicken as she serves up finger lickin' chicken at Popeyes. Katie got her tips in nuggets.

JOBS

By: Stefanie Robb

Pesos, Yen, Ruble, all these words mean money. Money was what it was all about. A job was the best way of obtaining the treasures. From Dairy Queen to farming, part-time jobs played a major role in earning a little cash. Some students enjoyed spending the money they had earned on clothes, cd's, and food. Others saved up for cars or for college. Every student had a unique job that suited them the best.

Senior Jodi Torock replied, "My job as being a lifeguard at St. Vincent College was not always the best thing. I had stressful experiences, including a young child that was bleeding severely which I had to clean up."

"Have to catch an early train, got to be at work by nine, and if I had an air-o-plane, I still couldn't make it on time"
The Bungles

Sometimes, the best things about jobs were the friendships that were made. Junior Lauren Coder added, "I made a lot of friendships while working at Dairy Queen this past summer."

Many students have bizarre jobs that we found rare these days among teenagers. For instance, sophomore Nicholas Kerr explained, "This may sound funny, but I worked at Wetherton's Farm. It was actually a dangerous, unenjoyable job to have. I almost had a hay bale fall on my head."

As you can finally see, each job, whether fun, difficult, or dangerous, supplied the money that played a major part in student's life.

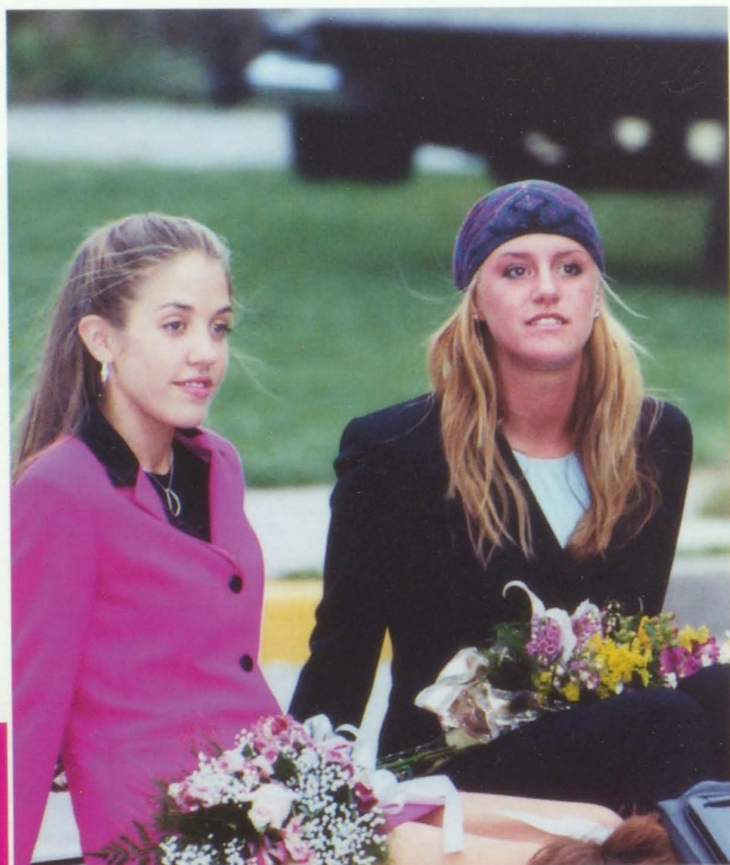

Do you want fries with that? Senior Kristen Wasyluk served with a smile while working at Popeyes.

Senior Chrystal Pershing helps teach softball for Little League. Using their talents to help others was a great job opportunity for students.

Sophomores Amy Gardner and Mikaela Sarnerse take in the moment. The Homecoming court was one of true "unforgettable" beauty.

Senior Nina Snizaski gives her dazzling smile to the crowd. Nina was crowned as the 2003 homecoming queen.

"It was fun being on homecoming court. I got to meet a lot of nice girls. Thanks to everyone who voted for me."
Senior Megan Parke

"Homecoming rocked! I love Latrobe's student body. You guys treated me like royalty." Senior Connie Vale

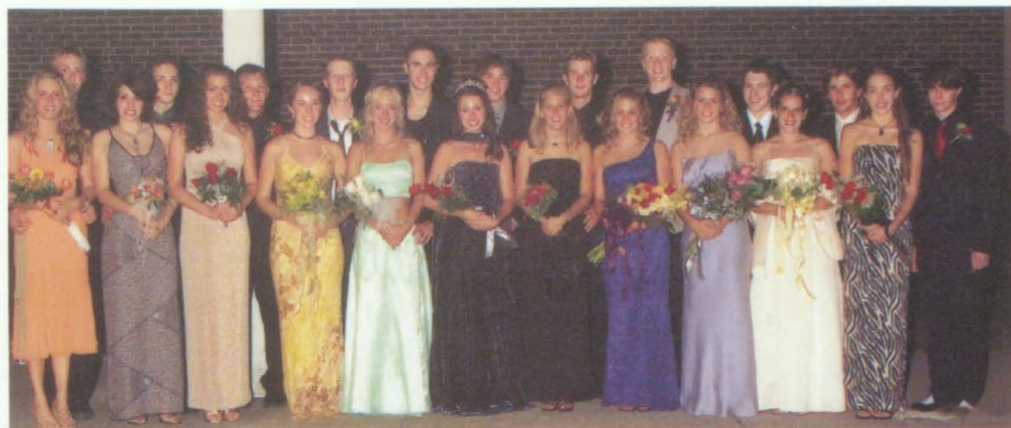

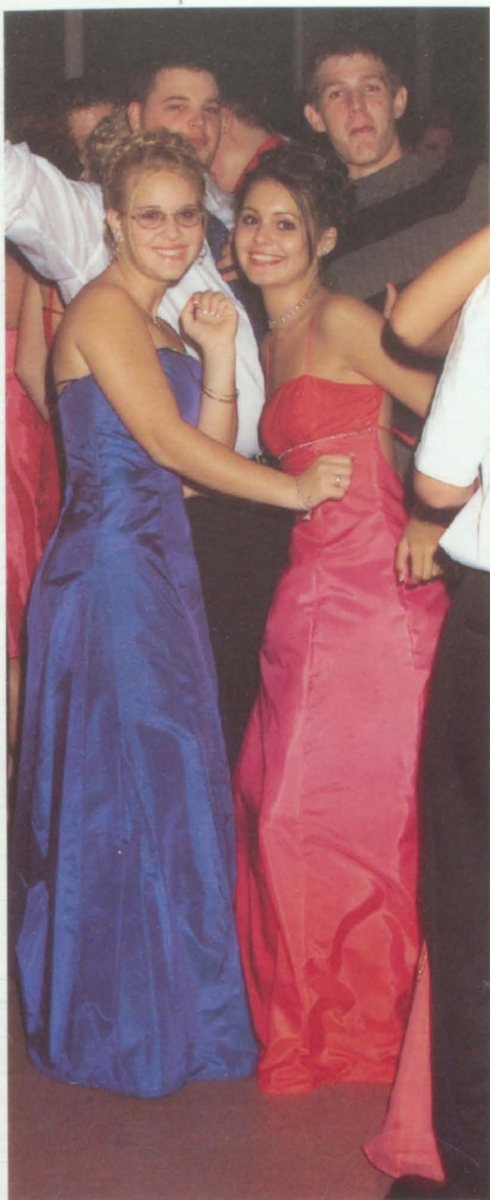

"It was a really big honor and a fun experience. Thanks so much, everyone!" Senior Ashley Gardner

"Homecoming this year was great! I had such a blast with all of my friends for my senior Homecoming!" Senior Sarah Davin

The 2002 Greater Latrobe Senior High Homecoming court. These lovely ladies were all voted onto the Homecoming court by their peers Dancing the night away. The romantic atmosphere made it an "unforgettable" evening for all.

An Unforgettable Night

By: Jenell Wano

Homecoming festivities started off as excited students from various clubs marched in the parade on October 4th. Club members spent much time and effort perfecting their floats to show off as the band and cheerleaders led the enthusiasm to cheer the Wildcats to victory. Different themes were displayed in the parade. The Spanish club marched as they sang Shakira's hit "Whenever, Wherever".

"I really enjoyed working with Mrs. Ryder and the other students on the Spanish float. I also enjoyed being in the parade," said junior Lauren Brant.

Members of the 2002 Homecoming court shined as they rode in the parade along with the floats. "I felt honored that my classmates would nominate me, and I consider it a privilege!" junior Ashley Baughman exclaimed.

After much anticipation the day of the dance finally arrived. This year's theme was "Unforgettable", and to many it was.

"The atmosphere was better than Junior High dances," commented junior Brandon Stephenson. Students from all grades agreed that the dance seemed enjoyable and easy going. After all the hard work of finding a date, shopping for that perfect dress, Homecoming 2002 was definitely "Unforgettable".

"Unforgettable in every way."

Natalie Cole

Smile! Sophomore Jamie Donahue and senior Joe Quinn take a break from dancing for a picture.

This group of seniors smiles for the camera at the gazebo in Ligonier. Getting good pictures was crucial at any high school dance.

Around Latrobe

"Who are the people in your neighborhood," Mister Rogers

A couple of years ago my family and I were vacationing down in Virginia, and a man from our hotel approached us. The "Arnold Palmer Motors" license plate had caught the Texas native's eye. "Do you know Arnold Palmer?" the man said, "because he's a world famous golfer." It really made a person stop and think about all the things that made Latrobe so unique. Arnold Palmer was certainly not the only famous person to walk the streets of town, Latrobe was also Fred Rogers' hometown. And it wasn't just the people who made Latrobe so great, but also the products found here. From Rolling Rock beer to Dino's wings, Latrobe was just bursting with a wide variety of well known products. In addition to all of the famous products found in Latrobe, there were also many great cultural items that got there start right here in this very town.

Strickler's Drug Store was the home of the first banana split, which is a very well-known and a tasty treat. And the Latrobe Memorial Stadium was the birthplace of professional football. It was important to remember our roots because Latrobe was more than just the town where we went to high school; it was the place where we all grew up.

We'd like to dedicate this book to Mr. Fred Rogers, a man who not only influenced our neighborhood, but neighborhoods everywhere.

THE MOZART HALL

If you're looking for good food and a great time The Mozart Hall is the place for you. The Mozart Hall was actually the oldest building in Latrobe.

LATROBE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Need to check out a book, do some research, or get online? Latrobe Public Library was just one of Latrobe's little treasures and it provided the whole town with a fountain of knowledge.

ARNOLD PALMER REGIONAL AIRPORT

Ready to take flight? The local airport in Latrobe was recently changed to Arnold Palmer Regional Airport, which recognized Latrobe's own famous golfer.

DISALVO'S STATION

Need some good food fast? Not only could you get a great meal at DiSalvo's station, but you could also catch a train. Well almost. DiSalvo's Station was the only restaurant with a real train going through it.

DINO'S WINGS

Where will you find all of Latrobe on Monday and Tuesday nights? At Dino's! Dino's wings were the best tasting wings in all of Western Pennsylvania.

Check Out What's Inside

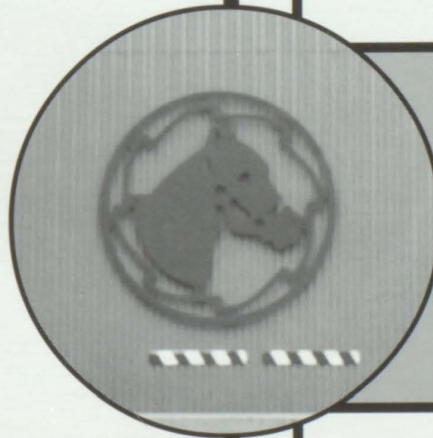

LATROBE AREA HOSPITAL

Many of the students attending Latrobe High School volunteer at the hospital. The hospital was a great place for students to learn all about medical careers and serve the community.

KENNAMETAL

Kennametal is a worldwide provider of steel and other mechanical parts. Kennametal was also a great place for students to Intern once they were out of college.

ROLLING ROCK BREWERY

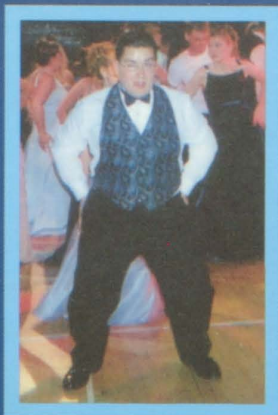

Rolling Rock beer was well known all over the country, and to think it was made right here in little old Latrobe.

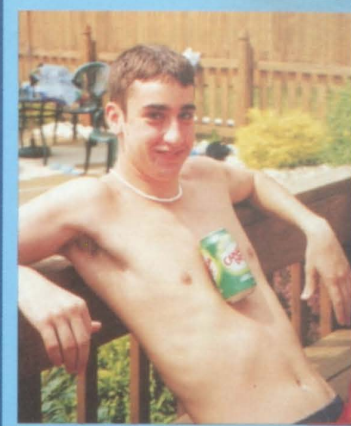

PLAYLAND

From slides to swings Playland is the perfect place to bring out the kid in you. Playland provided many children in Latrobe with a safe and fun place to play.

Senior Showcase

In the five years she has taken care of her horses and the four years that she has ridden them, senior, Becky Zeltner feels it has been worth it. With the intense competitions, she has the trophies to prove her excellence.

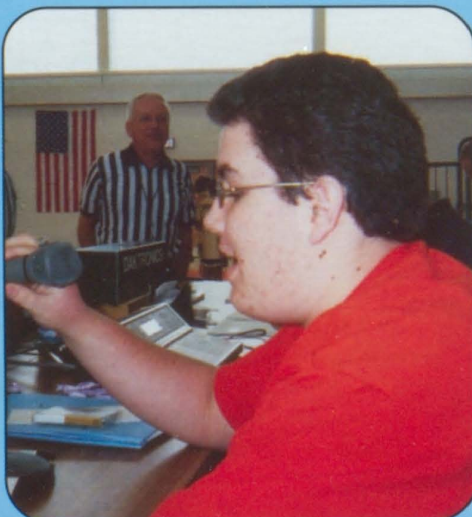

Senior Raina Kellerman has been involved in Civil War Reenactments since age 11, due to the influence of her older sister. Awards need not matter, Raina's main objective is for the people to enjoy the show. After high school, she plans to keep acting until she is physically not able to anymore.

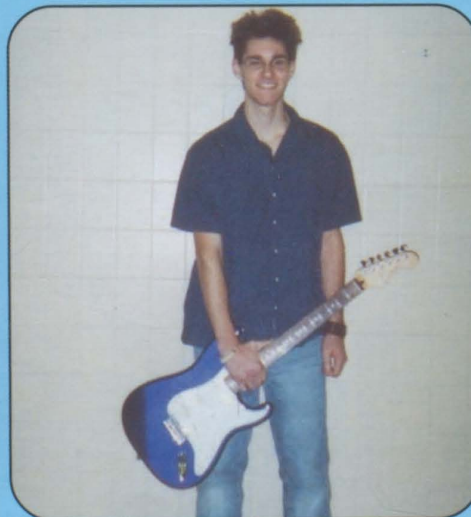

Imagine moving to a new school in a different country. Sound difficult? Well, Jackeline Hernandez Villa Jobos, an exchange student from Costa Rica, took the challenge and became a student at QLSHS to learn about our language and culture.

Following his idol, Mike Longe, senior Nathan Decanter began sports announcing for the boys' and girls' basketball games last year. Although he hasn't gotten much recognition, Nathan enjoys what he does. It doesn't get any better than cheering with the cheerleaders while on the mic.

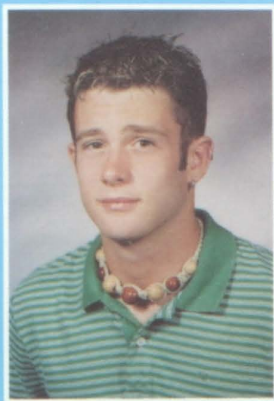

Austin Simon has been involved with wood shop for two years, and since he has made many things. He often wondered what it would be like to build a guitar. It took him four months to complete it. He is pictured here with another guitar that he re-wired.

Seniors Mike Pecher and Aaron Malik get their groove on at a Jr. high dance. Many high school girls found themselves wondering if their guy friends had made any progress with their dance moves since Jr. High.

Nicole Vallorani, Tara Piper, and Nicole Sacca gather at a friend's house and goof off. It was amazing to see how much people had changed since junior high.

Juniors Jamie Gruss and Kent Huang spend some quality time together in the cafeteria. During lunch, students got a chance to unload all the stress of the morning and share the time with their nearest and dearest friends.

Junior Karyl Piper bundles up for a gym class full of winter fun. Gym class gave students the opportunity to get in shape, make new friends, and experience new things.

OPINION

*Junior Erik Christianson:
"The majority of professional athletes get paid too much. Baseball players play more frequently during the week than most other sports, like football, and should receive more credit then they (baseball) do."*

Relatively Speaking

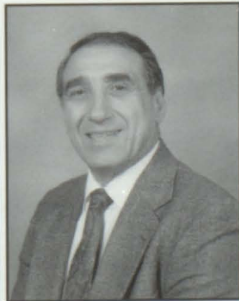

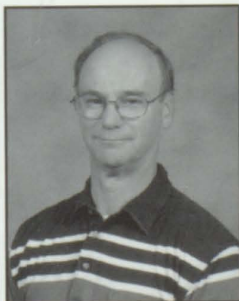

By: Laura Meyer

Here's the scenario; you were sitting in class, listening to your teacher go on and on about something really boring and you think to yourself, "I am so glad I'm not related to him." But, contrary to popular belief, having a parent as a teacher was not all that bad.

Many students in high school were in this situation and it didn't seem to bother them...at least not that much. Sadie DiMuzio had her dad, Mr. DiMuzio, for chemistry this year. When asked if she was worried about having him as a teacher, Sadie responded, "At first I thought it would be different, but it turned out to be beneficial." Although Sadie did not mind having her dad for class, she did say she tried not to make a wrong move in his class.

This opinion was shared by seniors Nathan Struempf and Matt Makoski. Not only do both of these students see their mothers in school everyday, they each have younger siblings to add to the family mix, and even more so, have a parent as a coach.

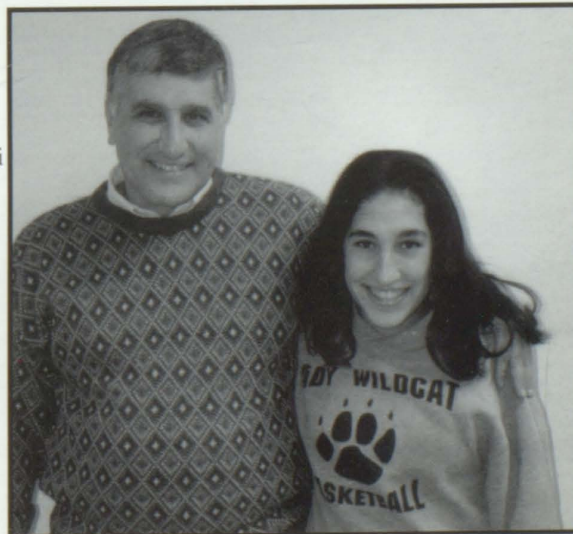

Although Matt's dad was not a teacher like his mom, Mr. Makoski was actually the Latrobe Hockey coach. Matt played an avid role on the hockey team. Nathan also had the pleasure of being coached by his mom, who not only teaches, but resided as both the girls' and boys' tennis coach. When around his mom, Nathan claimed, "I have to check my emotions more." Matt stated, "I have to watch what I say." In both cases though, neither student seemed to mind seeing their parents throughout the typical school day.

In With the New

By: Amy West

Everyone knew that being a new student was difficult to say the least, but have you ever wondered how it felt to be a new teacher? Many people underestimated what really went into being a teacher. These six teachers showed their dedication despite all the hardships that went with being a new teacher.

What could be better than coming back to your old Alma Mater for a job? Ask Mr. Scaffardi or Mrs. Hager-Sigler and they would tell you that nothing beats that. Mr. Scaffardi, a social studies teacher, attended Greater Latrobe before graduating from Duquesne University. Mrs. Hager-Sigler came back here from California and now enjoys her job as a guidance counselor. She loved to work with high school kids because she got to wear many different hats. Mr. Scaffardi previously taught at Derry...yes Derry, and if he got the chance to do anything for a day, you would have found him on the Olympic podium accepting a gold medal for winning the marathon.

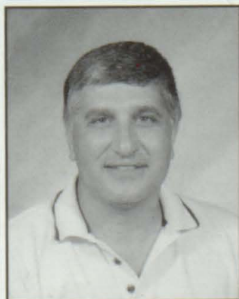

Not all teachers came back to their hometown to teach, but some stayed close, at least the same state. Mrs. Bryner, a former Vanderbilt resident, taught mathematics at Greater Latrobe. She attended Waynesburg College for her Bachelor of Science and then received her masters at WVU. She decided to accept the job at Greater Latrobe because, "The Latrobe School District is a very progressive district in terms of technology and it maintains a high standard of academic excellence." Mr. Saveikis grew up in the Pittsburgh town of McKee's Rocks. He had loved history all of his life, thanks to his father and the countless John Wane movies. At 6'8" he was a basketball star all his life, he now coached the Lady Wildcats. His favorite part of being a history teacher was developing lessons for students that made history interesting, tying it in with their everyday lives.

Starting a job at the beginning of the year wasn't as difficult as starting right in the middle. Mr. Evans and Miss Godor did that last year. Mr. Evans had been interested in health and fitness all his life. He felt that starting in the middle of the year was difficult only because the students were used to different rules and different activities. He got through it with the help of his role model, Mr. Basciano, who makes him want to be an excellent teacher, but he knows he will never compare because Mr. Basciano is much, much, older, AND wiser. Miss Godor didn't feel that it was too hard to start in the middle of the year except for the fact that she had no summer break to prepare. The staff helped her out a ton though.

Whether you started teaching in the beginning of the year or the middle, being a new teacher was not easy. It took dedication and commitment to prepare lessons and just plain show up with a smiling face everyday. Many people didn't realize exactly what it took to be a teacher. Next time you see these teachers in the halls make them feel welcome with a smile or a quick hello because remember they were new here, too.

Ch- Ch- Ch- Changes

By: Allicia Smetak

Were there similarities between the students of the seventies and the students of today? The only logical way to answer this question was to interview the teachers, who taught during the seventies...and surprisingly at Latrobe, seven teachers still reside here who did just that.

After talking to these teachers, it was discovered that this was all just a matter of opinion. One teacher may have believed that we had lost our respect for authority, while another might have disagreed. Surprisingly enough, when questioned, the teachers did agree, to an extent that the styles have stayed the same due to a cycle of trends. But, more had changed than just trends. Most teachers said that the students of today had more issues to deal with. According to Mrs. Ryder, "Students today have more to deal with concerning drugs and alcohol." Another difference found was that the students of the seventies were usually involved in school activities. Now it was more common to find high schools students with jobs. This was not as typical in the seventies according to Mr. LoCascio because, "Students did not have cars." Change was unavoidable no matter who you were or what you were doing. Mr. Hull summed it all up when he said, "Time changes, not the students themselves. Kids just learn to adapt."

Teacher Quotes

Mr. LoCascio: "Students have become more expressive in the sense that they are a little more free with what they tell you."

Mrs. Herrod: "They (students) have a lack of respect for authority. They want everything for nothing."

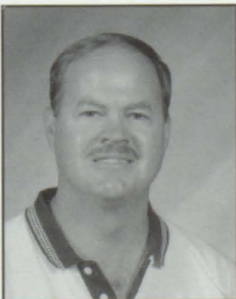

Mrs. Conlin: "The girls have become as vulgar as the boys."

"Students should spend as much time volunteering as they do mutilating their bodies."

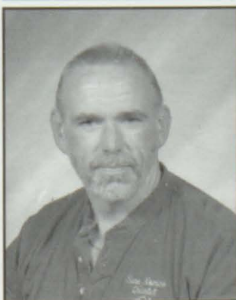

Mr. Tourre: "Students are spread too thin. They are involved in a variety of activities instead of committing themselves to one specific activity."

Ms. McMahon: "Students still work as hard as the students in the 70's."

Mrs. Ryder: "Students stay the same but the styles repeat."

Laptops Make Learning Fun

By: Ashley Flack

Technology was taking over our world. Here, at Greater Latrobe Senior High School, we were trying to make the transition easier. Laptop computers were issued to each student in the beginning of the 2002-2003 school year. Because of this, many teachers altered their teaching plans in order to incorporate the use of these laptops. Many students were also using them to make note-taking easier, and to lessen the everyday hand cramp. Mr. Andrighetti felt that, "They provide an excellent learning and teaching opportunity for students and teachers to achieve on-time learning."

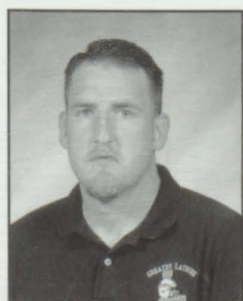

With the ability to get online, we could see what was happening in today's world, whereas books were out dated. Mr. Pirano also felt that, "Laptops extend the four walls of the classroom and take the students into a virtual learning environment that never existed before."

Net schools advisor, Mrs. Pynos stated, "We are still new in the process, but I think things are going very well for where we are at so far." "We've only just begun," added Mr. Cameron.

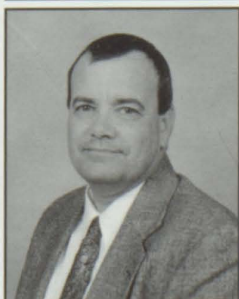

On the other hand, many students also dislike the computers. Games were often found on the computers and were also played during class instead of taking notes. "Thanks to these (laptops), I'm failing," laughed senior Billy Mulheren.

Other students just did not like the added weight. Sophomore Amy Gardner said, "I don't mind the laptops, but it just adds to the stack of book I have." Many other students had several problems with them. Many teachers also noticed that not many of the students carry them with them at all times.

In all fairness, we only had just begun. Five years down the road, students would have a major advantage leaving this school with the ability of knowing how to work a computer. Technology was taking over the world and computers are a vital piece of that process. Once students proceed into the "real world" they will find that the knowledge of computers may be the deciding factor in whether or not they get the job they really want.

Students complained about the difficulty of classes already, so why would someone deliberately subject him or herself to an AP or advanced class? Senior Jessica Sarnese answered this question, "By taking AP classes, now I think it will put me ahead in college because I will be used to the work given, the grading scale, and the way the classes are taught." The teachers seem to agree that AP classes, which stood for Advanced Placement classes, helped students prepare for college.

Ms. Kniff taught AP Physics for four years. She admitted that this class pushed her students. "The course is taught at the college level so the work involved is also at the college level," she said.

Most of the courses at Latrobe gave the students information and then tested them on the information they retained. AP classes took it further. There was more work, problem solving, and the students had to apply their knowledge to new situations and life applications. Students realized that extra time was needed to be dedicated to advanced classes. "I need to set aside time during the week and sometimes weekends where I intend to study only those subjects," commented sophomore Melissa Nauman.

Due to the strenuous curriculum, it was certain high levels of stress were placed on the students to perform well. This doubled if the student participated in activities. Junior Amanda Hewitt participated in cross-country, swimming, and track. Taking AP Chemistry and Honors English, Amanda never had a second to rest. "I prioritize. It is difficult, but when you enjoy sports as much as I do, you learn to adapt. I use every spare moment of time in school to do my homework and I try to manage my time well," she said.

Perhaps senior Tim Leonard had the toughest schedule in the school. This year alone he enrolled in AP Spanish, AP English, AP Calculus, and Capstone Honors Science. Not only was his schedule grueling, but he was also a member of the swimming and men's volleyball teams. "Playing sports and doing well in academics is difficult regardless of the few extra hours after practice to get everything done," Tim stated.

AP classes certainly were a challenge. In fact, AP Spanish teacher, Mrs. Ryder, summed it all up in five small words; "AP classes, kick it up a notch!"

The swim team keeps their grades "afloat" by studying before practice. It was difficult for students to manage their time when they played a sport.

Scholar Athletes

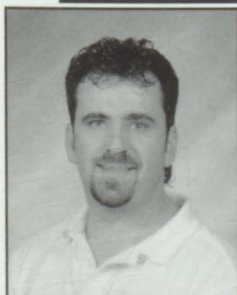

By: Sadie DiMuzio

An eight hour school day. Three hour practices. Long bus rides. Hours of homework. Minimal time for sleep. For scholar athletes, these concepts occurred nearly everyday during the school year. The pressures of academics and athletics took their toll on a majority of students in high school. Sometimes, there was not enough time in one day to complete what needed to be done. This was why using time wisely benefited scholar athletes the most. Senior Jess Sarnese stated, "Time management is the most important thing when trying to be successful in academics and athletics. Homework is obviously more important than practice."

At times, it was often difficult to keep school and sports separate. After a long day of school and athletic games the day before, some walked into school the next day as zombies. There was always a point where balancing all these priorities became overwhelming, and many students knew that this came with the territory of deciding to play sports in high school. Even teachers who were coaches knew what students were dealing with, especially since the same pressures were obvious to them. Girls' basketball coach and history teacher, Mr. Saveikis believed that, "Too much pressure is put on student athletes to succeed and they sometimes miss out on being kids."

Even though these pressures existed, experiences from involvement in athletics would help students in the future, even if sports were not a factor. Competing in a team sport taught a great amount of self-discipline to students. Athletic director and varsity baseball coach, Mr. LoCascio explained, "It shows them responsibility for themselves and being responsible for their teammates as well. Students will remember what they were taught as they go on and will become better people in the process."

In some sports, missing classes for early bus departures was another added stress. Student athletes were held accountable for missed assignments. Biology teacher and track coach, Dr. Wnek commented, "My 11th and 12th period classes are AP Biology. They tend to get caught up quickly when missing for sports. However, when I am out of class, I give assignments that students will be able to complete individually or with the help of another student." Whether the participant in the sport was a student or teacher, both knew that the only way to have success was to use time management skills and taking responsibility for what needed to be done at all times.

Going the Extra Mile

By Sadie DiMuzio

With activities ranging from the Homecoming dance to sub sales, the members elected to Student Council had their hands full this year. Commenting on the Homecoming festivities, junior Macey Taylor explained, "Homecoming was an annual event that Student Council sponsored. We all came together and tried our best to make it a success." The hard working members collaboratively came up with numerous ideas for fundraisers and school events throughout the year, including sub sales, Candy Cane sales, as well as the Sadie Hawkin's Dance. A few select members were fortunate enough to attend a state conference with other selected students from other schools throughout the state. Having attended the conference, senior Neil Churman commented on the benefits and perks from the trip. "The conference provided a substantial amount of good suggestions and ideas to improve our school's Student Council. We were also lucky enough to listen to several excellent speakers, including Governor Ed Rendell." Whether it was a local meeting or a conference miles away, the Student Council members took pride in their dedication to increase the success of the events held at Greater Latrobe. Sophomore Julie Pennesi commented, "The fact that we represented our fellow students and made lasting friendships in the process will be beneficial for all of us some day." No matter what the event, the members of Student Council proved their teamwork and determination throughout the school year as assisted in the numerous goals they accomplished.

A "L.O.T." To Lead

By Ashley Flack

The door of opportunity was opened to high school students through the Leaders of Tomorrow Club. Not only did they serve the community, they also made new friends in the process. Secretary Katie Campbell agreed, "The club was a great opportunity to give back to the community and educate others on the affects of drugs and alcohol." The club did this through activities such as "Red Ribbon Week" and "Prom Promise". During "Red Ribbon Week", the students promoted drug and alcohol free lifestyles by many different means. Every morning during homeroom, candy was passed out along with drug free messages. Red ribbons were tied to each antenna of the students' vehicles. Other activities that the students participated in were "Breakfast With Santa" and "Candle Lighters". Both of these were performed during the Christmas season. Students spent an afternoon wrapping Christmas gifts for the needy. They then lit candles in memory of loved ones. Vice Principal and advisor Georgia Teppert said, "I think it gave students who were drug and alcohol free the opportunity to practice their beliefs and encourage other youth in the community to remain drug and alcohol free as well." Many students agreed with the club's beliefs. Ashley Argenta enjoyed the feeling of helping others and promoting drug awareness. Vice President Laura Meyer commented, "Leaders gave me the chance to meet several different people." This club gave students the opportunity to interact with one another. It also became the basis of many new friendships. Leaders of Tomorrow opened many doors to students. Not only did they gain a knowledge of reasons to stay drug and alcohol free, but they passed it on to others. Being involved in the community and the school, students made a significant difference. Hard working, as well as enjoyable, the Leaders club grew with each passing year.

Interact and the Gift of Giving: One Group Caring for the Less Fortunate

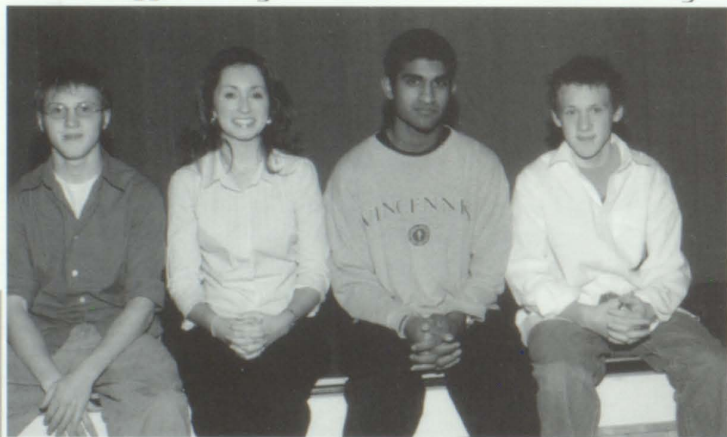

By Ryan Ciocco

Interacting with the community, helping with school events, promoting student involvement, this magic happened within the popular and efficient club, Interact. Interact strengthened participation within the Greater Latrobe community. Mrs. Keyser, sponsor of the club claimed, "Interact helped to develop responsible, well-rounded students." Some of these accomplished students expressed their enthusiasm in Interact. Senior Mike Ferrari said, "It was an interesting time. It opened my eyes and gave me a new perspective of life." Interact not only provided great opportunities to meet people, but the students felt good about reaching out to their community. Junior Macey Taylor commented, "Interact gave me the opportunity to work with the community and represent my school." There was a reward in these students' caring deeds. Senior Katie Garcia stated, "Make a Friend Day made me realize how lucky I am to be healthy." Interact brought the community together to share their great ideas and helpful service.

National Honor Society's Role in the Community

By Laura Meyer

National Honor Society was considered by many a group of gifted intellectuals. One thing that came to mind was their Toronto trip and the fundraising involved. Fundraisers included pie, wreath, and cookie dough sales. In Toronto, they attended musicals, had great meals, and stayed at fancy hotels. What was sometimes overlooked was the large amount of community service projects in which the club participated. NHS did everything from tutoring to book drives. Tutoring was one of the biggest projects. The members participated in Big Brothers Big Sisters, Study Buddy, and Junior High tutoring. Senior Angela Metz stated, "I tutored for three years and it was great to help the kids. I loved the feeling I got knowing that I helped someone." Senior Tim Leonard had the same feeling when he donated books to the book drive, "It gave me a sense of satisfaction knowing that I was able to make someone's life better." The drive was very successful with a huge cardboard box filled with books. Ringing the bell for the Salvation Army was the Society's December project. Although it was cold, there were several students who volunteered. The kettle was exchanged for a new one because it was full. Senior Emily Leone stated, "It was great to help collect money that was used locally, plus, I gained a new respect for the volunteers who spent hours in the cold for a good cause." The members of National Honor Society proved to be outstanding members of this community. As advisor Mrs. Pompelia put it, "No one ever said no. There were people volunteering for every project." This organization was an excellent way for honorary students to give back to the community.

Too Good To Be Forgotten

By Meghan McHenry

Long hours of studying, dedication, and participation earned a select few students the honor of being inducted into the Spanish National Honor Society. Not only did this honor require the above named attributes, but each student earned A's in Spanish for three consecutive quarters. Students took an active role in participating in class as well. Junior Erik Christianson said, "Being inducted into SNHS was an honor. I felt a sense of pride and accomplishment." Selected students agreed it took years of hard work and dedication to excel in the Spanish language and to be inducted into SNHS. Selected students continued to show their enthusiasm and dedication to the club by participating in events. Spanish Club had their share of activities this year.

They took part in the traditional Christmas caroling at Latrobe Area Hospital. Club members passed out carnations to elderly patients and toys to the Children's Ward. In April, they went to Mallorca, a restaurant on the Southside of Pittsburgh, to experience a Spanish meal. Another annual event was the Homecoming parade. They placed second this year, but that didn't bring down the club members' spirits. "I had the best time at the parade because it was interesting learning a new Shakira song and 'Running with the Bulls', commented sophomore Margaret Florendo. Spanish club was a great way to bring fellow Spanish students together. Senior Michelle Coder stated, "Spanish Club was always calm and laid back and the 'Running of the Bulls' in this year's Homecoming parade was a blast!" Students will have fond memories of times spent in Spanish Club and SNHS.

The Language of Love

Parlez-vous francais? Members of the French Club and French National Honor Society participated in many activities throughout the year. To gain the prestigious honor of being inducted into FNHS, students were required to maintain an A average in French III or higher for three consecutive quarters. It was a challenge which several students accomplished over the course of the year. Being a part of French Club enabled many students to take part in several cultural experiences. Decorating the Homecoming float, which won first prize in the parade, was a thrill for French Club participants. Sophomore Sherrie Dunlap stated, "The Homecoming parade was a blast!" The French Club also took part in field trips to gain more knowledge of the poetic language. Members were able to go to French restaurants and see various French films. A main event that took place this year was raffling off a French cuisine dinner. Senior Christina Quicquaro added, "French Club was awesome! With all the field trips to Chez Gerard and Cleveland, it definitely was worth taking AP French." Junior Billy Palmer's overview of being a part of the French Club this year was, "French Club was like nothing else in our school. The experiences I had will never be forgotten." French Club allowed many students to get a glimpse at this fascinating culture.

Bring on the "Wurst"

"The most special part of German Club was the kinship that bound us together, the sacred and mystical aura that surrounded us all. I would have taken a bullet for German Club," remarked senior President Chaz Berret. Members enjoyed German Club for its well-known traditions. When asked her favorite German Club tradition, senior Michelle Coder responded, "The Burger King crowns." This year marchers donned with crowns paraded down the streets of Latrobe expressing both Wildcat and "Deutsch" pride. Sophomore Trevor Brubaker's favorite traditions were the field trips. Field trips were regarded as the epitome of the German experience. Students visited the Nationality Rooms at the Cathedral of Learning, located on the Pitt campus and and the Carnegie Museum of Art.

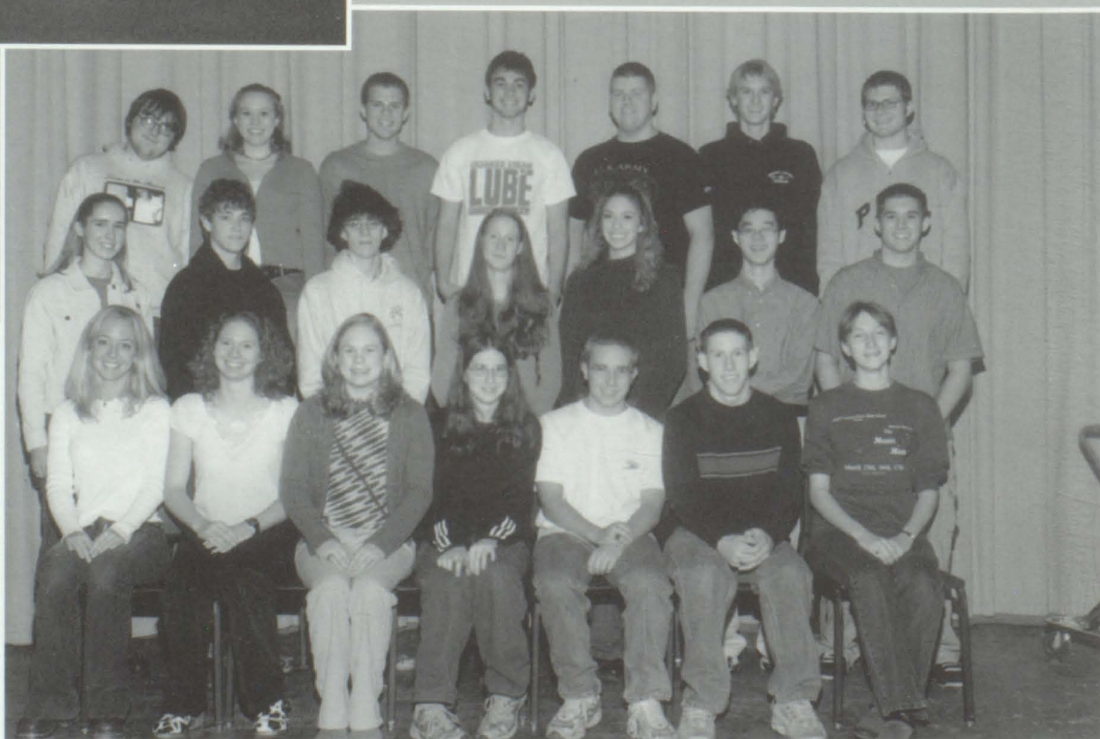

They went to the Carnegie Science Center, where they watched an Omnimax movie in German, and Max's Allegheny Tavern, where they sampled fine German cuisine. Members also took the biannual trip to Washington D.C. "German Club helped to expand my knowledge of the German culture," stated junior Bryce Nicely. Another infamous and monetarily important tradition of German Club was the selling of Advent calendars. Without this major sale, German Club could not have afforded the multitude of field trips taken throughout the year. In addition to German Club, the German elite were inducted into the German National Honor Society. This group was limited to activities due to the activeness of German Club. Officers sponsored an Angel Tree Child for Christmas. They held the annual inductions for those who maintained A's for three consecutive quarters. Whether German students participated in German Club, German NHS, or both, these students became an active part of the legendary tradition that was German Club.

Veni Vidi Vici

Senior and veteran to the GLSHS Latin program, Tommy Turnbull gave his promising words, "Facit id," or "Just do it." Even though Latin is not spoken around the world anymore, many students "just took it" at Greater Latrobe and enjoyed learning about the past of Rome. Latin taught students the history of the Roman Empire and the etymology of words. "Over the last three years I have learned a lot in Latin. It helped me with my other subjects," stated junior Ryan Flynn. Members of Latin National Honor Society were those who showed good citizenship and held a ninety percent in their Latin class throughout the year. These students were also members of the Junior Classical League. This club participated in activities such as food drives, the Special Olympics, and the Homecoming Parade where the club placed third. Students that were involved with the JCL had the chance to travel to Rome to expand their knowledge of Roman mythology and Roman emperors such as Caesar. "JCL was a great experience where I got to take trips and hangout with Veroni Broni outside of school," commented sophomore Nick Wasylik. Latin made a significant impact on the students of GLSHS. It had its great benefits and was loved by students. This cultural experience proved to be an opportunity for students to expand their understanding of different cultures. The memories they made will last a lifetime.

Art: At the Next Level

By Ashley Flack

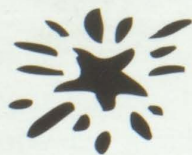

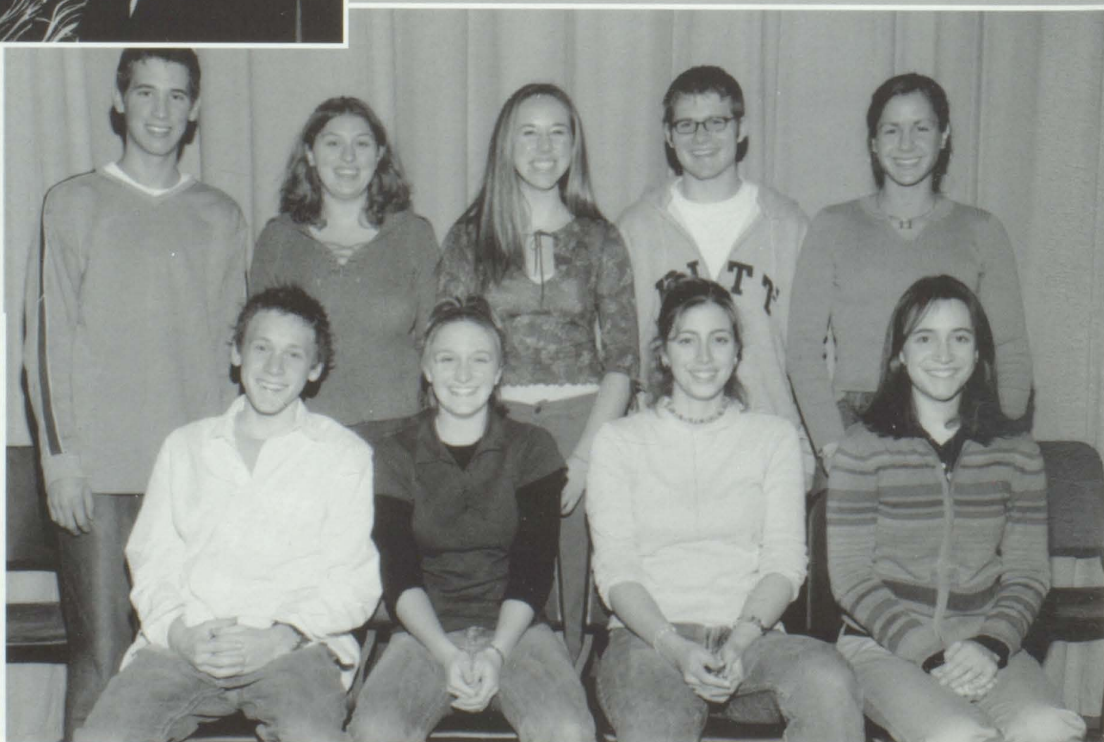

Many students at Latrobe were gifted with creative art skills. What did they do with them? How did they express their personalities? What rewards were given? National Art Honor Society rewarded students and helped them to make decisions about their lives. Senior Connie Vale was president of the club. Being an active member, she found that it provided an excellent opportunity for the group to exercise their capabilities. Students expressed themselves by painting windows in Pittsburgh to help spread Christmas cheer. A more familiar activity N.A.H.S. was responsible for was the annual Art Fair. They selected paintings and discussed the beauty within them. Then they held a school-wide survey in which students voted on their favorite painting. The chosen painting was purchased for display. "It gave us freedom to express ourselves and to use our creative talents," commented senior Michele Bush. Other students that had artistic talent but did not know where to direct it, figured it out through N.A.H.S. With field trips to the Andy Warhol Museum for example, students were able to see a variety of art. Junior Amber Donahue was not sure what lay in her future, but now with the help of N.A.H.S., she determined exactly where she is headed. Art class was much more than a class or a credit to these students. It was their calling that enabled them to freely express their innermost thoughts and ideas. They had the opportunity to take what they loved and apply it to their lives.

On a Higher Note

By Jonell Wano

G Sharp, Middle C, Do Re Me— These terms were expressed by a selected group of students who were a part of the Tri-M Music Honor Society. What did it take to be a part of the Tri-M? Senior Marlyn Ridge held the answer to this question, "In order to partake in Tri-M we had to be in an ensemble within the school and be selected for a district or county festival. We also had to perform or write a report for the induction ceremony. All of the members were talented and dedicated in their music." The Society also presented their arrangements for various local organizations. "We performed for the senior citizens of the community and spread the joy of music throughout Latrobe," commented junior Matt DeDiana. Senior Jodi Torrock added, "Tri-M was a great service organization. We participated in numerous musical performances. The group was filled with talent!" Tri-M members were praised for their remarkable talents. "Being a part of Tri-M was a nice opportunity for the school and community to see what the music students at Greater Latrobe do," stated senior Ashley Kessler. By offering their gift of music to others, the Tri-M Music Honor Society brought entertainment and delight to their audiences.

The "Key" to the Community

By Alanna Zuchelli

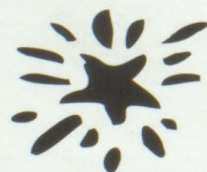

They did not form the biggest club, but the members of Key club had some of the biggest hearts. With only ten members, each one played an important role. "Key Club was an enjoyable organization that allowed students to interact with the community by participating in various community services," stated Vice President Michelle Coder. Giving time to the Salvation Army and donating food and clothing to the organization was one of their many tasks that helped the city of Latrobe. Another was the group's participation in fundraising for Aquinas, a local Catholic school, with candy sales. Key Club gathered to support the Special Olympics by bowling with handicapped children and adults. Senior Laura Fedor commented, "Key Club was a wonderful chance to go out and help the people who needed it." The group's interaction with the mentally and physically handicapped was truly inspirational. Moreover, many smiles and laughter were spread. The dedication of the Key Club members was the reason for the extravagant amount of joy. The giving did not stop there. The members went Christmas caroling at nursing homes and had a party for less fortunate children. Games were played, presents were opened, and even Santa Claus visited. Key Club also constructed floats for holiday themed parades. Sophomore Margaret Florendo expressed her enthusiasm, "We worked on a float for the Halloween parade and it was pleasurable to show off my artistic talent!" With help from the Key Club, our community's future looked a little brighter each day.

Experimenting With Science

By Samantha Hauger

For some of us, our science class was the most dreaded class of the day. But as the 30 science enthusiasts who made up this year's stellar Science Club proved everyone's tastes were different. These students were excited about science and stayed after school once a week to meet with each other. President Katie Liu and Vice President Chaz Berret helped to organize these meetings and plan events. Students involved in this club spent the majority of their time preparing for the Pennsylvania Science Olympiad held in March. In addition, an in-house Science Olympiad was held in late January. This was to help the students prepare and qualify for the upcoming Olympiad.

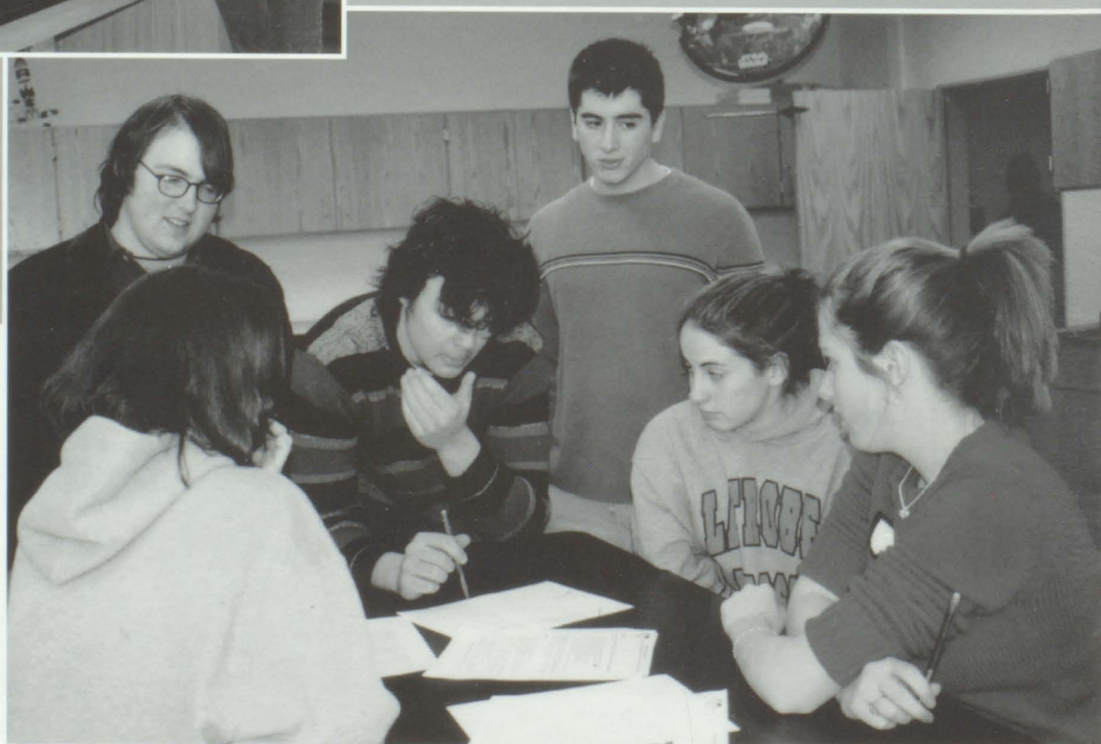

Science Club Officers: Treasurer Craig Tabita, Vice President Chaz Berret, President Katie Liu, Secretary Reem Hanna

Junior Geoff Burther explains a mathematical science problem to onlooking classmates. The assigned work was not always easy and often required getting help from another club member.

Junior Reem Hanna shared, "The Science Club was a lot of fun. We all shared similar interests and had fun interacting with one another." Students enjoyed this club because it gave them time to kick back with friends and have a good time in an educational environment. President Katie Liu agreed, "Science Club was a lot of fun and was a great opportunity for people interested in science to learn new things." Ms. Kniff also enjoyed interacting with the students and offered, "I enjoyed sponsoring the club because I got to know the students on a more personal level. Students had the opportunity to explore areas of science that were not included in the curriculum." Many students had a blast being members of this club and learning more about this stellar subject, one of their favorites.

The Work Behind the Letter

By Alanna Zuchelli

What is an athlete? To students at Latrobe, being an athlete meant dedication, teamwork, late night practices, and tough physical training. So what sets an athlete apart from a letterman? Senior Ryan Service put it best by saying, "A letterman is an athlete whom has strived to become the best player in their position for a sport. A letterman is the best a school has at that sport." The members of this club showed their dedication, teamwork, and love for their game. Besides giving endless hours to practice, the students helped the school and community. Senior Secretary Jamie Sutyak commented, "For an athlete to letter in a sport was an honor in itself. I felt that Letterman's Club gave students different ways to affiliate themselves in sports activities besides playing their sport." One of the most notorious jobs was selling programs at the football games. Junior Amber Donahue spoke on this topic, "Letterman's Club was great. I sold programs during the football season. Even though it was freezing cold, I still had fun!" Each Spring the Letterman's Club had its annual trash clean-up. With their bright orange jackets and rubber gloves, members searched around the school property for any type of debris. Most of the members participated and school grounds looked wonderful afterwards. Letterman's Club provided a way for scholar athletes to be recognized and also take part in improving the school. Sophomore Chris Hilty reminded those who wanted to join the club in the future, "Stay cool and work hard so you can be a letterman, too!"

"I'll Get By With a Little Help From My Crew"

By Julie Diorio

The secret to any good production was the people behind the scenes. However, those who spent hours constructing elaborate sets, setting and controlling the sound and lights, and making sure everything happened at the right moment hardly got the appreciation and recognition they deserved. This dedicated crew was responsible for creating this year's play set for "Who's Dying To Be A Millionaire" and the musical "Return to the Forbidden Planet". Countless hours were spent after school constructing the set, locating props, achieving the perfect lighting and much more. Crew demonstrated dedication in their going to great lengths to achieve a specific look for each show. "There were times when we did not finish a day's work until 10:30 or 11:00 at night," junior Nick Holnaider explained. The responsibility and hard work of the crew was phenomenal. Constructing such large sets was not always an easy task but with some creativity the members of Set Design and Stage Crew made it look flawless. Senior Stacey Dominick commented, "Stage Crew was a great way to express our originality." Props, sets, and lighting were the main components of the play and musical. Without them, the show would not have been able to go on. Their work went beyond the play and musical. These students were also the brains of technology behind each assembly. Though it was difficult to see them during the show, their hard work was certainly accounted for.

Enough With the Drama

By Kristie Moran

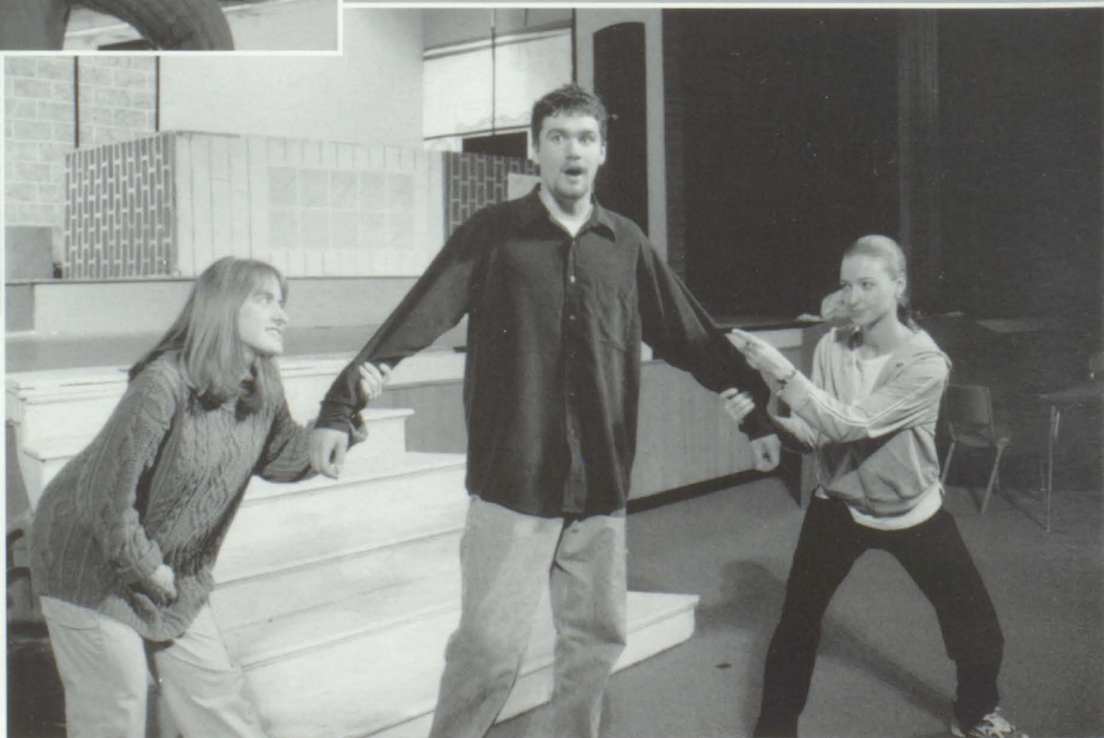

With lighting, sets, props, costumes, cast, crew, directions, cues, and more, plays and musicals were always a challenge to organize. To remedy this, Mrs. Duda and Mrs. Snyder collaborated to form the Drama Club. "Drama Club was magnificent," exclaimed Megan Stahl, a junior member, "It was a great opportunity to learn about all aspects of theater, something that was not always appreciated in our school." In the Drama Club, members attended workshops and learned how to organize a show both on and offstage. Though it was not yet an official club, they had many plans in the work for a children's theater, more workshops, publicity, fundraisers, summer classes, competitions, student-directed shows, as well as getting students internationally recognized by the International Thespian Society. Senior Marlyn Ridge was thrilled that there was finally "an organized group that could go see local shows and learn about their shared theater interests." The Drama Club, though its short term goal dealt mostly with improving the efficiency of Latrobe's performances, was also designed for students preparing for careers in the field later in their lives. They were able to acquire knowledge of all of the jobs that pertained to their main interest in addition to improving the skills needed to excel in that area. Drama Club was a wonderful new addition amongst Latrobe's large variety of clubs and organizations.

"Beans and Cornbread"

By Kristie Moran

Starting with less than five members at the introductory meeting and increasing to over twenty in a week, the Dinner Club became a popular club. Faculty advisor, Mrs. Maggoire had been pondering a way to "give students dining experiences and a time to relate with teachers on an informal basis." With the Developmental Assets as this year's disciplinary theme, Mrs. Maggoire thought a club that promoted student-teacher relationships while supporting local restaurants and trying new things had no better time to emerge. Even with all of her ideas, her plans weren't put into action until senior Heather Wuenschell joined her in the idea. "Every one likes to eat. Why not do it in a group and have fun?" Heather asked with a smile. The two planned meetings and spread the word. Although their first dinner was canceled, many gained interest and continued to join. Junior Kelsey Kenyon looked forward to "seeing the club reach more students and teachers and also exploring restaurants she didn't dine at regularly." Dinner Club really put some flavor into old traditions this year establishing a new way to enhance the dining experience.

Seniors Ashley Kessler, Heather Wuenschell and Brianne Winski wait to be seated at their favorite restaurant. Members of the Dinner Club were eager to meet with their teachers to enjoy a delicious meal.

Check Mate

By Megan Sasseo

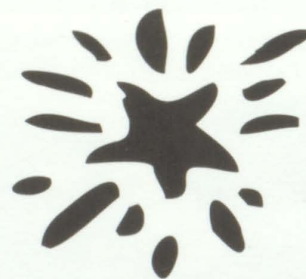

Many things in life require in depth strategy, great intellect, and enormous risk taking. But who would think that one playing the simple game of chess would need to possess these qualities? Senior Jason Skwara commented, "Chess guild, like communism, is misunderstood." Being one of the newer clubs in Greater Latrobe's plethora of activities, chess guild had come into its own by establishing itself with its members' love for the game of chess. Meeting once a week in the library after school, these dedicated students perfected their game. While the members of chess guild may have not shot a basketball or scored a touchdown, the game still demanded that its players had skill and the right mentality to go for the kill. Games often lasted for extended periods of time while each player strategically moved their pieces in order to set back or defeat the opponent. Although they did not compete against other schools, the competition amongst the club members served as motivation to become better chess players. With bright plans for the future, this year's club proved to have a great respect for the game and showed promise for a more involved club next year. CHECK MATE!

Coming to the Rescue:

Student Aides

By Stefanie Robb

Many students performed deeds of kindness every-day during school by volunteering their spare time to become student aides. Some students were willing to give up their study halls to help a teacher or to work in the office. Without the help of these aides, teachers and the office faculty would have been lost. Teachers were overwhelmed with work on a daily basis. Many chose aides to assist them with their work. Junior Brett Lloyd explained, "No other teacher in the entire school could have expected this work to be done for him or her. Helping Ms. Boyle was easy and in any case, I would do the extreme to help her." Teachers and their aides grew closer through daily interaction. Office aides proved to play important roles in the secretaries' and principals' lives. Miss Stewart, an office secretary, explains, "Our office aides were wonderful and helpful. I am not sure where I would have been without them. From running errands and filing excuses, everything would be piled up to the ceiling!" The aides performed such duties as delivering papers, finding students needed by the office, and making copies. Senior Lindsey Soltys added, "For the past two years as an office aid, I have grown closer with the staff members." Students also work in the Athletic Office taking care of the variety of tasks placed on them everyday. Both the students and the faculty were able to learn from one another and appreciate all that goes into running a school.

Senior LeAnne Jones happily files papers in the office. Many students with extra study halls were found here throughout the day.

Leading the Way Beginning Today

FBLA

By Ashley Bower

Who will run tomorrow's law firms, restaurants, day care centers, and construction companies? To find the answer you only had to look as far as the person sitting beside you. This year's F.B.L.A. (Future Business Leaders of America) organization was very successful. It benefited many people and the result was a very rewarding experience. F.B.L.A. helped out in many areas in the school. They completed service projects for the community and outside facilities. Many enjoyed being involved with a club that allowed them to take part in helping others. Some of F.B.L.A.'s fundraising and projects included state service projects, community activities, and school functions. Their first activity this year was volunteering at Overly's Country Christmas. Junior Ashley Argenta stated, "F.B.L.A. was a great club. The service projects we did were fun and educational, especially going to Overly's to help with the light display." Mrs. Butler and Mrs. Wade were the F.B.L.A. advisors and many thought that they made it a fun experience. In a sense, F.B.L.A. prepared students that were interested in a business career for real life. Sophomore Keri Matson commented, "It helped me develop skills that I'll need in the future." F.B.L.A. has grown in size and in spirit from previous years. Senior Colby Musik said, "With all of the service projects and educational experiences, there were many valuable lessons to be learned." The learning opportunities were endless in F.B.L.A. The club tied future aspirations with the actions of the present. Students took on a new view of the business world.

Having Fun While Learning?

By Megan Sasseo

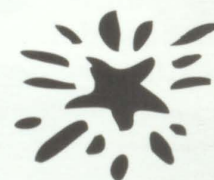

Who ever said learning couldn't be fun? For students on the Forensics team, learning was a fun activity they enjoyed doing. Sophomore Carly Hahn, who was a member of the forensics team said, "Forensics was a great organization for those who enjoyed acting, arguing, or even just talking. I learned speaking skills that will stay with me for life." Forensics had a great time competing and learning the fundamentals of public speaking. Senior James Fox, who was an essential part of both the Quiz League and the Forensics Team exclaimed, "Quiz League was great! Captain Chaz Berret was the best leader we've had and Mrs. Stayduhar was the best coach for Forensics. I learned a lot from her." Junior Haren Nayagan, who was a member of the Quiz League commented, "Quiz League was a great experience. We had an excellent team and captain. It was a good place to share knowledge and have fun doing it." With Mrs. Stayduhar and Miss Gillette as coaches, who didn't have fun? Quiz competitions were held at the University of Pittsburgh of Greensburg. Place winners were only awarded at the end of the tournament, but the Quiz League held on strong with a 6-0 record. All subjects were game in the competitions and there was no preparation for any of the events. Both the Forensic Team and the Quiz League were great ways to get out, have fun and meet new people.

in Other Words

By Ashley Flack

In the Greater Latrobe School District, students had the opportunity to host a foreign exchange student or to be hosted abroad. Many students took this opportunity to travel abroad. Some have even traveled the world for a first-hand chance at exploring different cultures. Affiliated with the Latrobe Rotary, AFS sends students abroad yearly; travels and education were unlimited. Mrs. Garret was the advisor of AFS. Latrobe has participated in the club for many years. Many students who spoke a foreign language seized this opportunity to further their knowledge and to experience hands-on learning with the language. Travels lasted for up to six weeks. During this time, students were better acquainted with the language and traveled throughout the country. Back home in Latrobe, the club hosted dinner parties for the exchange students in our school. Members of the club and exchange students met together for dinner, bowling, movies, and even trips to the Carnegie Museum. Through their interactions, the Latrobe natives gained a knowledge of other worlds while opening our culture to the exchange students. Senior Katie Campbell was fortunate enough to host a student from Switzerland as a junior. "It was interesting to hear her views of America and to see pictures and hear stories about her home in Switzerland. I was shocked by the things we had in common and with how well she spoke our language." AFS became more popular with each passing year and hopes to continue growing. Senior Michelle Coder made her final remark, "This club opened my eyes to so many things. I hope other students can learn to enjoy and appreciate the club as much as I did."

"P.A.W.'s" in a Moment of Silence

By Amy Weet

Walking into school one fall morning everyone should have noticed the people gathered around the flagpole. Those were the members of P.A.W., celebrating the national event cleverly named "See You at the Flagpole". Similar clubs around the world met on the same date at the same time. This year about fifty students from Greater Latrobe woke up bright and early to arrive at 6:30 in the morning to participate in this event. They came together at the flagpole to pray. This year, they even sang songs by guitar. They joined in this experience to show the community their unity as a club. P.A.W., also known as Praise and Worship, assembled periodically throughout the year.

Senior President Rachel Smith stated, "It was uplifting to be with other Christians; a nice way to start the day." The purpose of it was just that. Sophomore Janelle Pica commented, "P.A.W. was a great way to come together and talk about God." P.A.W. was Christians supporting other Christians in times of need and rejoice. "P.A.W. was one of the most healthy, influential, and positive groups that met at Latrobe High," remarked sophomore Dan Bombulie. P.A.W. brought friendship and comfort to many students during their year at Greater Latrobe.

A New Path to Community Service

By Sadie DiMuzio

What did the term "community service" mean to you? To some it meant the idea of lending a helping hand to those in need. However, for the members of Youth Advisory, it held the purpose of meeting different arrays of people while giving back to the community. Senior Liz Hixson commented, "As participants of the Youth Advisory, it gave us all the opportunity to work with different organizations throughout the community." The club began at the end of the 2002 school year. Certain students were chosen by the faculty to participate during the following school year. Some students at the recognition, including sophomore Sherrie Dunlap, were flattered they received recognition from their teachers, "I felt honored the faculty chose me to be on the committee. Although in its beginning stages, this gave us the opportunity to be involved in the decision-making process in various community organizations. It was great hearing a teen's voice in the community." With much hard work put into getting Youth Advisory off to a good start, many students felt the urgency to lend a helping hand throughout the town. Senior Nina Snizaski stated, "This fresh new club helped me and many other members take action to better serve the needs of our community." After its first year of service, the members of Youth Advisory proved their newly formed club made a positive difference and will grow to be a successful group in the future.

Work it

Many different people had assorted views and reasons for why they went to Vo-Tech, a multi-skilled technological school that geared the high school students for careers in fields such as welding, automobile manufacturing, and plumbing. All mentioned one thing: Vo-Tech was a great way to learn skills needed for the real world. Junior Todd Bricker expressed his pastime in the school, "Tech was interesting and fun. It was good means to get away from school and get into something I liked, whatever it was." Many excellent fields of choice were available for choosing, one being the automotive career. Senior Aaron Smoker commented, "As I found out in the Automotive Industry, EWCTC gave me the knowledge to go out and be a Tech in a State Garage working on the 'big toys for big boys'." The Eastern Western Career and Technology Center was an experience sophomore Zak Farkas described as something worthwhile and interesting. Because students attended the school, they learned important trades that helped them choose careers for their future. With hands-on training and determined students, those that chose to attend Vo-Tech are sure to find success in the future.

Cosmotology AM

Junior Sarah Clifford gives sophomore Amanda Stephenson a new do. Cosmotology was just one of the many programs in which students could participate.

Cosmotology AM

Sophomore Ashley Ponderendolph gets her nails done. This was just one of the many perks of taking cosmetology classes.

Trowel Trades AM

Sophomore Jordan Japalucci is ready to build. Taking classes at tech prepared students for their future careers.

Trowel Trades AM

Juniors Ethan Earhart and John Lopes's great work really "stacks up". These boys learned the skills necessary to be builders at tech.

Plumbing AM

Watch and learn. Junior Robert Geary paid close attention to and took notes from Mr. Zacur.

Plumbing AM

Sophomore Nathan Yeckley is not "screwing around", he's learning about plumbing. Learning skills like these took time and concentration.

Food Services AM

Time to check the oven! Sophomores Jessica Chismar and Sarah Henry learned how to become gourmet chefs with the skills they acquired.

Mill Carpentry AM

Junior Lauren Kowatch takes her time and does everything precisely. Vo-tech classes gave students the opportunity to choose what they "wood" like to do some day.

Autobody AM

Junior Craig Clawson is ready for the road...well almost. The skills he learned at tech will however put him in the fast track for life.

Welding AM

Sophomore Steve Ridilla watches closely as senior Kristy Frayvolt welds. Students learned a great deal from their peers.

Autobody PM

Senior Colt Withrow picks out the perfect tool. There were as many different courses to take as there were tools pictured here.

Autobody PM

Junior Brandon Tepley knows his cars. The autobody classes prepared students to be well trained auto mechanics.

Welding PM

Junior Terry Simms fires up to make a clean cut. A good welder needed steady hands and a good eye to get the job done right.

Welding PM

Senior Shawn Camilli concentrates on slicing sheet metal with his powerful clippers. Good technique was dependent upon the welder's skill and precision.

Health Assistant PM

Jotting down notes, juniors Jamie Gruss and Shenna Pape study intently. As future health care assistants, these two knew it was just as important to hit the books as it was to interact with patients.

Health Assistant PM

With some guidance from her teacher, senior Stacey Trout surfs the internet. Keeping up-to-date with the latest health news gave everyone a chance to see what took place outside the classroom.

Plumbing PM

Junior Ryan Chismar slowly cranks the handle. Safety and timing were key for a job well done.

Plumbing PM

Senior Tim Siko places a piece of pipe tightly between clamps as senior Josh Chismar stands by ready to help. Working as a team always made projects move quickly and smoothly.

Plumbing PM

Taking his time, senior Bryan Lekewa cuts through sheet metal with no problem. Bryan's patience and sharp skills always helped in completing tasks.

Mill PM

Junior Jesse Newhouse secures the boards together tightly. The end product always depended on those first few essential steps.

Building Trades PM

Pulling out the yellow tape, senior Dave Gradischek measures the space between the wooden planks. Accurate measurements were the first step to a successful structure.

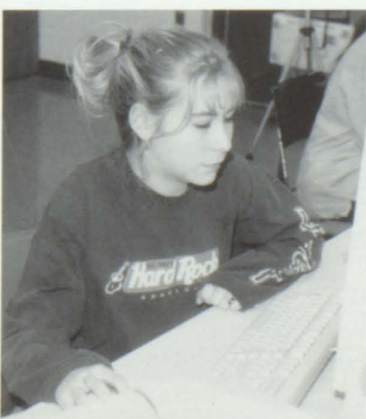

Trowel Trades PM

Junior Cody Kinkead smooths the outside of the cement blocks. Doing a neat job helped save materials and labor.

Food Service PM

Juniors Justine Clifford and Stacy Paterchak delicately fill these pastries with icing. The hard part of food service was resisting the tasty treats.

Marketing PM

Freshman Sammi Kensky intently watches her screen during marketing. Creativity and organization helped most to learn the tricks of the trade.

The Music of the Heart

By Alicia Smotak

Were Chamber and Concert Choirs just a bunch of kids singing? Or was there more to it than that? When asked about choir, members could talk for hours about the different "gigs" they performed or the songs they sang. Choir was the center of the universe for them. They put forth the effort to achieve their goals from auditioning to performing in front of a crowd. Some even went beyond this. Chamber Choir was a group of about fifty students, while Concert Choir was open to anyone. Senior Tara Steiner stated, "In Chamber Choir, everyone wanted to be there and everyone put forth their best effort to make the music better." The Chamber Choir members frequently practiced in order to participate in six to eight programs before Christmas. Some of these "gigs" included performances at Holy Family Church in Latrobe, the Mountain View Inn and The Knights of Columbus Hall at the vocational school. The students sang an array of Christmas music and "If Music be the Food of Love", a favorite of the group. Sophomore Lee Steiner explained, "Being in Chamber Choir helped me to become comfortable performing in front of others." Students worked extra hard in order to go beyond. Some even made Honors, Counties, and District choirs. Others performed in the Judy Collins Concert at the Palace Theater. Together, they reached their goals, whether they were making Regional and State choirs or getting a solo in a school concert. Whatever venue they performed for, one thing always held true: their music was truly "The Food of Love".

The members of concert choir read more than their names in a program, they read music. The understanding of scales and chords led their choir to perfect concerts.

Singing is improved when standing up. Posture, along with other elements of singing, were always in the back of these choir member's minds so that they could produce a strong song.

Mr. Tourre, the choral director, is able to fill rooms with the beautiful music from his choirs. He has always amazed audiences with the talent in his concerts.

The Chamber Choir is made up of the most vocally talented students at Latrobe. Their harmonies and attitudes were always in perfect pitch.

Jazz it Up

By Ashley Gardner

"It was different and fun!" remarked senior Marlyn Ridge, "Jazz was not the kind of music you heard everyday." Likewise, this year's Jazz Band was not like any band you'd see everyday. Greater Latrobe's Jazz Band, composed of a selected group of talented musicians, was constantly creating their own smooth jazz tones to please the yearning ears of their listeners. Including everything from the piano, electric guitar, and bass, to the trumpet, saxophone, trombone, and tuba, this elite group worked together to play some of the most difficult and upbeat music. "We play a variety of jazz, from Big Band, to Swing, to R&B," added junior Matt DeDiana. Complete with two "Jazz groups", members of the band had a varying practice schedule. Meeting Monday, Wednesday, and Friday was the complete Jazz ensemble and Tuesday and Thursday was an improvisational group. "I found Jazz Band to be a great way to express yourself through music. We had an opportunity to improvise our own music. We all loved listening to Rob make something up," commented senior Bethann Kosczuk. Appearing in the Christmas and spring concerts, the Jazz Band spread their silky sounds throughout the high school. Not only did members of the Jazz Band pride themselves in creating "jazzy" music, but also in sharing it with the community. The Jazz Band traveled to local nursing homes to deliver wonderful performances that helped to spread holiday cheer and warmth. An asset to both the school and community, Greater Latrobe's Jazz Band provided both entertainment and inspiration.

Senior Melisa Scarpo tickles the ivories in Greater Latrobe's Jazz Band. The piano had set base melodies and rhythms for the rest of the instruments to play along with.

Junior Lee Lexa plays the most notable instrument in a jazz band, the saxophone. The Jazz Band consisted of elite instrumentalists who were able to create that "smooth jazz".

A Concert for All

By Ashley Gardner

We've all heard of diverse types of music, but can music be made of diverse types of people? Of course it can! And that was just what happened with Greater Latrobe's Concert Band this year. Talented musicians can come from anywhere...the marching band, the science club, or even the football field. "The best part of concert band is that it brings a variety of students together. It is not just the band kids, but there are also a few football players and track athletes," remarked senior Bethann Kosczuk. And from this diverse group of musicians came some of the most beautiful music. Providing two annual concerts, Christmas and Spring, the members of concert band graced the ears of students, members of the community, and faculty with both traditional and modern music. "The students in Concert Band all wanted to be there and most of them strived to make the band sound as good as possible. I think the amount of participation put forth made the band one of the best organizations in the school," remarked junior Matt DeDiana. With their hard work and dedication, practicing Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, members of the Concert Band used their diversity to their advantage. They brought people together and cultured wonderful talent. It was in Greater Latrobe's Concert Band where music played by all types of people affected the minds and hearts of even more.

The concert band focuses on giving wonderfully pleasant sounding concerts for the community of Latrobe. Their performances were never less than perfect.

Junior Megan Stahl graces the concert band with the music of her French horn. Even though it was an unusual instrument, the French horn made one of the most beautiful sounds in the concert band.

Play that Funky Music

By Lauren Coder

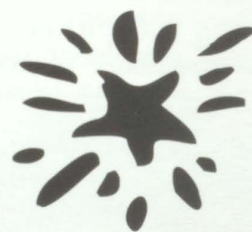

There was more to school than academics. Activities were important, too. The Greater Latrobe Marching Band had an awesome season this year. With the theme "Children of the 80's" the dedicated students rocked the stands at the Friday night football games. Not only did the band participate in the football games, but they performed at many other functions such as basketball games. They even went to competitions where they scored exceptionally well. Both on and off the field, the band members knew how to have fun while still working hard. "I'm going to miss all of my clarinets and goofing off in the stands," senior Tara Steiner exclaimed. Through the long hot days of band camp, where the band first learned their half-time show), to the very last day of the season, many friendships and memories formed. This year the band took a trip to New Orleans. It was hard work fundraising the money but the group managed to pull it off. Much of the band's success was credited to the direction of Mr. Ray Hamill. With the incredible talent here at Latrobe and the guidance from Mr. Hamill, the Marching Band was sure to find success marching to the beat of any drummer.

The Greater Latrobe Wildcat Band fills the streets of Latrobe with their spirited music. The band made several appearances at various community events.

A "Killer" Performance

By Samantha Haugor

"Lights, camera, action!" These words could be heard in the future for the many talented students who took part in last fall's production of "Who's Dying to be a Millionaire?" In the play, contestants of a popular game show seemed to inexplicably drop like flies. This murder-mystery delivered many laughs as the dimwitted town sheriff and deputy struggled to uncover the killer's identity. The year brought many new faces to the play, not only onstage but offstage as well. Under the new direction of Mrs. Ferguson, many involved in the play felt that she brought a new and exciting perspective to the set. Senior Ashley Kessler offered, "It was great to get to work with a new director. This was Mrs. Ferguson's first high school production and it was really great having a new vision on stage." Despite the changes that took place, the surge of adrenaline that accompanied the performance did not. "The play was an amazing experience that I will never forget. Nothing compares to the rush of performing in front of a crowd," shared junior Faith Blaker. The play was performed several times for the public as well as in part for the student body. Having the opportunity to perform in front of fellow students was very rewarding for some of the cast members. Senior Dan Molitor recalled, "The play was a lot of fun to put on and it was great that our hard work was well received by the audience." The cast lit up the stage with excitement and put on a captivating performance that left the audience "dying" for more.

The play is entitled "Who's Dying to Be a Millionaire?" This production had a little twist; it combined light comedy with a murder mystery.

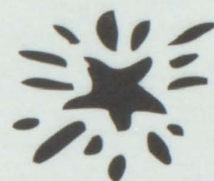

This group of actors crowds around a clue to the murders. The play was a great activity for students to "clump" together their talents on stage.

PLAY

Junior Sarah Danko and sophomore, Melissa Fritz keep the audience laughing with their crazy comments and sarcastic wit. These two talents created a "killer" combination.

Senior Dan Molitar charms the ladies on stage with a talk show host's smile. Off stage Dan "charmed" the cast with his constant reminders to practice perfect diction.

Senior Emily Leone threatens junior deputy, Mark Arbore, after her murderous nature is exposed. These two thespians "killed" the audience with their hilarious conclusion to the mystery.

These actors think about the puzzling clues that point to the murderer. Facial expressions were a very effective way for actors to express themselves.

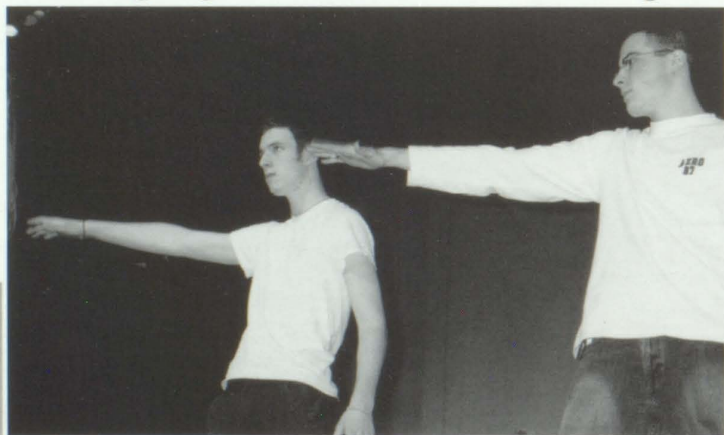

A Tempest Twist: Sci-Fi and Romance Like Never Before

By Amy Egan

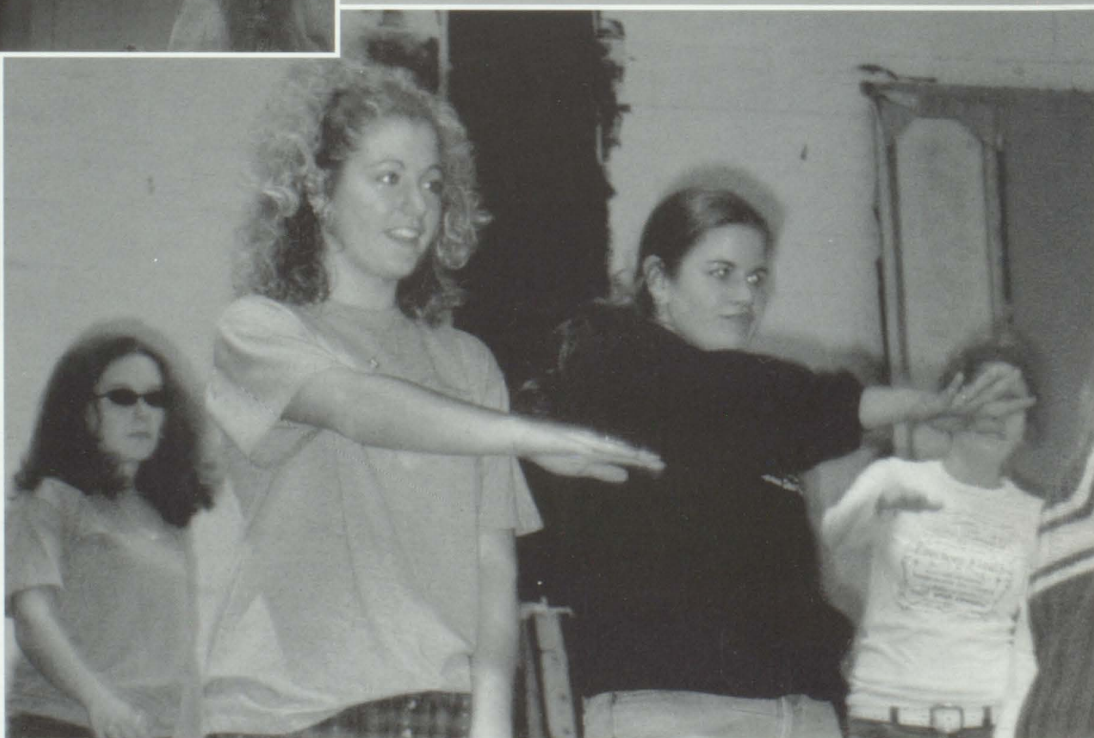

The GLSHS Musical Staff prepared to out-do all past productions with the unique, refreshing musical, Return to the Forbidden Planet, by Bob Carlton. The musical was a rendition of the Shakespearean classic The Tempest with a science-fiction twist. It was certain to captivate the audience, recreating a traditional work in a not so traditional way. Tempest, a headstrong ship captain, played by senior Ryan Kuntz, was drawn to the foreign planet Dillyria by a force, where he encountered the enchanting Miranda, played by senior Jen Murray. Miranda was spellbound by this uniform, dashing debonair. Kuntz commented, "The script was fresh and intriguing and was packed with a lot of great music." Tempest then became acquainted with her mysterious father, Prospero, played by junior Matt DeDiana, and his loyal, yet absent-minded robot, Ariel, played by senior Gavin Roddy. Prospero's wife was then revealed to be none other than the ship's science officer, Gloria, played by junior Sarah Danko. Danko requited, "I was ecstatic about the musical. It was a different show; I think it turned out very well." Unfortunately, Tempest was not the only one mesmerized by Miranda's visage. Cookie, played by sophomore Lee Steiner, finds himself bewitched by her beauty. The musical was directed by Mrs. Snyder and Mrs. Duda. Mrs. Duda commented, "I always had high expectations because I thought we had a very talented group of students here at Latrobe. I was really looking forward to doing Return to the Forbidden Planet. It was a unique show that not many people have seen before. It combined a lot of elements like Shakespeare, Science-fiction, and Rock N' Roll."

Senior Ryan Kuntz and junior Mark Arbore practice their dance moves. Students had to be serious about rehearsals if they wanted a great show.

Dancing to the Rock N'Roll sounds of the musical are seniors Ashlee Martz and Marlyn Ridge. Everyone's personal style and attitude made the characters come to life.

MUSICAL

Juniors Kristie Moran and Kelsey Kenyan scan the house for directions from their advisors. While the show was a blast, it took concentration and good listening skills to perfect their parts.

Junior Charity Grimm and senior Ashley Kessler get funky at musical rehearsal. The music in the show made it easy for cast members to let loose.

Sophomores Margeaux Monsour and Katie Kennedy strike poses at rehearsal. Spending much of their time together, cast members built lasting relationships.

These cast members take a moment to get into character. The best way to practice was to stay in character as much as possible.

The Eyes of the World:

High Post

By Amy Egan

Many students of GLSHS committed themselves to hectic, demanding schedules. Being a member of The High Post Staff required countless hours of dedicated work with some members spending three to four periods a day diligently working to escalate the quality of the publication. Regardless, most staff members conceded that after feeling priceless satisfaction of an excellently fabricated publication, the past headaches were easily forgotten. Senior Co-Editor-in-Chief Emily Leone commented, "The most rewarding part of the newspaper was seeing all of the hard work and days after school pay off and turn into something tangible that we could be proud of." There was a tremendous amount of responsibility entrusted upon each staff member. It was crucial that each member not only did his part, but also went beyond what was required of him. It was critical that a positive attitude and relentless gumption were the cornerstones of each individual's character in order for the publication to excel. Senior News Page Editor Kim Kline commented, "Being a page editor this year took a lot more time and energy than I thought it would, but it was all worth it to be part of a staff and publication that I could be proud of." This may sound like being a part of The High Post was all work and no play, yet High Post was a wonderful opportunity for students who were journalistically compelled to devote their time, effort and talents to doing what they loved. Co-Editor-in-Chief Crystal Bomblatus commented on her experiences as a member of the staff, "Writing and then being Editor-in-Chief of The High Post was the absolute best experience of my life. I learned so many things; I feel I am now prepared for journalism in the real world." The skills acquired and the memories made on The High Post will be cherished for a lifetime.

Mrs. Stallings, High Post Advisor, shows off the cover of the newspaper. She was always eager to lend a helping hand and encouraged students to use their "gumption" to reach their highest goals.

Serendipity

By Amy Egan

GLSHS's journalism program went above and beyond the expectations by creating Serendipity Magazine, one of the only high school magazine publications in our area. The publication set sail in its 2001-2002 maiden voyage. As with any new undertaking, the infant staff met the inevitable bumps in the road and persevered and escalated from a test-run publication to a distinguished publication prepared to exceed even their own expectations in the upcoming year. The 2002-2003 Serendipity staff was hard at work, overcame obstacles and relished in journalistic triumphs. Editor-in-Chief Christine Halluck commented, "If I've learned one thing from being on the staff it is that I can't always please everyone but I have to work my hardest to get the job done." Serendipity was an eye-catching magazine that served as a voice for the student body, allowing their interests and opinions to be heard while captivating the minds of others. Assistant Editor and Layout Designer Paulina Mogle commented, "Serendipity was an outstanding opportunity and by being a part of this I learned one must have passion to accomplish the necessary goals. Hopefully, this type of production will be a part of my future."

A Year in Review

From Us to You

By Laura Meyer and Katie Campbell

A staff of twelve editors and nineteen reporters were responsible for bringing the students of GLSHS together. As you look at this book, you may see pictures of or quotes from you or your friends. The staff began in the summer and spent seven months organizing and creating this book, which was dedicated to each student at Latrobe. What you are seeing is a year of events that will become a lifetime of memories. What you didn't see was the amount of preparation involved in creating this book. The reporters spent time during and after school collecting information for their stories. They spent class time captioning pictures and interviewing classmates and faculty for different information. Junior reporter Jenell Wano commented, "My favorite part was meeting new and different kinds of people every day." With the information gathered, the editors began review. Many editors spent some late nights working diligently to meet their deadlines. Everyone had her own ideas about how the book should look and the ideas were not always similar, but there was one common goal. Organizing Editor Liz Hixson put it best when she said, "I wanted to make the best book Latrobe ever saw." Despite conflicting views and occasional problems with the computers, the staff agreed the product of this amazing book was well worth the effort.

"I couldn't be prouder of their effort. I'll miss them next year, except for their dog whistle-like voices and inability to realize that the person they are talking to is only a few feet away and not on the other side of sound proof walls. Seriously it was awesome working with them." ~Mr. Duda~

Squad Succeeds With Determination And Desire

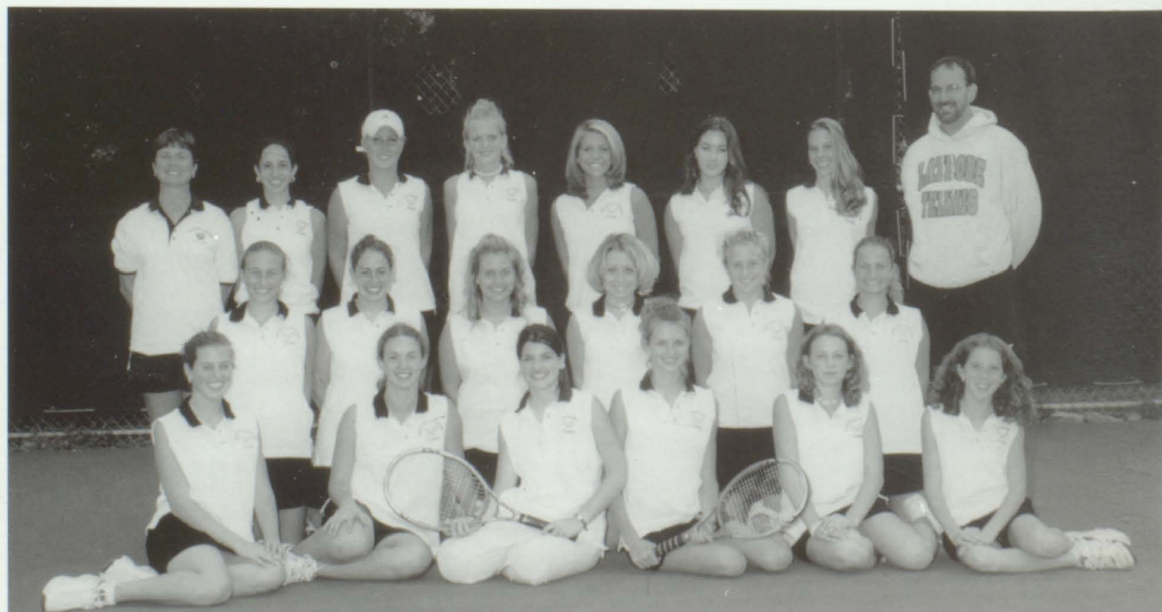

The Lady Wildcat Tennis team ended up with a successful record of 18-1. The team worked together and their true talent showed through. Coach Ronnie Streumph said, "The girls had wonderful dedication, determination, and a great drive for success with the ability to keep perspective." Not only did the team end up on top but they also learned a lot about coming together as a team. Senior Meghan Ruffner commented, "My favorite thing about the season was the whole team put together because of the people, it seemed as though we were a team more than any other year." It was an excellent season with a lot of winning and not to mention great times on the bus rides to and from away matches. Freshman Stephanie Glass said, "Bonding and fun times on the bus will always be a great memory." Here's to another successful year and many more to come. By: Megan Sassos

Sophomore Brittany Ruffner returns the volley in style. Fun in the sun contributed in relief of every stressful practice and match.

Junior Allie Hickman stretches to return a serve. Their dedication paid off when they were recognized for their accomplishments.

Senior Spotlight: "High School tennis was one of the best experiences I had in high school. The team aspect was great and overall it was just so much fun." Senior Karissa Walker

Senior Jamie Sutyak backhands a return with great form. In order to win a match, all skills needed to be perfected to excellence.

Senior Laura Meyer concentrates on hitting the ball over the net, while her sister, Junior Jessie Meyer, looks on. A strong bond between teammates and sisters added to the success of doubles play.

Junior Megan Sassos takes aim as the ball nears her racket. Determination always was a key factor for excellence in tennis.

Lady Cats Continue To Race For Victory

The 2002 Girls Cross Country team was nothing but successful. The motivation of every girl on the team strived to get them to second place in the section. It was more than just a three mile race, it was a goal that everyone worked hard to achieve. Coach Teresa Curci commented, "The team's support for each other was unreal along with the effort from everyone to do their best." The motivation and the determination was outstanding with the runners improving all the time.

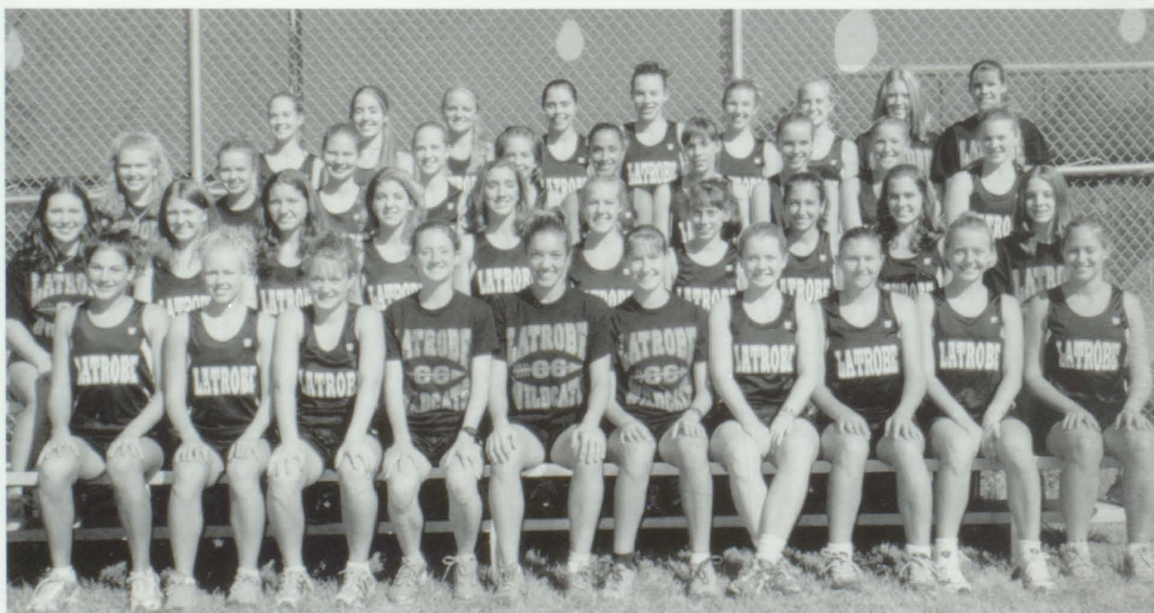

Senior Sarah Hantz said, "The encouragement by the team was great." Even though the races were against the opposing teams, there were always team competitiveness. Sophomore Christine Gettemy adds, "Everyone worked hard this year to achieve not only individual goals but a team goal." Despite the competition throughout the team, all the girls remained friends and had a successful season.

Latrobe Runners Head For the Finish Line

In the fall of 2002, 39 warriors struggled through trials and tribulations. Competing in a hard fought season with the record of 4-4, the team is setting the bar higher for the 2003 season. Coach Teresa Curci commented, "I do not think the boys felt that much pressure to perform as well as they did." Although efforts did not always show on the scoreboard, the team was fortunate to have savored triumph on numerous occasions. Senior Joey Kearney stated, "It's sad because in any other sport you can give everything and make an impact, but in cross country, all you get is a new personal best." Losing only a couple runners next season, the boys have every intention to exceed the expectations through their hard work and dedication. Junior Grey Arrigone replied, "I think we had a good season, but next year we will do better and win the section." By: Amy Egan

Sophomore Eamon McDonogh strides along the 3.1 mile course. He and the rest of the team had a great work ethic, refusing to stop until the job or race was done.

Senior Joey Kearney looks on anxiously as he approaches the finish. Runners trained long and hard to push until the end.

Row 1: Kunkle, Kearney, Brickley, Krivoniak, Roble, Stas Row 2: Walker, Elers, Arrigone, Molitor, Churman, Simon, Ruffner Row 3: Rambler, Killimayer, Hennessy, Mills, Waldron, Klosky, McDonough, Hilty Row 4: Frederick, Newingham, Ferry, Kotouch, Newingham, McMichael, Bryan, Messmer, Lekawa, Ferarri

Senior Spotlight: "The season went well considering all of the young runners. I'm going to miss Mrs. Curci and causing problems."
Senior Matt Ruffner

This group of runners put their best foot forward. Tired and Quit were not found in the teams dictionary.

Junior Sean Hennessy and Sophomore Dave Mills push it to the max while running a tight race. The team's endurance led the Cats to a productive season.

Junior Mack Brickley sets the pace during a cross country meet. Runners relied on both physical strength and determination to get them through each difficult course.

Golf Team's Season Was Up To Par

As summer came to an end, the Golf Team started to prepare for their season. This year the team finished 13-4 in regular season and second place in the section. "With the talent we had I thought we would go undefeated, but for some unforeseen circumstance it didn't occur," commented Coach Richard Sterret. This year the team showed many qualities of success from leadership to the most improved players. Juniors Erik Christianson and Dave Richards in Coach Sterret's opinion were the best surprises while four year lettermen and captain Ryan Hue showed the most leadership. Christianson summed up the year by saying, "The team played well the whole way through the year. A lot of different people kept us in at every match." Overall the golf team had a favorable season, and the future looks bright for them as well.

By: Jenell Wano

Junior Erik Christianson prepares to drive the ball straight across the fairway. Students practiced this shot for power to make it to the green.

Sophomore Shane Brant putts his ball to a win. Not only did the team need power for driving a ball they needed percision to make a putt.

Row 1: Williams, Rinchues, Battaglia, Visconti, Lutterman, Christianson Row 2: Hue, Statler, Richards, Wood, Joseph, Cox, Brant, Sterret

Senior Spotlight: "Although we did not achieve our ultimate goal, we still had a good year and had lots of fun."
Senior Ryan Hue

Junior Dave Richards eyes up the ball. Golfers always found ways to have laughs on the course.

Senior Doug Wood chips the ball onto the green. Difficult courses were played as the team made its way to the playoffs.

Senior Brandon Cox putts his ball from afar. Golfers often had a lot of pressure to make a putt.

Lady Wildcat's Team Unity Shows Through the Season

With 13 returning lettermen on the 2002 Girls Soccer team, they were looking forward to a strong season. With a double overtime tie, the girls became one game short of making it to the playoffs and managed to finish the season with a 10-5-1 record. The team had been known for their friendships on and off the field. Sophomore Stacey Null commented, "It's great hanging out with my team at games and practices." From crazy scavenger hunts to the hardcore playing, this team never gave up. This season has been full of fun experiences and lots of success. Coach Rich Snively said, "This years team worked hard even though most were returning players, the younger players really improved." The Lady Wildcat soccer team will miss their seniors but are looking forward to next year.

By: Brittany Bureau

Sophomore Emily Schock wins the ball over the Indiana defender. The team's aggressiveness was a factor in their success this season.

Sophomore Margaret Florendo blocks the ball not allowing a goal. The goalie was the most important player.

Successful Season Due To Teamwork

This year was unlike any other for the Latrobe Boys Soccer team. "There is a lot of dedication and skilled players on the team," said Head Coach Dan Grobe. This stand out team of devoted players had an impressive season that included some unique individuals that will certainly be remembered. The Cats came exceptionally close to making the playoffs this season for the very first time since the late 80's, with an overall record of 7-7-0. Senior Chris Scuiillo commented, "We had a lot of skill and everything that was needed to make playoffs, but we just came up short." The team had a successful season due to teamwork, as well as each player's personal achievements. "It was an incredible year," said sophomore Adam Quatrini. This proved to be a winning 2002 season for the Cats!

Lady Cats Serve Up Wins This Season

With only a handful of returning lettermen, a new JV coach and four starters, the Lady Wildcats were in for a challenging season. Junior Jenell Wano commented, "We were all optimistic at the beginning of the year, but realized the hard competition in our section." The Cats started their season off in the Jr. High gym due to renovations on their home court. "I had no negative feelings, a court is a court," Coach Drew Vosefski added.

The seniors were especially thrilled because they would get to celebrate Senior Night in the new gym. The Cats finished the season with a 7-11 record. "We had a rough season, but comradery was what helped pull the team together in the end," Sophomore Casey Ritenour commented. This season was the best record that the Cats have had in a long time.

By: Meghan McHenry

Sophomore Alyssa Struempf attempts to block the ball. Blocking played a major role in defense against tough opponents.

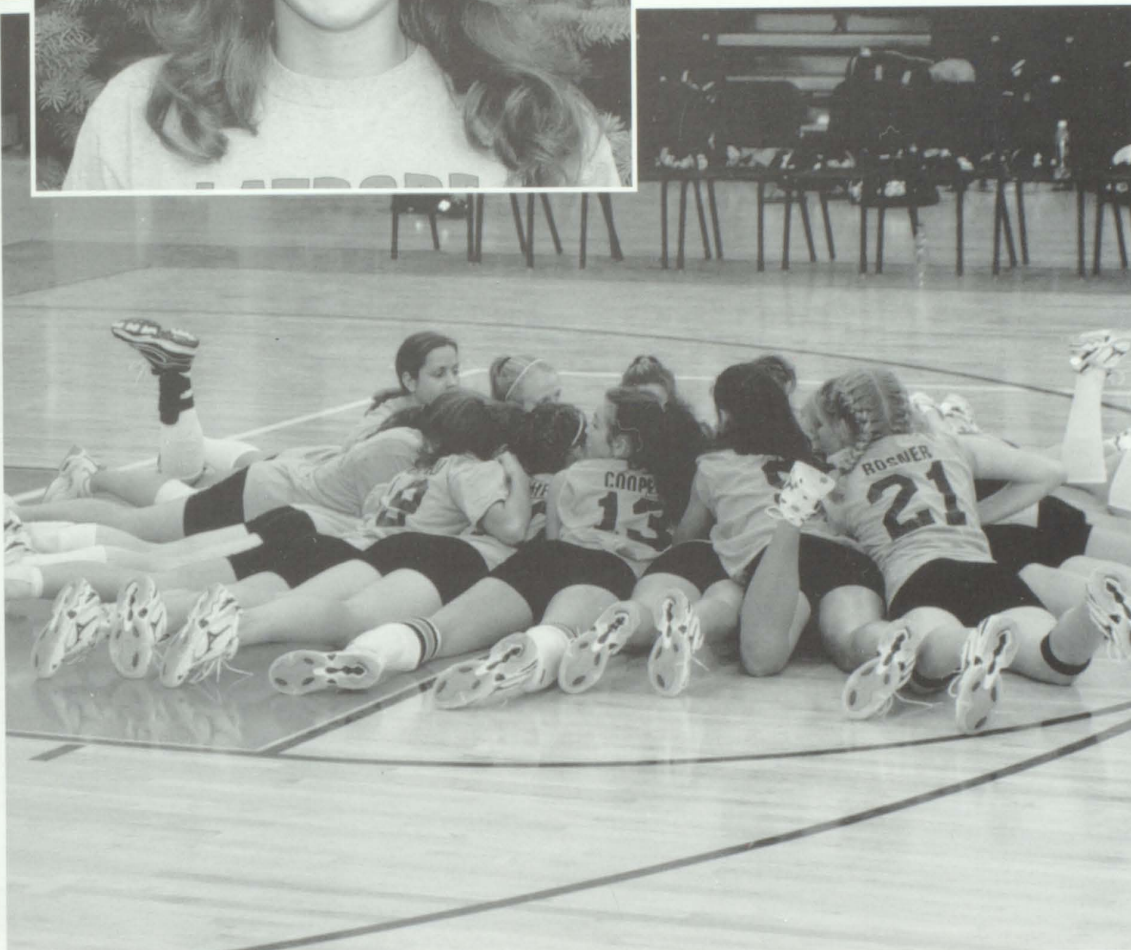

Senior Marlyn Ridge sets the ball high for her fellow teammates to spike it. The ladies found out the only way to win was through team work.

Experience From Returning Lettermen Pays Off

After making the playoffs for the first time in 16 years last season, the Wildcats began the 2002 season hoping to repeat that success. Despite injuries early in the season that kept some players on the sidelines, the Cats approached this season with a positive attitude. Head Coach Pat Murray applauded the team's efforts, adding, "The effort and perserverance of the players should be commended; the effort has always been there." The experience of the returning players was very valuable. The men played hard and made lasting friendships. Senior Mike Ferrari commented, "We really become closer throughout the season, and that is one thing I will miss the most from the team, the friendships." The players had their share of ups and downs and remain optimistic for the upcoming year.

By: Samantha Hauger

Junior Adam Hoffer takes on an Indiana opponent. Good defense often played a crucial role in winning games.

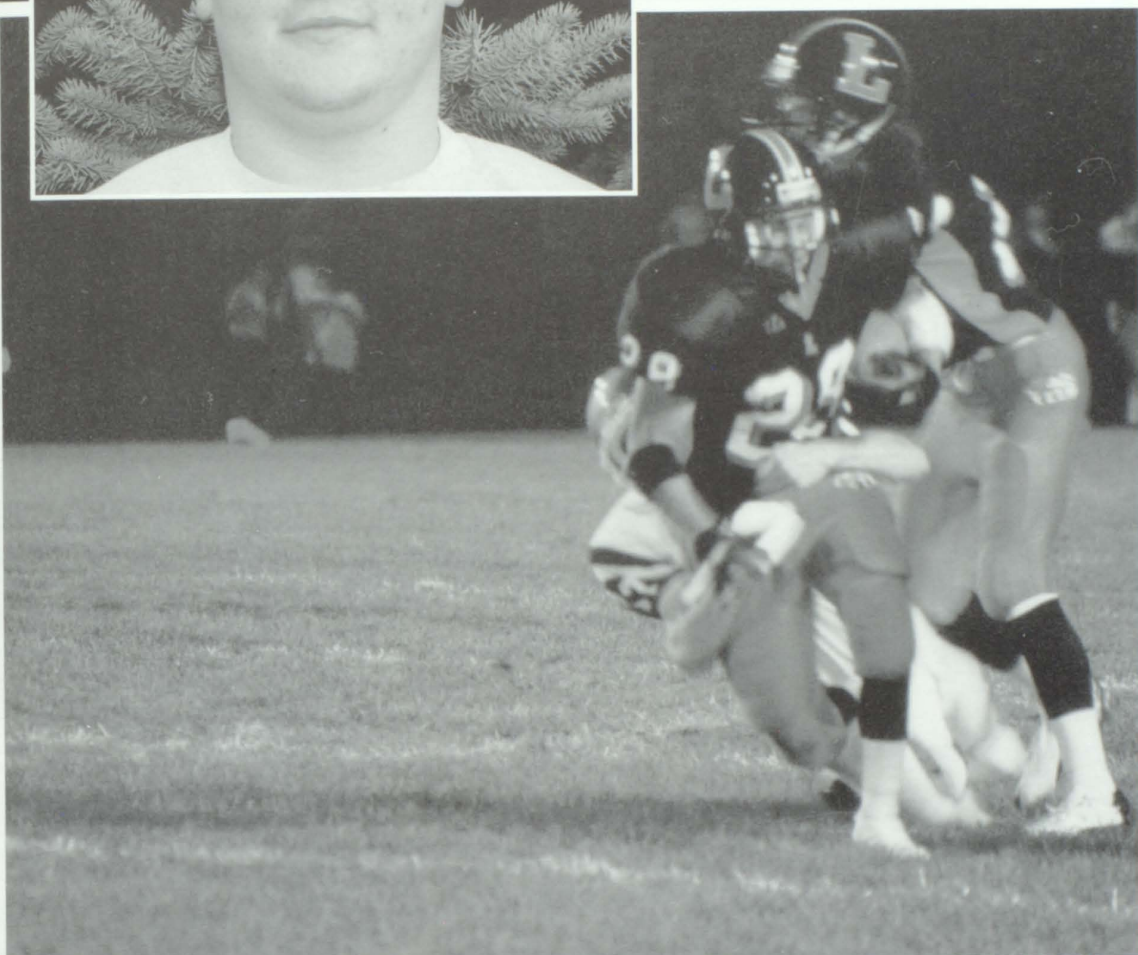

Sophomore Jason Clark focuses his attention up the field as he tries to gain some extra yards. Players worked hard at games and practices in order to have a successful season.

Wrestlers Set Standards Above Limits

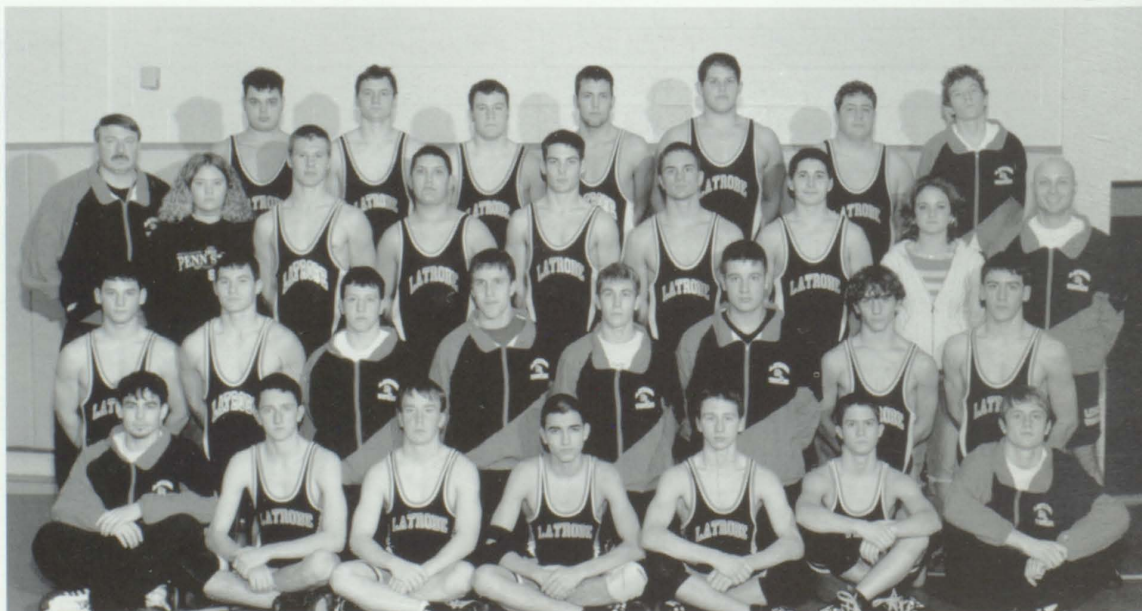

With seven returning starters from the 2001-2002 line-up, the outlook for the Greater Latrobe wrestling team was promising. With their standards set above the limits, the wrestlers motivated themselves on a daily basis. Junior Brian Rushnock, used a simple motto as a inspiration, "Believe in what you do, and do what you believe." These wrestlers were forced to endure the unthinkable, such as not being able to eat for periods of time to reach their weight class. Coach Billet commented, "I tried to have them motivate themselves. It is hard to be successful in our sport unless you are intensely motivated in your own way." The teams' ideas seemed to have worked well, considering their achievements throughout the season. Junior Pete Elers stated, "I thought we had a quality team and succeeded to the greatest of our abilities throughout the season." By: Sadie Dimuzio

Senior Bryan Lekewa pulls a reversal to score 2 points for the Wildcats. He was an excellent wrestler who fought hard the entire season.

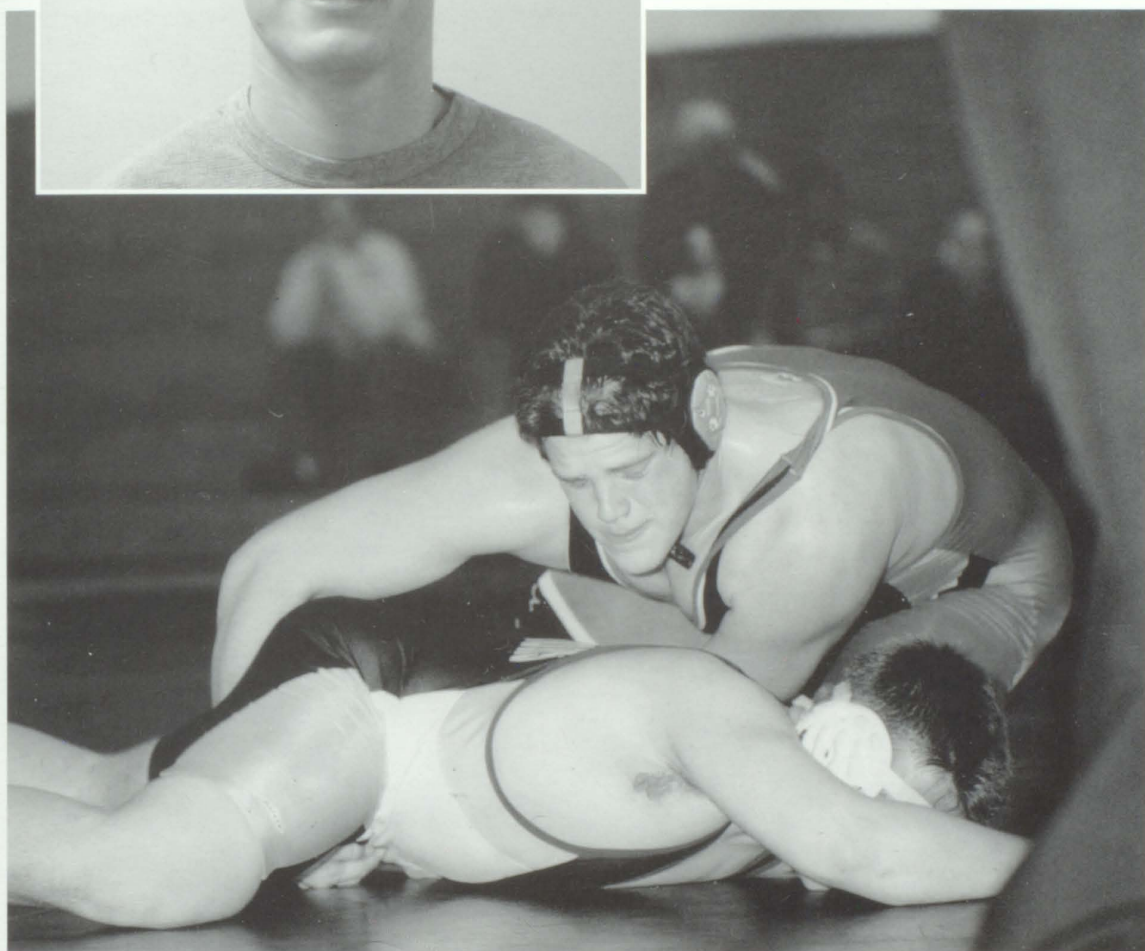

Senior Joey Quinn starts off his match well getting his opponent in a good position. He proved to be an important asset to the team all year.

Team Proves To Be Successful Once Again This Year

Rifle is a sport that requires both physical and mental strength. The Rifle team had high expectations for this season. Being successful in previous years gave the team the confidence to do it again this year. With leadership from returning seniors the rifle team was successful. They also had a surprise for themselves. This year there was a significant number of freshmen to join the team, more than their usual turn out. The rifle team was coached by Mr. Bates. He had been coaching for a number of years. The team members agreed that he was a good coach; he relieved them from pressure and mental strain when it came to those crucial matches. These factors, leadership from seniors and returning letterman, abundance of new members, and skilled coaching, led the team to yet another victorious year.

By: Alicia Smetak

Sophomore Carly Adams takes a moment to load her rifle. Padded jackets, gloves, and scopes also ranked high on the equipment list.

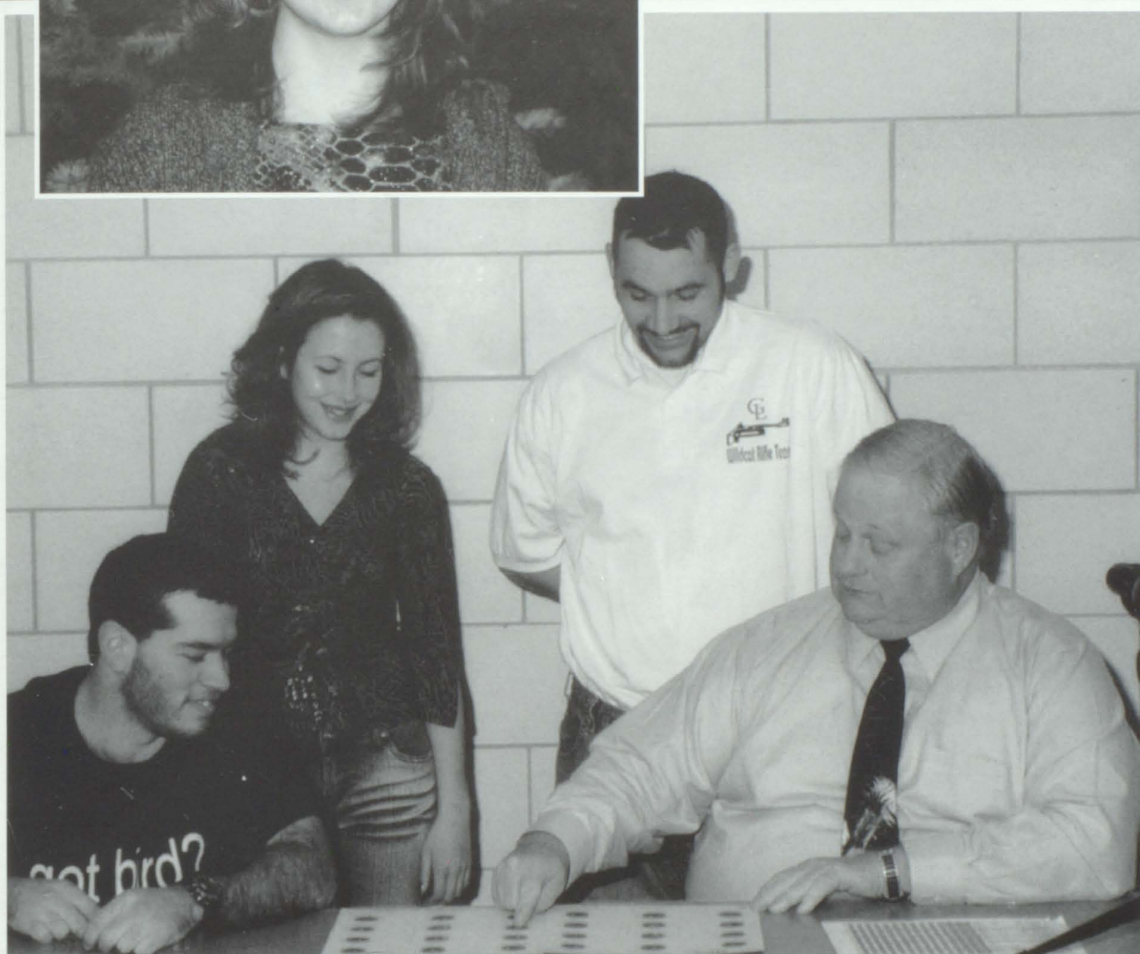

Senior Josh Chismar works on his form. A lot of concentration and practice proved vital in this sport.

Players Adjust To The Change Of AAA

The last seconds roll off the clock and the sound of the buzzer echoes through the rink as the game comes to an end. The sounds of slapping sticks and skates swiftly cutting through the ice were heard. Welcome to the world of ice hockey. Many of you may have wondered why people chose to endure the cold to play this exciting sport. "I play hockey because of the speed. It is faster than any other sport," stated Junior Jeremy Wano. Many people liked the game because it is a high paced sport. This year the Varsity team moved from the AA to AAA classification. Junior Jake Falbo commented, "After our success from last year we knew we would have to work hard to repeat that achievement. I think we are all ready for it." Thanks for another great season.

Swimmers Put Forth 110% Effort For Perfection

The Lady Wildcat swim team is nothing but competitive. This year was full of many obstacles that they needed to overcome and many goals that were reached. These ladies did nothing but try every way to always improve themselves to be the best of the best. "It's been as awesome season because it's a pleasure to get to work with such fine student athletes," commented Coach Donna Silvis. Every practice was a challenge that the team had to get through without giving up. There were many fun times shared by the teammates as well. Sophomore Stacey Null explained, "We are all very motivated and are there for each other, everything we do is a team effort." Junior Brittany Bureau said, "As a team, we did the very best we could and put forth a 100% effort." The good times kept rolling and the victories kept coming in.

Hard Work, Dedication, And Sportsmanship Describes the Squad

With a total of 20 swimmers, the boys swim season was surely ready to compete with the best and win. Hard work, dedication, and sportsmanship were how many teams remembered Latrobe both in and out of the pool. Seniors Mike Kunkle and Tim Leonard led this years guys swimming/diving team. "Being a diver and a swimmer, this season has been inspiring. Not only did I get to work individually but I also got to work as a team," exclaimed Tim Leonard. The team had swimmers that qualified for the WPIALS, which are held at Trees Pool in Pittsburgh. Some of these swimmers included Senior Mike Kunkle, Juniors Grey Arrigonie, Josh Shrum, and Joe Steiner and Sophomore Jon Okonak. "This season we really worked well as a team," commented Joe Steiner. The Wildcats certainly have memories to last a lifetime. By: Brittany Bureau

Junior Josh Shrum prepared to race during a meet. Having focus and concentration was crucial to swimming a good race.

Team Comes Together With New Coach

"Coming together, sharing together, working together, succeeding together." This quote represented this year's boys' basketball team under new head coach, Brad Wetzel. His leadership brought out the enthusiasm and determination in every player. Sophomore Scott West stated, "Having a new coach is a big challenge, but everything just fell into place." This optimistic attitude and confidence of the players was what motivated them throughout the season. Senior Jordan Weimer commented, "Having a new head coach made the team work harder because we felt we had something to prove." Skills were improved as well and some new lessons were taught. "We developed more on offense and learned to play with intensity," commented sophomore Joel Palko. The Cats proved that with a winning attitude and teamwork anything can be achieved. By: Julie Diorio

Sophomore Eric Mueseler, with the look of a champion, goes hard to the hoop. The team never let anyone stand in their way.

Senior Eric Lazur bangs into a Penn Trafford player while trying to convert a play. The Cats made the game exciting, often executing difficult plays.

Emotions Arouse With New Coaching Staff

The most prominent issue the Girls' Basketball team dealt with this season was change. After meeting their new coach, Robert Saveikis, many of the players were overcome by a plethora of emotions. "I was really excited going into my senior year because I knew it was going to be a good season," commented Senior Sarah Hantz. However the girls were not the only ones who were anxious; Coach Saveikis remarked, "I came into the season with a lot of anticipation.

Not only was it scary, but it was also a challenge." He set his goals high with things such as making the play-offs, and teaching them a new style of basketball, accompanied by the seniors' leadership. They were ready for anything thrown at them. The players knew that he put a lot of time and effort into his job and were proud to call him their coach. By: Christine Killimayer

Junior Meghan McHenry plows over an opponent while attempting to score. The ladies could always count on her for aggression and desire.

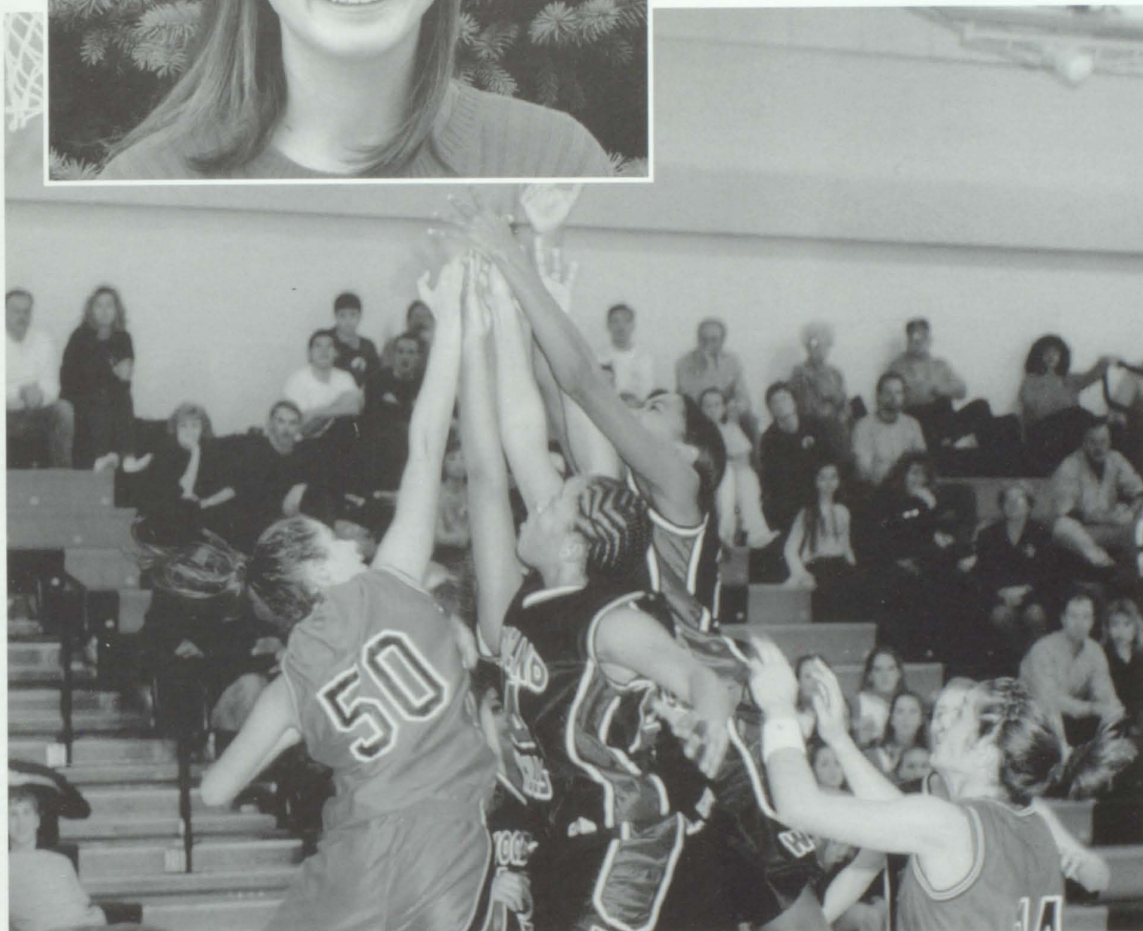

Sophomore Jenna Dlugos goes up for a lay up to score two points. Driving to the hoop and execution shots made her a prominent player.

Higher Level Of Cheering Acquired With New Advisors

The Cheerleaders took their sport to a new level. This year the squad spent an abundance of time learning to stunt and mount. Their practice paid off. Their enthusiasm and talent won them four awards at the Universal Cheerleading Association's Summer Camp. These awards included Best Camp Cheer, Best Home dance, a Leadership Award, and Overall Camp Champs. This was the first year in a long time that Latrobe won Best Home Dance. The girls performed to the group

Outkast's popular song "Bombs over Bagdad". The dance was choreographed by seniors Katie Campbell and Megan Boice. Megan was also named All-Star cheerleader at camp. The skills and relationships that began at camp continued to grow throughout the season. Despite some setbacks, the girls kept their spirits up. Their high energy and enthusiasm led the Cats to victory. By: Stefanie Robb

Senior Jen Murray pumps up the crowd with her pizzazz. By exaggerating enthusiasm. The cheerleaders were able to include the crowd during tough situations.

Junior Mellory Harr groves to the enthusiastic beat of the band. Dancing during the football games was a favorite past time for cheerleaders.

Row 1: Robb, Boice, Murray, Campbell, Snizaski, Garcia, Davin, Krinock, Dunhoff Row 2: Hauger, Cooper, Bossart, Taylor, Brant, Evans, Wano, Harr Row 3: Kerila, Johnson, Popinock

Senior Spotlight: "Cheerleading is an awesome sport because of the friendships you make. Not only do I get to perform what I love but I get to do it with 16 great friends!" Senior Megan Boice

The cheerleaders perform the cheer "Be Aggressive" to the crowd. The entertaining routines during the games added support to the Wildcat teams.

Senior Stefanie Robb and Junior Deidra Dunhoff prepare to have a "cat fight" on the sidelines. Through the year, the mascots continued to spread the school spirit to fellow students.

Sophomore Jess Johnson is all smiles as she cheers the cats on during a Friday night game. The cheerleaders perfected cheers and mounts to get the crowd into the game.

Not the Same “Girls” Sport It Was Before

Softball is not the “girls” sport it once was. These girls put in the time, effort, and practice just like the boys did. Their season was proud that hard work paid off in the end. For the Greater Latrobe Girl’s Softball team, the word “lose” was about as common as a boy on the team. These girls were out there for one reason: to win. Junior Carolyn Faddish commented, “This season was full of goals that were to be finished from last season. That’s what got us so far.” “We play together as a team, which helps in our success,” added junior Macey Taylor. The girls never stopped practicing. Even after last season ended, they still played in their free time. Training and practicing was the key to their victories. Senior Chrystal Pershing exclaimed, “This season rocked! Next season, Good Luck!” With many of the starting seniors gone, we’ll see if the sophomores can step it up like the juniors did.

By: Ashley Flack

Winding up for the pitch, Senior Val Morrison windmills it in for the strike. Their pitching, along with defense, made the Cats tough opponents.

With a hard hit speeding towards her, Junior Carolyn Faddish charges the ball. This shortstop converted many double plays.

Row 1: Dimuzio, Hickman, Davin, Forsyth, Eaglehouse Row 2: Brown, King, Sarnese, Morrison, Pershing Row 3: Taylor, Houser, McHenry, Faddish, Schock

Senior Spotlight: "Softball has always been a huge part of my life. I had the chance to meet many girls and I will miss them. And to all the girls next year, I wish you the best of luck." Senior Chrystal Pershing

Members of the softball team huddle around the fence to cheer for their teammates. The support of each player helped pull out a victory in close games.

She's rough, tough, and ready. Senior Sarah Davin takes her stance in the bow to help out her fellow Lady Wildcats.

Junior Meghan McHenry waits for the pitcher to release the ball. It was always necessary to get a good jump to advance into scoring position.

Spiking Up A Successful Season

"This year should prove to be the best season since men's volleyball was started," Junior Mike Frederick commented. With all of our starters returning from the last season, the guys' volleyball team looks to be one of the stronger, if not the strongest in the section. Making playoffs last year gave the team a taste of victory, which will carry over to this year. Back row specialist, Ryan Service explained the three key B's to his job. "Butt behind the ball. Do you know how many times I have heard this? I can't count that high!" Vosefski, the starting setter since ninth grade added, "One of the reasons we have gotten this far is because of the dedication of the team as a whole. No one breaks down." Eric is also the captain and has realized his responsibility to run the offense and to keep the team focused. Senior Robb Patty also assists in this and commented, "To play this game at the highest level you need to have passion. This year, no one is going to be able to stop us." By: Alanna Zuchelli

Senior Charlie Mason rushes after a ball and sets it high into the air. The setters on the team knew their responsibility to get to the ball.

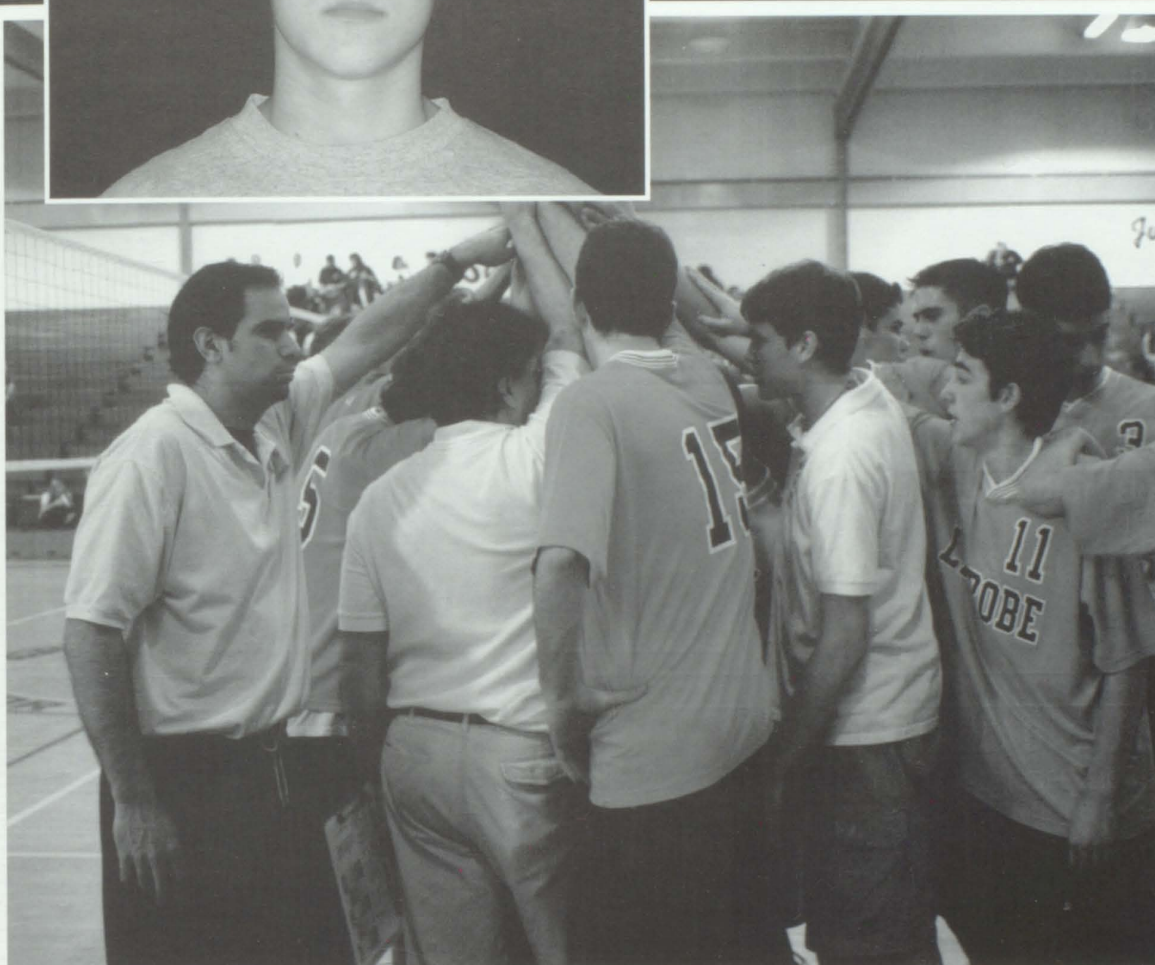

Junior Nick Pickard passes the ball to fellow teammates. Defense was one of the team's greatest strengths throughout the season.

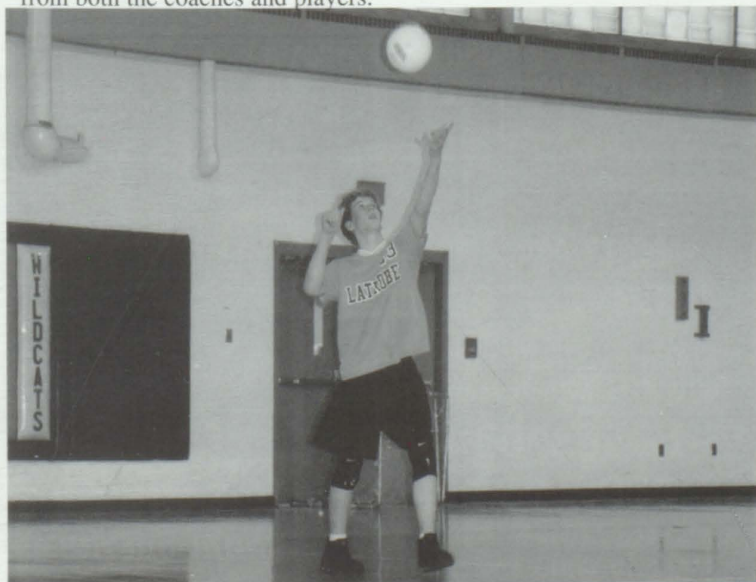

Row 1: Alm, Martinez, Leshner, Phillips, Service, Dunlap, Ortiz Row 2: Treskovich, Kozusko, Steele, Frederick, Stynchula, Menhorn, Vosefski, Edwards, Macey Row 3: Coach Vosefski, Henry, Proctor, Mason, Kuntz, Wood, Yates, Roos, Leonard, Patty, Ferrari, Coach Wisneski

Senior Spotlight: "This season really means a lot to me. We've gotten this far due to a lot of work and dedication and we need to continue to reach our goals." Senior Eric Vosefski

1-2-3 Cats! Coach Vosefski shouted during a time out. Keeping the team motivated was a necessity from both the coaches and players.

Senior Luke Treskovich focuses on serving the ball. Placing the ball to the correct positions was a difficult task that the Wildcats excelled in.

Junior Mike Frederick spikes the ball to the opposing team. Mike was one of the strongest hitters on the Wildcat team.

Serving Up Another Remarkable Tennis Season

Not only did the Men's Wildcat Tennis Team have a remarkable 2001-2002 season with a record of 12-4, they plan on having another for the 2002-2003 season. Leading the Cats in 2002 was Tyler Weisel won the Section 1 AAA singles tournament, Tyler and Nathan Struempf captured the 2002 Section 1 AAA Doubles Crwon. Junior Tyler stated, "The tennis team did really well during the season. We definitely are working toward another section title." The team lost to the dominant team of Franklin Regional two times throughout the season. Coach Struempf confirmed, "Franklin Regional lost two excellent team players this year and I am cautiously optimistic that we will go far." The team made it to the quarterfinals of the WPIALS last year and plan to advance further this year. Junior Jeff Ward said, "Off the court was as fun as being on." The tennis team not only had fun playing on the courts but they also had a great time off the courts playing golf on the practice field.

By: Megan Sassos

Junior Tyler Weisel scans his opponent's eyes for hints at his next move. Anticipating the competition helped the team stay one step ahead.

Senior Nathan Struempf gears up for a powerful backhand return. Hand and eye coordination was a fundamental tool for the season.

Row 1: Ward, Forte, Trout, Prisk, Bastin, Busch, Hunter Row 2: McMichael, Means, Tabita, Keslar, Forte, Weberding, Weisel, Struempf, Row 3: Santone, Ruffner, Matson, Scuillo, Peacher, Means, Sayre, Kunkle, Struempf

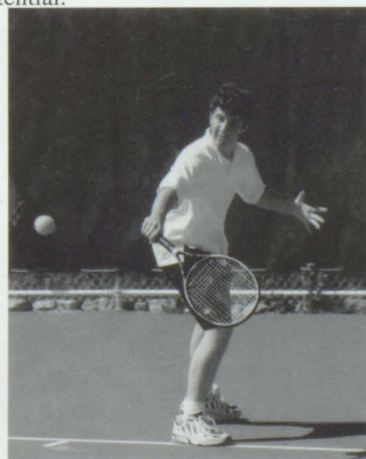

Senior Spotlight: "Just keep swinging until you find the right match and then you gotta hit it hard and kick ace!" Senior Ian Sayre Juniors Gareth Prisk and Jeff Ward, and Seniors Ben Forte and Dan Trout applaud their teammates. Support from fellow players encouraged the team to work to their full potential.

Senior Nathaniel Weberding lines up for a strike at the ball during a blood-thirsty match. The competition was fierce at matches during the season.

Sophomore Brian Forte sets his backhand loose on his opponent. The men's tennis team knew the importance of placing the balls in the right spot.

Swinging Into Another Hopeful Baseball Season

As the 2002-2003 baseball season approached, the team was hopeful for a successful year. With returning letterman, the varsity team had both experience and determination. They began training in January with hitting practice, and an abundance of practicing for the pitchers and catchers. When the games started, these early practices paid off for all the players. Junior Kevin Lewis was very optimistic and had high hopes for the season, commenting, "This season the baseball team had a lot of potential. There were a lot of seniors coming back as well as a quest for young talent." Coaches Mr. Steve Locasio and Mr. Matt Basciano led the Cats in their successful season. Believing the play-offs were in reach helped to keep the Wildcats motivated during both the on and off seasons. The guys came together as a team and worked hard to have a season everyone could be proud of.

By: Sam Hauger

Senior Mike Schock anticipates the pitch, hoping to start a Wildcat rally. The team relied on the "baseball savvy" to win close games.

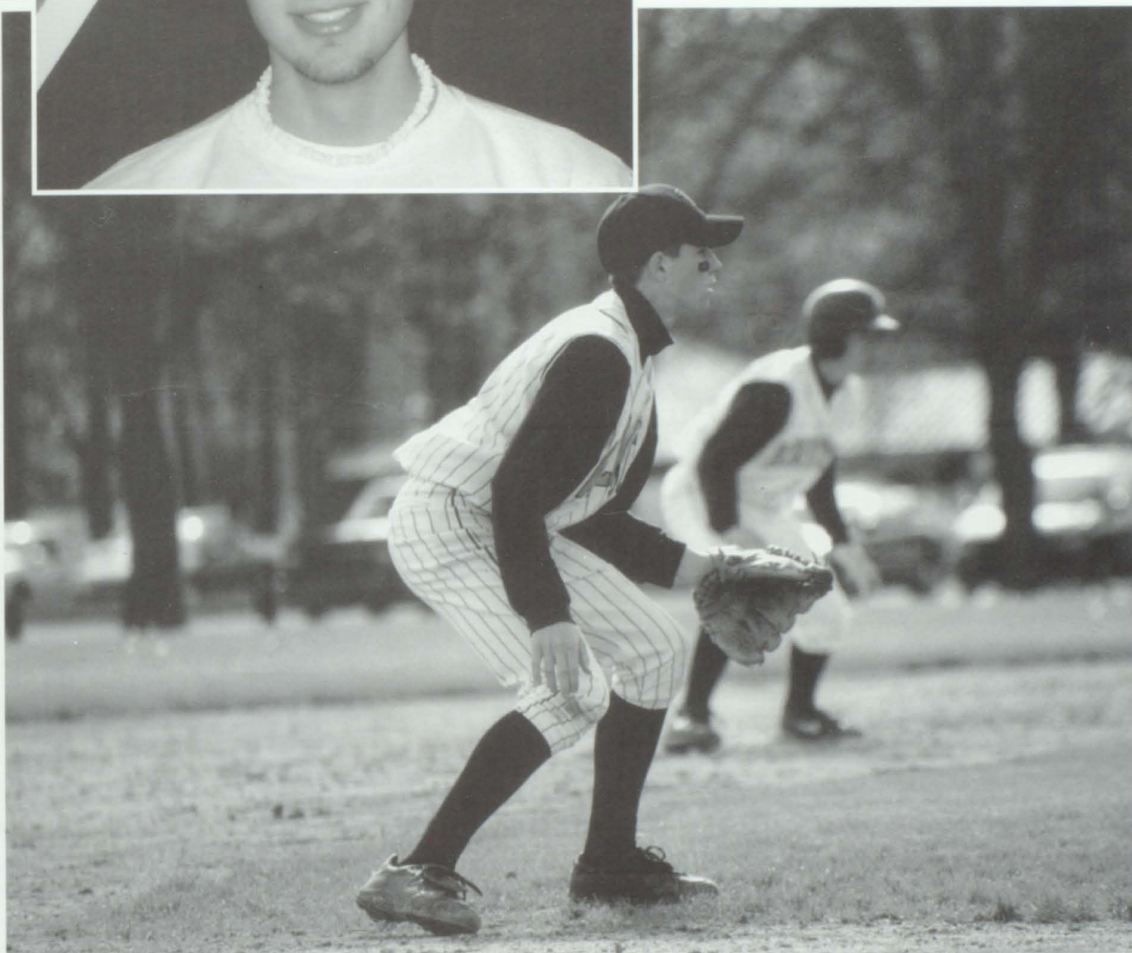

Junior Dan Schimizzi gets down, prepared for anything coming his way. They knew to make the playoffs, they needed to be ready.

Row 1: Myers, Mulheren, Weimer, Musiak, Quinn Row 2: Flynn, Schock, Turnbull, Lazur, Piper

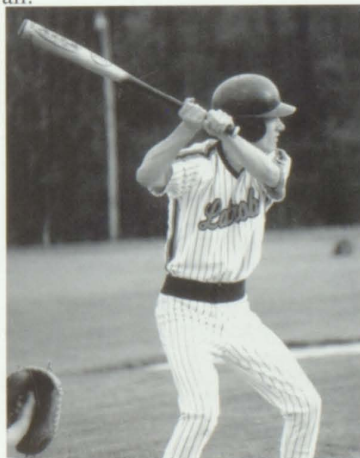

Senior Spotlight: "Playing on the baseball team was one of the most rewarding experiences I've ever had. I am going to miss all the fun times at practices and on the field." Senior Tommy Turnbull

Senior Billy Mulheren demonstrates senior leadership by staying alert on his toes and motivating his team. All the seniors worked together to create a positive environment for all.

Junior Ryan Flynn goes to the plate and looks to go long. With hard hitting bats, the team was able to drive up the ERA for any pitcher they faced.

Sophomore Jason Clark is an example of the bright future of the team by stepping up to the plate in a clutch situation. The Cats stayed together and pulled through as the better team.

New Sports Craze In Latrobe High School

Latrobe Girls Lacrosse Team, who would have thought this sport would ever exist at Latrobe? But since its creation last year, Lacrosse has become a craze at the high school. It was November of her sophomore year that Jessica Meyer, now a junior, decided to start the Lacrosse team. Unsure of what the outcome of her efforts would be, Meyer was pleasantly surprised when thirty-two girls decided to join the team. Jessica stated, "It's great that girls are giving lacrosse a chance.

Especially since many of them have never seen or played it." This year the girls are more pumped than ever to play. Everyone has fallen in love with lacrosse. Sophomore Keri Matson explains why she likes it when saying, "You can play it in any weather, when all other sports are cancelled, we are still on." The girls have gained experience and are ready for this season. It is evident that although Latrobe's lacrosse team is not the best in its section, it has certainly made a mark.
By: Laura Meyer

Junior Taylor Shekell runs as she cradles the ball. Cradling was key to lacrosse playing.

Senior Erica Matson gets ready to toss the ball to a teammate. Good passing and hard effort were the only way to advance.

Senior Spotlight: "My teammates were the best part of playing lacrosse, I'm going to miss them a lot next year." Senior Laura Meyer

Junior Julie Diorio attempts to make a save from the oncoming ball. Her teammate, senior Laura Meyer, also helps her to make big plays for the Cats all season long.

Sophomore Brittany Ruffner tosses the ball before a game. Warming up and getting used to playing assured players' capability to be up to par.

Junior Julie Diorio catches the ball before it hits the net. Playing goalie was very stressful in lacrosse.

Dedication And Desire Were A Winning Combination

"There was a lot of hard work and dedication involved, but it was all worth it because of the camaraderies among the teammates that made each meet so fun," stated sophomore Sherrie Dunlap. This was the attitude for many participants of the boys and girls 2002-2003 track team. Even with the track season not beginning until March, the athletes began to engage in intense off-season workouts blanketed with snow that, for some, began all the way back in November. Coach Butler used the motto,

"Champions expect pain, endure pain, but never complain," when her runners needed the extra motivation throughout every practice and meet. Coach Murray stated, "I think that our strength will be in our distance runners and field events." The Cats received a large amount of their success during the season from the thriving underclassmen. A team's dedication and desire for success that could not be deterred was a winning combination for a commendable season.

Senior Spotlight: "Being a part of the track team was such an unforgettable experience. I only hope that I can be just as successful in track in college and keep meeting other inspirational people." Senior Kristen Wasylik

The ladies try their hardest and push themselves as they race towards the finish line. Sprinters found that both on and off-season workouts helped prepare them for spring meets.

Senior Frank Cremonese prepares to fling the discus. Much preparation was needed in order to compete successfully against other discus opponents.

Junior Abby Sherbuck takes to the air, flips over the bar and onto safe ground. This was always interesting, since the competitors would literally go head over heels.

Junior Garrett Parker vaults over the pole with ease. It was tougher than people imagined, jumping with a pole.

Junior Seth Shrecongost leaps in the air, attempting to reach the furthest distance possible.

Senior Katie Kimmel shows her winning finish in the 100m. Going strong each race led to victory!

Sophomore Stacey Null crosses the line for a first-place finish. There was nothing better than being mobbed by your teammates after a victory.

Sophomore Margret Florendo has a good height on her winning pole vault.

Trainers

More To Trainers Than Meets The Eye

What would happen to our sports program if injuries weren't treated immediately? Fortunately for Greater Latrobe we have a very well trained sports medicine program also known as the trainers. These incredible people have to know how to do everything, from how to tape an ankle and clean injuries to doing laundry and organizing the training room. "They have to be able to do everything I can do," commented Mr. Gorinski. The training program covers nine sports and assists in many others, working with muscle therapy and physical injuries. But there is more to being a trainer than taping wrists and doing laundry, they have to be skilled in many different areas. "It takes work learning how to tend with different injuries, and also with the boys' mood swings," commented sophomore, Sam Suranic. With the many memories the training team has made they will surely be remembered as 'the team behind the team.' By: Brittany Bureau

Junior Kayla Dorko wraps the leg of a fellow teammate. Trainers not only had the responsibility to train but support their team.

Senior Stephanie Dorazio takes time out to refill the waterbottles. This task was among one of numerous tasks that the trainers would have to perform during the season.

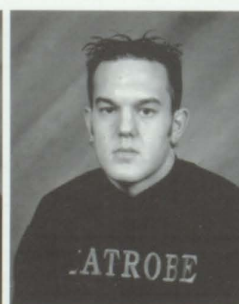

Senior Megan Parke helps stretch a football player. Trainers needed to be able to know different stretches for different muscles in case of emergencies during a game.

Going All The Way

If you want big rewards, you have to take big risks. Many athletes and coaches started off with a goal of having a winning season and eventually progressing to PIAA playoffs. It took hours of practice, dedication, and love of the game to make it that far. That is true for any sport. It took physical, mental, and emotional strength for any athlete to reach that goal. Senior tennis player, Jamie Sutyak, commented, "Going to states as a team was awesome and winning state doubles with Karissa was an accomplishment I'll always remember. It was a really good feeling to know that motivation, dedication, and hard work truly do pay off in the end." Senior track sensation, Amy Egan, added, "Your season never ends. You have to make it part of your life. You just need to work hard and want it bad enough!" Coaches also played a big part in their teams' success. The bond between coaches and athletes changed the teams' relationship into one big family.

When Girls Cross Country Coach, Mrs. Curci, found out that two of her top runners made states, she said, "Predictions came true. Expectations were high and the girls pulled through. We were excited and proud!" In order to compete at the PIAA level and have a successful outcome, the teams prepared with practice, practice, practice! The team improved their skills by never missing practice and playing together as a TEAM.

The pitchers and catchers of the softball team conditioned from December to the end of the season. The other players practiced hitting, fielding, and throwing over and over. "Sometimes they practiced hitting so often that the girls got tired of it, this is when it sinks in. More than anything, I think it is important to practice the mental part of the game, concentration," stated girls' Coach Nick Morrison.

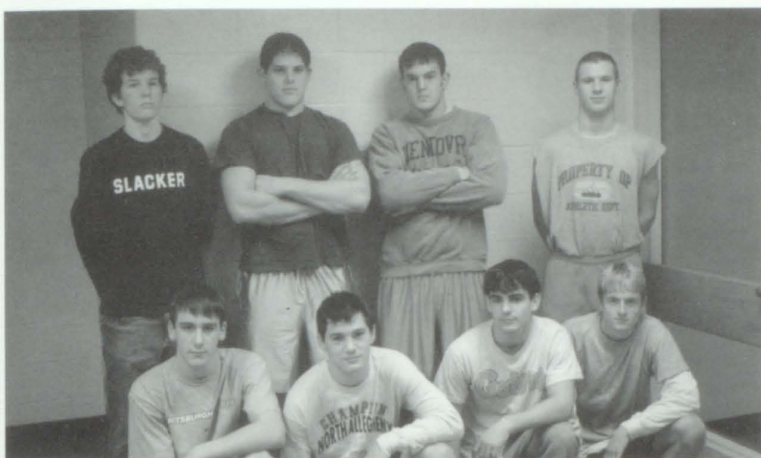

As you can see, every team has a goal for the season and sometimes if you work hard enough, that goal will be accomplished!

Mark,
 Congratulations to a very special son and brother.
 Eighteen years have flown by so quickly and you will soon fly from our home into an exciting future. We are so incredibly proud of the fine man you have become. With your talents, focus, and determination, we know a bright future lies ahead for you.
 Always know that you are greatly loved and supported.
 May you soar like the eagle!

RobbPatty

Robb,
When you were born I would hold you in my arms and say "remember this moment, because time passes so quickly." When you graduated from pre-school I said "remember this moment." Now with a blink of an eye you are graduating from high school and have turned into a fine young man. Your dad and I are so proud of the man you have become. We are proud of all of your accomplishments' from working for the Steelers, writing for the High Post, to excelling in your favorite sport, volleyball. We have been your biggest fans through tee-ball, baseball, basketball, go-karts, and volleyball. You can count on us to be your biggest fans through the biggest game of all, the game of LIFE.

God Bless You, Love You Always Mom & Dad

Robb,
You've finally made it to graduation and I am very proud of you. The twelve years of hard work have paid off. You have helped me so much with life and have taught me how to play all of my favorite sports. When I was little, I remember wanting to dress and act just like you. Ever since you started playing Little League I have enjoyed watching you play all your sports. The best times have been through volleyball and watching you work for the Steelers. It won't be the same when you leave for college. I'll miss you.
Love, Ryan

Always beautiful - inside and out! Follow your dreams and never compromise. As you move on to the bigger "edition," know that you have our endless love, pride, and admiration! "If you love something, set it free..." with much love,
Mom, Dad, Abby, Julie, Jason, Hunter, and Fisher

Courtney,

Being our first born, your arrival made us a family. You entered into our hearts and now you own them. Only when you become a parent yourself will you understand the depth of our love for you. You have grown into a beautiful young woman both inside and out and we are so very proud of your intelligence, sensitivity, compassion, honesty, and values. Go forward and discover your unique gift from God that will determine you life's work. Know that we will always be there for you.

Love, Mom and Dad

Courtney Janae Skemp

Courtney,

It is not very often that a grandfather gets the opportunity to state publicly his feelings about his granddaughter. Watching you grow from a sweet child into a lovely young woman has always made me so very proud. Your devotion to family, education, and other important things in life is not only remarkable, but admirable. No grandfather ever had a more wonderful granddaughter than you. I've loved you since the day you were born and I will continue to love you until the day I die.

*To my wonderful daughter, and our beautiful sister. Where have all the years gone?
Seems like yesterday you were my little baby girl and now you're all grown up. God has truly blessed us to have given us such a special little girl that has grown up into a beautiful, loving, and caring young lady. I believe we share a special relationship that all mothers and daughters are not as fortunate as us to have. Thank you for sharing that with me.
Never hold back. Give it all you can. You can reach and touch the stars. We are so very proud of your achievements and whom you have grown to become.
Congratulations and good luck for the future. God Bless You Always, Chrissie.
May all your dreams come true.

You are a cherished gift. We have been through some very difficult years only to survive and grow stronger and closer. It created a bond never to be broken. I am proud of the wonderful woman who is not only my daughter, but now too my friend. Remember you can accomplish anything you set your mind to, so, sweet daughter, always reach for the stars.
Love always, Mom

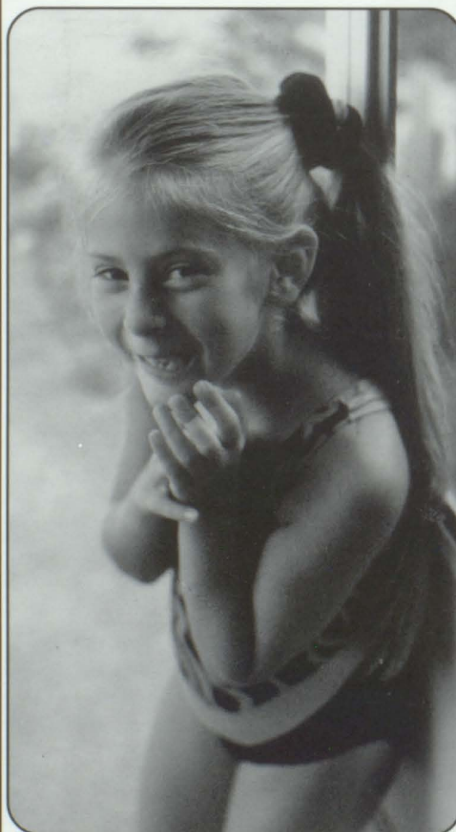

Congratulations Jenny.
May all your dreams for your future come true.
Love Always, Grandma

Dollface,
Before you were born we couldn't wait to see your face. When you were a baby we were excited to watch you grow into a little girl. We hung on every smile. We applauded every roll, step, and word. We taught you to listen, be nice, be patient, helpful, generous, and kind. We taught you the importance of good friendships, and mostly we taught you to love yourself and others. Now looking back we realize that we still anxiously await seeing your precious face. We also realize our pride in which you have become.

Your smile is soothing.
You roll with the punches.
You walk with confidence,
You negotiate with words, as well as a smile
You listen to understand.
You're nice, kind, generous, and helpful.
You're a good friend.
Mostly we see love.
What we didn't realize 18 years ago was that teaching our baby girl these things, would give us such a treasure.

Well Lindsey, 18 years ago I babysat you when Mommy and Daddy entrusted you with my care and boy did we have fun! Remember playing in your backyard sandbox, our long walks around the neighborhood in your stroller, and oh my, don't forget the times I put you in the trash can and you would laugh so hard.

Then, years have gone by and I have a family of my own now, which you have been a special part of. Remember our wedding and your broken elbow? You were so excited to wear your new dress and walk down the aisle. Even with the cast on your arm- You still looked beautiful.
Now, you babysit my child-remember the Halloween party- Ariel, Oh, how beautiful! Angela admires you so very much! What a good role model you are for her! Don't forget the Barney birthday party for Angela. She loved having you there! Now, that she is old enough to enjoy Christmas morning, you make it so special for her.

Lindsey,

You have grown into such a beautiful person and we are so proud of you! We want to wish you the best in all you do. Keep your head straight, like you have now, and you will be blessed with many happy times. Your good judgement and morals will pay off! We will always be here for you! We Love You Dearly!

In your face we'd sometimes see Shadowings of the man to be,
 And eager, dream of what our son
 Would be in twenty years and one.

But now you are to manhood grown,
 And all your manhood ways are known,
 Now shall we, wistful, try to trace
 The child you once were in your face?

We love you and wish you the best,

Laura,
 These 18 years have passed so quickly. It seems only yesterday that you graduated from kindergarten and got your kitty, Cheerio.

Soon you will start a wonderful new life as an adult. We know you have worked very hard to achieve your goals and we wish you all the success and happiness that you deserve.

Remember to "be true to yourself" and follow your dreams without compromise. Those dreams are gifts from God and He will show you the way if you let Him.

We are very proud of you and we will always love you.

came into my room needing to know who the beautiful baby belonged to letting me know just how perfect and pretty you were. Now, you stand before me a young woman with accomplishments that take my breath away. You have always made me so proud and I am so blessed that the good Lord above chose me to be your mom. You're going to the top kiddo and I'll be right there beside you to hold your hand whenever you need me to.
You're my life, and just when the disappointments come around, I'll be there to catch them with you and we'll solve them.*

Meghan King

To our little sister,
Being so far away from you these past couple of years have made us sit back and think. We never realized until now what a truly special person you are. How many special talents you have and the special things you do for not only us, but for everyone. We have shared so many memories together, from our "inventions" of putting you in a wagon and sending you down the driveway, to our roller skating championships in the basement. You are a wonderful person and our best friend. Sisters are special people because of what they make their siblings become and we would like to think that a little bit of us is in your unique personality. We know that there is always a bit of you in us! We love you with all of our hearts and cannot wait to see what life has in store for you. Believe in who you are, we do!

Nina,
Where do I begin, and where have the years gone?
Congratulations to the first "baby" of our family, my brown-eyed girl, my daughter, and now my friend.
From the day you were born, you have been full of surprises. You have brought more joy, laughter, and pride into our lives than we could have ever imagined.
God blessed us with a wonderful, beautiful, and more important kind and caring daughter. You are a very special gift, and I am forever grateful. You have achieved and accomplished so much and yet so much more lies ahead of you. As you begin this next chapter of your life, remember to keep the morals and values you have set for yourself, they will take you far.
Always keep your faith, it will never fail you. May God continue to bless you and may all the success, happiness and love you deserve in life be yours. Nina,

Love your Dad, Mom, and Mike!!!

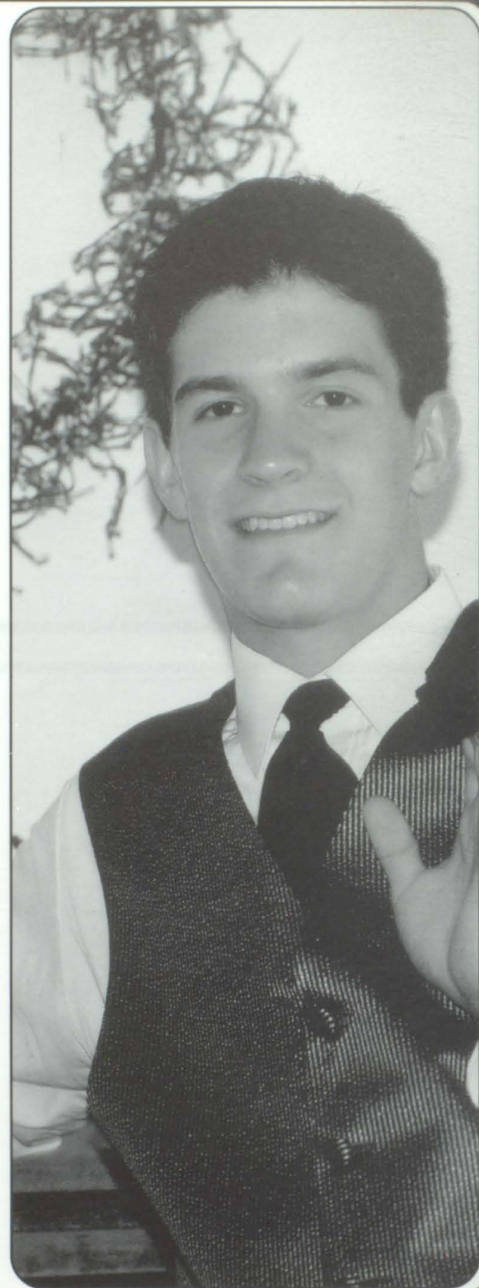

Zacchary T. Keslar

Zac-
Just as you opened that doorway back when, now it's time for you to open the doors to your future. As the doors have opened in your school career, we've all been so proud. From the American Legion Award to the Distinguished Honor Roll to NHS... you've excelled at so much!! All the work you've done will already open so many doors for you. Just remember that your family is always here for you when you need them, but also that: "You have brains in your head. You have feet in your shoes. You can steer yourself any direction you choose. You're on your own. And you know what you know. And YOU are the guy who'll decide where to go;" just like Dr. Suess says. So as you walk through life with your own two feet and open up the doors to your future, we wish you nothing but success and happiness and "the best of what's around," just as you have given us these past 18 years!

Lots of Love,

Phil,

We are truly proud of your extraordinary achievements. Your dedication and determination are genuine qualities that have helped prepare you for the future. We are wishing you the very best and want to share our words of encouragement and loving thoughts. Take on and welcome new challenges. Free your thoughts and have an open mind to the endless opportunities of this magnificent world. Believe in yourself and know we will always be here for you. Share in peoples lives and accept them for who they are, be responsible, have fun, and enjoy your life. As you set out on your journey to define yourself, never let there be a moment where you forget you are always in our thoughts, and how much we love you.

Wishing you the Best!-- Your #1 Fans

Amanda Bangor

Congratulations Amanda-

In the last 17 years you have grown from our precious "Angel Bucker" into a beautiful, talented, independent, and caring young lady. You never ceased to amaze us and make us proud! Continue to follow your heart.. It seems to know the way!

Philippians 4:13- "I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me."

Jamie Sutyak

Jamie,

The time has passed so quickly and you are not a little girl anymore. We have seen you grow from a small baby into a beautiful woman who is so beautiful, inside and out, in every way that truly counts. You have grown up to be a terrific person with a wonderful character who is outgoing, strong, confident, sweet, loving, and caring. Don't ever change because you are just great the way you are.

We are proud of all you have accomplished in school, swimming, and tennis and how you have managed to make tons of friends across the country. Remember to cherish the memories of all your experiences. You have made us proud every step of the way by always showing your hard work, determination, and perseverance in all you have done.

You have worked so hard for all you have achieved.

Your presence is a gift to the world. You are a very unique, special and one of a kind person. Your contagious smile always lights up a room whenever you walk in. Continue to always believe in yourself the way we have all always believed in you. You have what it takes to be someone great, so go for it. Your life can be whatever you want it to be.

Remember, it doesn't matter what you have, it matters what you do with what you have. So continue to use all of your talents as you go forward into the world and never loose sight of your goals.

You will be missed by so many when you go off to college. You have brought much joy to many lives. It is hard to let go when you love someone as much as we love you, but that time is drawing near, so reach for the stars and all your dreams will come true.

We Love You Lots,

My Big Brother Matt,
You've been my support over the years and someone to protect me. I never thought the day would come when we would ever start talking about the turbo engine in your car, and planning your graduation party. I don't want you to grow up and I don't want our fun times to end. Never forget Grandma and everything she's given us. She's been such an inspiration and has given us more than we could ever ask. She will be watching down on you and smiling because she is so proud of you and everything you do. I love you Matt, and I'll never forget when dad would bury us in the sand at the beach, or when the Easter Bunny spilled jelly beans all over our house in Connellsville. Never forget the tree house you built, when you shot your first buck, or the memories you have shared with all of your friends. I wish you all of my luck in everything you do and may all of your dreams come true.

Congratulations Linds!!!
Thank you for bringing such joy and laughter into our lives these past 18 years. From that Valentines Day in 1985 when you were born, you will always be

"Our Little Sweetheart."

We are so proud of the wonderful young lady you have grown to be. You truly are a gift from God. The years have gone by so quickly but with many memories that will never be forgotten. Remember... your first special Honey Bear, your first swing-set, Hug a Bunch and Goodnight Moon, dance recitals, your first bike, Puff Puff, vacations at the beach, kindergarten at CDT, sleepovers, ND games, and of course Maverick, and never forget your first car "Big Red" just to list a few. These will always hold a special place in our hearts.

You are coming to a closing of one chapter in your life, but with many more chapters ahead of you. In your new journey ahead, believe in yourself as much as we do, and may God guide you down the next path in your life.

All the best to our "Sweetheart"

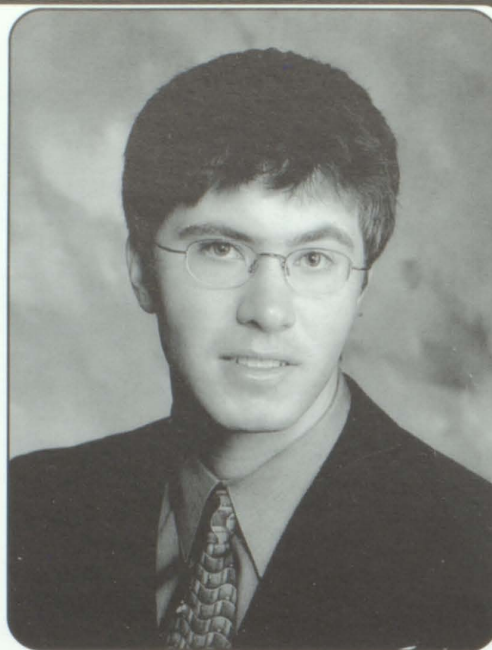

We love you honey and wish you much success and happiness!

Kristen,
Where have all the years gone? We can't believe our first grandchild will be graduating. It seems as if you just started school and we were waving good-bye to you.
We couldn't have wished for a better granddaughter and we are so very proud of the young woman you have become. We are blessed that you have been a light in our lives and are proud of who you are and are yet to be! Our love is with you always.

You loved to build drip castles.
It took minutes,
But with sand between your fingers and toes,
And a spot on the tip of your little nose,
You made it your own castle.

You loved to dance recitals.
It took hours,
But with grace of a swan
And a tutu on,
You made it your own dance.

You loved to shop prom dresses.
It took days,
But despite the many you tried,
With friends at your side,
You made it your own dress.

You loved to organize yearbook.
It took months,
But encouraging each section
To strive for perfection,
You made it your own yearbook.

You will love college.
It will take years,
But if you stay true to your heart
To the end, from the start,
You will make it your own college.

You can change the world.
It will take a lifetime,
But if you give unto others what you give to your folks--
Your love, your talent, your hilarious jokes--
You will make it your own world.

And you will make us, as you always have, very proud!
We love you.

Kristen,

It's hard to believe that you are graduating from high school. I look at you and I see a one year old dancing to the Toot-Toot song, a little girl whose favorite toy was a play telephone, who needed two cookies - one for each hand, who always cried at bed-time because she "wasn't tired", and who enjoyed telling Marvin K. Mooney to go, go, go. But now it's your turn to go - onto the next phase of your life. College will be both exciting and intimidating. I know you are up to the challenge. With God and Family, you can accomplish anything.

We love you.

"I'll always be beside you until the very end, wiping all your tears away, being your best friend. I'll smile when you smile, and feel the pain you do, and if you cry a single tear, I promise I'll cry too."

Stephen,
Congratulations!! It seems like just yesterday that you were graduating from kindergarden- and now look at you- graduating from high school. We wish you all the happiness in the future. We are so proud of you.

Congratulations Robert David! You did it! We knew you would, and we're so very proud of you and love you so very much! Our "little firecracker", always loving them, always full of surprises for us! Remembering the frog catching days, muddy pants, butterfly kisses, bike riding races, dare-devil swimmer, football, first time off in the "quad", prayers for your safety, perfect score on drivers test that wasn't studied, the long, red Cadillac that passed the test, the "big gray van", homecoming, prom, work at "Giant Eagle", full of quick wit, laughter, and humor, and now ready for college! Secrets with sister Ashley-sticking up for each other and teasing, special quad rides with Tyler, chasing and ruff stuff, and "Wonderland" sledding! You're a very special guy, a blessing to us! We'll always be here for you when you need us!

Love,
Always & Forever,

When I hear the word Latrobean, many thoughts come to my mind. First of all I think of my Big Poppa, Danielle. Without her I would of only seen things through my eyes, my way. She has shown me that my way is not the only way of doing things. I am so glad that we decided to do the advertising section together. Even though we had our differences we always made it fun. Jen and Liz taught patience to every member of the staff, no matter how stressed we all were. Linds and Alicia kept us smiling through jokes and pranks and reminded us all how to laugh when a deadline was arriving. Ross helped us to be serious when those times became too loud and silly. Sarah was missed during Yearbook tenth period. Still, she showed us dedication by never letting her schedule get in the way of making time for the staff and her responsibilities. Kate always had a new mix to pop in the player when Duda had a class. She kept us chilled out when things were tense and always told it like it was. Ash had the greatest picture ideas, especially the AFS club picture, that one definitely turned out decent. She displayed her ability of thinking quick when there was no time. Stephanie and Rachel showed us how to stay on task and not to let things get in the way of getting the job done. Last but not least, Mr. Duda. He has given each of us something special, a friendship that will always be remembered. He taught us how to be proud by completing something as special as a Yearbook by ourselves. Though he doesn't like Ja & Ashanti, I will forgive him someday. So in reality the only way to think about the word Latrobean is to take a little part of what everybody brought to the staff and roll it into one. Taking part in this challenge has taught all of us many things. I will never forget that word, or who and what it is made of. Good Luck girls, and I hope that everyone of you get everything you have wished for in life. Kristen 2003

I Remember ~ "Ashanti"

I remember in the 9th grade on the first day of school, I met you in gym class and that started our friendship.

I remember the first dance you and I dressed up for
The many nights sleeping over your house, The ohh so many boys we met (well really that you met, I'll give you the credit there)

I remember Romeo and Juliet and the hundreds of other movies we watched
The trip to Sandcastle The fourth of July spent on the top floor of the PPG building

The nights at the clubs and that guy calling you at 3:00 in the morning, "Tell him I'm not here!" I remember spending all the summer days together, literally everyday! Our many unrealistic plans--!

I remember riding on your uncle's quad and your little cousin wearing your bra:
Creation! Ohh I'll never forget the leg shaving party.

You'll never forget when Ashley and I spill water on your head while you were sleeping
I remember painting your room, and our little "house warming party" for you.

The football games, buffalo wild wings, homecoming, and prom

I remember when you and I first started yearbook how excited we were to be
"BUSINESS WOMEN"

I remember my first experience with tanning, and "I wanna be your chick"
-I remember how great of a friend you have been for me through thick and thin Your great fashion sense, your hard working and determined attitude, your laugh, the many colors of your hair... Haha, I loved them all! You are the best friend and partner there could be, and although I may have been extremely annoying to you at times, I thank you for looking past that and I thank you for being the most understanding, kind and fun friend I could ask for... And that I will always remember. Best of luck to all the editors and to 50 cent, a.k.a Mr. Duda. I will never forget yearbook, all of you girls were the best! And to Nathan, thanks for keeping me calm.

Danielle

Yearbook. It's been quite an experience. The endless days staying after school, skipping class to work, work, work, going through each individual underclass name and checking spelling, captioning and re-captioning every picture all made this a great learning experience for me. Lucky for me I ended up with a partner who felt the same way I did about getting things done. It was important, and Sarah and I both knew that! We dedicated so many hours to this section but once we got it back it was worth it. When we saw it we were proud of ourselves. We could never have done it without Jen and Liz. You guys helped so much with everything. I know we asked you a million questions and you answered every single one with patience and understanding. Thank you girls for everything!

Sarah~ thanks so much for working so hard. I'm so glad we got the opportunity to work together. Not only did we do better than we ever dreamed we could, we had a lot of good times too. It was awesome working with someone who wasn't only my partner, but my friend.

Mr. Duda- TERRIFIC!! It's OK though, you made yearbook a lot of fun, and I'll miss you next year! You're not only our advisor but you're our friend. To the rest of the editors: Thanks for all the laughs and good times. The popcorn bag flying through the air! I'll never forget all of our memories! Thanks to everyone and GOOD LUCK!!! Love you girls!

Linds

"Draw a crazy picture, Write a nutty poem, Sing a mumble-gumble song,
Whistle through your comb.
Do a loony-goony dance
Cross the kitchen floor,
Put something silly in the world
That ain't been there before."

Lindsey Bell & Sarah Davin

I would like to start off by thanking all the editors on the Latrobean Staff. This year was challenging for me since I wasn't actually in class during Yearbook, because I had another class that period. Thank you EVERYONE... For making it possible, constantly leaving me little notes so I would stay informed. This year I started out with a different co-editor, but thank god I got you Linds! I definitely wouldn't have been able to do this without YOU! "Linds...um...we have another problem" But even though we had our share of miscounting, (miscounting, miscounting) and re-captioning we still managed to get it done! (I don't know how) You are such a wonderful person and a great friend! We have been through a lot... Way back to the pepperoni days... To now. I value your friendship so much! Thank you for always being so understanding! Jen and Liz, thank you for ALL your hard work and dedication, we would never had a yearbook if it weren't for the two of you. There's nothing like late nights in the yearbook room. Lish, Rossi, Linds and Campbell- Yearbook is so PHYSCO! Lunch is great. And now, Mr. Duda... Thank you for listening to me complain, (it wasn't too much!) and always lending good advice. You're the BEST! Don't miss me too much next year.

And to the graduating class of 2003... Good Luck to Everyone!!! We are FINALLY DONE!!!
Love Always, Sarah Davin

"The most beautiful discovery true friends can make is they can grow separately without growing apart."

To all my dawgs in Yearbook!

Yearbook is life! You made my senior year so memorable! I will miss you all when the time comes. I'd like to thank Nichole for putting up with me all year! Your like my second mom! Linds and Sarah, I can not count all the fun times we had. You guys crack me up. Ashley and Campbell, good luck
with all you do!

Call me anytime you need a baby-sitter! Jen and Liz, I hope you learned a lot from me!

I taught you a lot about the real world.
See you at Senior week.
Kristen and Danielle, this yearbook would not be possible without you! Thanks so much!
Finally, but not least,
thank you Mr.Duda!
I've never laughed so hard in my life. You brought good times and laughter every where you went.
How am I ever going to replace you?

Better yet, how are you going to replace me!?

Good luck next year with Yearbook,
Ross' daugette,
I will miss you,
Alicia

FINALLY, WE'VE ALL BEEN COUNTING DOWN THE DEADLINES, AND IT'S FINALLY HERE. I'M VERY HAPPY, BUT I WILL MISS
EVERYONE. FIRST OF ALL,
ALICIA, MY CO-EDITOR, WHAT WOULD I HAVE DONE WITHOUT YOU? THERE WERE THOSE DAYS, I HAD TO DRAG YOU AWAY FROM YOUR LAPTOP,
BUT I COULDN'T OF ASKED FOR A BETTER PARTNER.
THANKS. JEN & LIZ- YOU
YEARBOOK NAZIS, YOU GUYS WERE GREAT, WE WOULD OF ALL BEEN LOST
WITHOUT YOU. SAR & LINDS
HOW MANY TIMES DID YOU HAVE TO TYPE THOSE NAMES? JUST KIDDING, YOU GUYS WERE AWESOME AND LOTS OF HELP.

CAMPBELL- I'LL ALWAYS BE YOUR BABY-SITTER!
THANKS FOR THE LAUGHS.
ASHLEY- I HAD A FUN YEAR WITH YOU!

FINALLY, KRISTEN AND DANIELLE, YOU GUYS WERE
THE ONLY ONES WHO HAD AS MANY DEADLINES AS US,
LUCKY YOU! YOU GUYS DID GREAT. I'LL MISS EVERYONE

AND ALL OF THE CRAZY STUFF WE DID,
ESPECIALLY IN THE CAVE.
REPORTERS, THANKS FOR ALL OF YOUR HARD WORK,
THE STORIES, AND ALL OF THOSE WONDERFUL
CAPTIONS. FINALLY,
MR.DUDA. IT WAS A FUN
YEAR, AND I COULDN'T FIND ANOTHER ADVISOR LIKE
YOU. HAVING TWO PERIODS
IN A ROW, I AM SURE YOU ENJOYED IT AS MUCH AS
ALICIA AND I DID. GOOD LUCK AND THANKS TO ALL THE STAFF MEMBERS!
NICHOLE

Steph~

Without you this class would of been a totally different experience. Or maybe I should say that having this class with you is what made it so, well, unique. I mean, I can't really think of anyone else who finds "Liar Liar" or cool "sha la la la" conversations as amusing as I do. I'll never forget the paranoia I experienced on the days I wore my backless shoes, waiting at any moment for them to be kicked off by my conniving co-editor. And what would I have done if I had to face the dreaded yearbook "lock down" all alone last year? I don't think I could have fended off those manila folders on my own. And this lovely little letter would not be complete without an honorary mention to my noble steed: Chi Chi. Let's not forget all the times he's faithfully transported us from one place to another but in all seriousness I have to say, I simply loved being in yearbook with you and will cherish all the memories I've had and will have with one of my best friends. I love you Stretch

~Shrimpy

Well, where should I begin Rach? Since the first day of yearbook Junior year, our friendship has grown to where we are like sisters. I'll never forget the infamous "pool" quote, the mischievous plan for climbing out the window, summer dreams, our computer guy, that horrible computer #1, and formulating our forever lasting nicknames. The list goes on forever.

Well, look at this finished project! It's the best! Even though you may be a foot shorter than me,

I look up to you more than anyone else. You've got a strong heart and you're like a third sister to me. High school may be over, but we will be friends forever!

I love you Shrimpy!

~Stretch

Latrobean~

What can I say? It's been a long year with a lot more "ups" than "downs". Ash, I know we didn't always agree, but I'm glad we overcame the obstacles and are still great friends. Fellow editors: You have made the past two years AMAZING! From our luncheons, to our talks, to our pranks, you girls have become sisters to me. A special thanks goes to my very supportive "baby-sitting" crew- you're the best. Duda, yearbook is BANK! Thanks for the orange peels. To everyone: I wish you all much success and fun times in the future.

I'll miss ya! Love always,
Campbell

Katie & Ashley

Activities. No problem, just a bunch of clubs and their members, right? Wrong! I soon found out that the activities section of the yearbook included a little bit more of everything that everyone participates in. It was a challenging task to portray every club, honor society, and specialized class in the way the members wanted it. I'll never forget the day at Vo-Tech taking pictures with Katie and Patrick. Wow Katie, what a day! I've always had a fun time working with you, no matter how many stresses we had. You taught me to relax, that everything will be fine in the end and that Instant Messenger is a very therapeutic way to escape when there is a lot of stressful work to do! I also thank Jen and Liz for patiently pushing us along, Kristen for lending us her job stickers, Alicia for the motivational popcorn, Lindsey for keeping things in line, Christine and Ross for taking picture after picture, Nathan for fixing the computer, and Mr. Duda for always lightening the mood. It has been an exciting year watching all of our memories come together into one small book.

Congratulations girls, we've done it! Ashley

The very thought of "group work" used to make me so angry. "Oh yeah, I'm going to do five other people's work and they are going to get all of the credit for my hard work." I was also scared thinking about how I could possibly be a good leader and still be a good friend to all these girls. But this year changed all of that. Sure at first I thought, "This book would be perfect if I could just do it alone without anyone else butting in."

But then I realized I was wrong. Just one person can not design a yearbook because our school isn't made up of just one type of person. Our school is made up of groups of people who may not always have the same ideas, but learn to coexist to create one really special group. So, I hope that everyone enjoys this book and that it always serves as a reminder of all the great memories we had in high school. So now I'd just like to thank all of the people who helped make this book the great success that it is. To Mr. Duda- Thank you for doing nothing, and I mean that in a really great way. You always made me do everything myself and you included my opinion in every major decision you've made this year. Having your support and constant faith in us really meant a lot to me. Not only were you a great teacher and advisor, but you were also a great friend. To Jen- Wow I can't believe it's finally done. From breaking into the school through the window, to staying here all night, to skipping meals, to cutting classes and assemblies... It all paid off in the end. Jen, you have been such an inspiration to me. You are such a hard worker and it is amazing what you have accomplished.

We did it and now it is time to party with Jack. To all the editors- Thank you for teaching me that it is much more rewarding to work together in a group than it is to work alone. Success may be sweet, but sharing well deserved success is sweeter. To the reporters- Thank you for all of your help and hard work. I am so confident that you will have a great book next year, Good Luck. To Joyce, Michelle and the whole Walsworth staff- Thank you so much for all of your patience and for answering all of our questions. I guess now we can take your phone number off speed dial. And lastly, but certainly not least, to the Class of 2003 Congratulations! Always keep your head facing straight forward and never look back unless you are looking back on a good memory. Good luck Class of 2003!

No matter where you go in life, don't forget all of the good times you couldn't leave behind. Love, Liz.

school, and anyone else that looks at this book, that incredible work ethics, senses of humor, and a rewarding drive for perfection results in a fantastic project: the best yearbook ever! Congratulations girls, the long hours in the cave have finally paid off and you girls have 320 pages of perfection to be proud of. Last, but certainly not least, I would like to thank my admirable co-editor Liz Hixson. Liz has taught me so much this year. She displayed integrity, patience, and pride from our first day of yearbook to our very last deadline. Thank you, Liz, for teaching me always to take pride in my work and enforcing the rule to "never settle for less than perfection." I find it very unlikely that I will ever have the chance to work with such an enthusiastic and talented group of people in my lifetime. The future brings many more experiences, lessons, and friendships, but they will never compare to "all that you have left behind" for me.

Yours always with all my love,
Jen

With each life experience comes a lesson. I have lived several experiences throughout my three high school years at Latrobe, and I have learned countless lessons. The greatest experience during my three years was creating the yearbook and the greatest lessons I have learned from my yearbook family. Mr. Duda taught me lessons in professionalism and leadership. He gave Liz and I the freedom to make our own decisions and learn from our mistakes. He has given me the confidence in my own skills to help mold the kind of professional I would like to be. I would like to extend a sincere thanks to all of the editors for their hard work and dedication to the book. You guys have made all of our ideas and visions of what this book could be into a reality that was better than what we had originally imagined. These girls showed the entire high

Packing and moving six computers, hundreds of books, thousands of pictures... Putting together a 300+ page yearbook. With all you've had to deal with- equipment problems, page reorganization, a car wash in near freezing weather, the near-paralyzing temptation of using instant messenger to talk to people who are right beside you, etc.- you've created a great book. Liz and Jen, you are two of the nicest dictators that I've ever known. I can't tell you how much I appreciate your sacrifices and dedication. You provided great leadership through your commitment to the highest standards. Lindsey, I know your role as managing editor was nebulous at times, but you've really taken that position to a new level. You rose above all of my expectations, except for your taste in movies (same with you, Jen) "Horrible". Alicia and Nichole, the sports section will always be one of the toughest sections in the book and you both have handled the responsibility beautifully. I can not stress how thankful I am for your work as photographers. For two years you've taken more pictures than I can even begin to image. I honestly don't know how we have managed without you. I personally would like to thank Alicia for her high pitched squeals at the most in opportune times. Dogs everywhere have their paws over their ears. Steph and Rachel, the senior section looks great. Thank God you didn't have a single computer problem. Sarah, the work you and Lindsey did with the underclass section really shows. The best part about it is that you did it all with only moderate complaining about all the hours you had to put in during homeroom, study halls, after school, all to rearrange mug-shots over and over again. Ashley and Katie, thanks for being so willing to adapt. I know it was difficult at times to get everything together, but your pages look great. Katie, I will not miss your music next year. Danielle and Kristen, thanks for putting up with me asking you constantly for book orders and ad money updates, as well as for keeping so cool under the pressure of having to manage so many pages. You both have done great. (Special thanks to Mrs. Butler's accounting two students for their help as well.) Laura, you and Liz were able to create a new look to the academic section, both in layout and in content. Nathan, what can I say? Twelve girls with a bevy of computer problems almost daily and I don't ever think I heard you complain. You'll be sorely missed. Thanks to the faculty, staff, administration, and the student body for your continued support. Seniors, thanks and God bless you today and beyond.

Mr. Duda

Laura Greene

Well, this year sure has gone fast. Although I was not in Latrobe tenth period, I found myself spending a good portion of time making visits.

Being an editor is more than I could have ever imagined. I do not think I would have made it through without the help of one smiling friend~ Liz. I owe so much to her because she always had the answers to everything and unselfishly offered her time to me. Liz, you really are the greatest, and will always be remembered for your hard work. You are a true leader, and I thank you for everything. I really do not have many memories to mention, but would just like to offer my gratitude to Liz and everyone else for making such a successful product. We truly have created a cherished keepsake... Oh, and I would just like to add~ I love Eddie!

Thanks Everyone, Laura
